JOBLESS PEAK IN U. S. PASSED, LAMONT SAYS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 20.—[Special.]—Secretary of Commerce Robert Lamont today issued a report showing that the employment situation is slowly but surely improving.

Mr. Lamont said that the peak of unemployment, partly due to seasonal causes, had been reached late in January. Since that time there has been a steady improvement.

He declared that there "has been evidence of an unmistakable improvement in the unemployment situation."

At the peak of the January unemployment, Mr. Lamont estimated the number of jobless in the country was 4,950,000, an increase of 149 per cent over the totals published by the census bureau last April.

Based on Reports in 19 Cities.

The secretary's figures were based on returns from a special census of unemployment in nineteen selected cities, made since the first of the year by the census bureau. Analysis of the special census returns disclosed that the ranks of the jobless in Chicago had swollen from 147,440 in April, 1930, to 389,990 in January of the current year. The figures for Chicago, as well as for the nation, included able bodied persons out of a job and seeking work.

"This special census of the unemployed was undertaken during the month when unemployment normally reaches a seasonal peak, and also at the time which we believe represents the highest point of abnormal unemployment, due to the effects of the world-wide business depression," Mr. Lamont said.

Gain Recorded in February.

"Since the time of the census there has been evidence of a slight but unmistakable improvement in the employment situation. Information obtained from more than 13,000 manufacturing establishments by the bureau of labor statistics reveals a gain of 1.4 per cent in the number of employed during February as compared with January. In addition further evidence of increased employment during February is shown by a gain of 7.5 per cent in the volume of wage payments of these manufacturing establishments, indicating a decrease of part time work and an expansion of operating schedules.

"The census was taken in January in the belief that at that time would be revealed the maximum unemployment which could be attributed to the effects of one of the most severe world-wide business depressions in recent times."

How Census Was Taken.

The enumeration of the special census of nineteen cities was ordered by Secretary Lamont last December and completed in February. The canvass was complete, covering the entire population of these cities. It tabulated the total number of persons in these areas reported as out of a job, able to work and looking for a job; the total number of persons having jobs but on layoff without pay, excluding those sick or voluntarily idle; persons out of a job and unable to work and four other classifications.

The special census placed the number of unemployed, not counting those having a job and not working, at 1,550,000 in the nineteen cities in late January. This figure was compared with 775,858 unemployed persons of the same classification reported by the census bureau last April.

The population of the nineteen cities was 20,633,991, indicating that one out of every nineteen persons was out of work in the latter part of January.

Percentage High Here.

Chicago, Detroit, Cleveland, Houston and Philadelphia were listed among the cities having the highest percentage of unemployment. Detroit had the highest percentage of unemployment, 33.1 per cent of its population being idle, while San Francisco enjoyed the lowest percentage of unemployment, with a figure of 6.5 per cent.

Out of a total population of 3,376,438, Chicago, in January, had a total jobless army of 389,990 persons listed as out of a job, able to work and looking for a job. The percentage of population out of work was listed as 11 per cent. In addition, the census tabulation listed 78,749 persons as having jobs, but on layoff without pay, excluding those sick or voluntarily idle. This latter figure compared with 20,- 000 listed in the same class last April. The total percentage in both classes of the Chicago population was 13.3.

Of the other eighteen cities, Detroit

29 REMBRANDT PAINTINGS IN 30 CALLED FAKES

New York, March 20.—[Special.]—An assertion that of 30 paintings owned by the Metropolitan Museum of Art labeled as works by Rembrandt only one, and perhaps not even that, is a genuine work by the Dutch master was made tonight by Dr. Maxilian Toch, chemist, in an address before the New York Microscopical society at the American Museum of Natural History.

Dr. Toch singled out for special comment three of the Metropolitan's canvases attributed to Rembrandt. After the lecture, when asked his opinion of the other canvases owned by the museum attributed to Rembrandt, he denied the genuineness of all of them except perhaps "The Guilder," the famous canvas recently willed to the museum by Mrs. H. O. Havemeyer.

Dr. Toch said he had come to his conclusions as the result of microscopical chemical and X-ray studies. Three of the Metropolitan's paintings he discussed in some detail, showing lantern slides. These were "Old Woman Cutting Her Nails," "Pilate Washing His Hands," and "The Artist's Son Titus," all of the famous Benjamin Altman bequest.

After showing lantern slides of a microscopical study of Rembrandt's brush work Dr. Toch said that none of these pictures showed "any traces" of the brush work of the great Dutch artist.

DEFRAUDED OF BONUS, VET SAYS; TWO ARRESTED

Emil Ross, a war veteran, got his bonus check recently and invested $681 with the Road Builders' Conveyance company, 205 West Wacker drive, on the promise, he said, of a new truck and steady employment on hauling jobs at $25 a day. Ross had been out of work for eleven months.

Yesterday state's attorney's police arrested George Krause, 156 Locust street, president of the conveyance company, and Michael Svehla, 2545 West 26th street, a clerk, on Ross' charges. Assistant State's Attorney Donald Thompson said that $2,100 had been obtained from eight victims, who received no trucks and no jobs.

PLANES TO CARRY FIELD ARTILLERY BATTERY TO 'WAR'

PANAMA CITY, March 20.—(AP)—For the first time in isthmian history, possibly in the history of the world, an entire battery of field artillery, including equipment, is to be transported by airplane.

Maj. John B. Wogan will carry out an experiment having for its object beginning of actual firing at a distant point not more than one and one-half hours from the time of receiving orders, which will involve loading Battery B of the 2d field artillery aboard bombing planes and landing it in the Rio Hato district, Panama.

Reno Reverts to Gambling of Old West

Reno, Nev., March 20.—(AP)—Reno, along with the rest of Nevada, went "old west" today. In the flush of wide open gambling, the new 42 day divorce law was virtually forgotten.

At 10 a. m. the principal gambling hall in the heart of the city was thronged by hundreds who played or strolled about the roulette wheels, faro tables, mechanical dice throwing, and other gambling games.

The hum and hubbub of gambling, the clickity-clack of machines, and the clatter of poker chips were partly drowned by the staccato noise of a compressed air drill operated by a construction crew engaged in cutting through massive stone, brick, and mortar walls to enlarge the gaming room.

Formality Is Forgotten.

While waiting for the printers to turn out gambling license forms, the mere formality of official permission was dispensed with, hence no statistics were available regarding the number of permits which will be issued or the extent to which the city, county, and state will profit in revenues.

The signing of the new gambling bill yesterday by Gov. Fred Balzar was the signal for augmented patronage of the gambling resorts rather than the inauguration of new ones, for the new statute merely makes legal what has been going on under nominal cover for years.

Throughout the night there were in progress in a single downtown establishment three faro games, three "21" games, two crap games, and a well patronized "chuck a luck" table.

Divorcees Among Players.

Dozens of the so-called "speakeasy" establishments, where divorcees and others play in an atmosphere of seclusion and a measure of "exclusiveness," enjoyed generous patronage.

As the nocturnal players dwindled away others took their places. All of the principal establishments operate 24 hours a day.

Paper currency of both large and small denominations, huge stacks of silver dollars and halves, and columns of red, white, and blue poker chips littered the tables.

"Can't Regulate Morals."

"It's all nonsense trying to regulate people's morals by law. For eight years I've been trying to make Reno a place where everybody can do what they please—just so they don't interfere with other people's rights.

"Now we can do lawfully what Nevada has always done under cover.

"No, I don't think it will increase revenues much. This city had been deriving about $35,000 a year from card games.

"Of course, it wasn't lawful to gamble for high stakes. We just assessed them so much per table for playing cards. We never asked them what kind of games they were playing—just took their word for it that the games were within the law.

"Guess Nevada is about the only free state left. Seems funny people will let a lot of long-haired reformers take their liberties away from them.

"I expect to get a lot of roasting. Well, the more they roast me, the better I'll like it.

"But the boys have got to run these games on the square!"

JOLIET WARDEN ASSAILS PRISON PAROLE SYSTEM

"I am opposed to the indeterminate sentence law, although criminologists all over the country believe in it. In theory it is all right, but it ignores human and political elements.

"The parole board doesn't decide cases on the merits of a man, but on the kind of crime he committeed. I can pick 200 men in Joliet and Stateville who ought to be out on parole now.

"If you keep a man in prison too long you might as well keep him in for life. After a certain period of imprisonment he is not a good parole risk; he has become too hardened."—Warden Henry C. Hill.

Soldiers and state highway police were still standing to their arms last night in the Joliet and Stateville penitentiaries after a crowded day during which the testimony of Prison Warden Henry C. Hill before a legislative committee was dramatically interrupted by a new attempt at riot by 735 of his 4,682 wards.

The warden had just finished describing the destruction in two major outbursts of the convicts, one at the old Joliet prison last Saturday and the other on Wednesday at the newer Stateville institution, when a messenger entered the committee room at the old penitentiary and whispered to him that cellhouse F at Stateville was the scene of a battle between guards and inmates.

Legislators Go to Scene.

An immediate adjournment was taken and the five state representatives comprising the committee accompanied Warden Hill in a sixty mile an hour dash to the seat of trouble, two miles away. Arriving, they found twenty prison guards and forty Illinois national guardsmen to the center of the circular cellhouse, with machine guns leveled at the cell tiers. From the cells came the menacing threats and jeers of the disgruntled convicts, who had been on a bread and water diet since Wednesday. The cries were:

"When do we eat?"

"We want a new parole board."

Smoke hung thickly in the upper reaches of the cellhouse. The guards, searching each cell separately during the morning, had tossed into the center space hundreds of pounds of paper, rags and sticks of wood, and the convicts had set this on fire with matches thrown through the cell bars.

Convict Gets Out of Cell.

A Negro convict had taken advantage of the situation to kick out the glass door of his cell—the glass was supposedly unbreakable—and to pry the bars apart enough to let him through.

The actual trouble, however, was short lived. The guards put out the fires and the Negro was seized and hurried to solitary confinement.

The search of the cells disclosed the possession by the convicts of weapons ranging from daggers manufactured from knives seized in the kitchens to brass knuckles, and from plain wooden sticks to elaborate maces with iron heads. More than 100 such articles were placed on display by the prison authorities for the investigators to view.

Weapons Gathered in Riot.

Most of the weapons had been gathered by the prisoners during the arson riot on Wednesday, when all the shops and the kitchens and dining hall were fired by the prisoners, causing a loss of more than $500,000.

After their inspection the legislative committee, composed of three Republicans, Roger F. Little of Urbana, Harry M. McCaskrin of Rock Island, and William G. Thon of Oak Park, and two Democrats, Michael L. Igoe of Chicago and M. E. Bray of Litchfield, returned to the old prison to take up again the questioning of Warden Hill. The riot call came shortly after noon and the hearing was resumed at 2 p. m.

Hill Attacks Parole System.

The warden's testimony included a broad picture of prison life as it is and has been in the last two years at Joliet and Stateville, a defense of his administration, and criticism of the present laws governing the incarceration and liberating of prisoners. Specifically he asserted:

1. A belief that the parole laws, considered unfair by him and the convicts, were a principal cause of the disorders.

2. Overcrowding at the twin prisons is extremely serious. Built to house 900 convicts, the old prison has 1,300

Jury in Night Session Gets Police Records

Shirley Kub, former undercover spy for Acting Police Commissioner John Alcock, supplied the special grand jury with evidence of corruption and graft in the police department last night. She was questioned until midnight by the jurors about a mass of documents which revealed the results of her police investigations.

As a result of her testimony, augmented by the bundles of records she brought to the Criminal court building, a parade of police and city hall officials is expected before the jury in the near future. Among the politicians who may be summoned, according to reports, is the man who sponsored her appointment as an investigator, and who, it is rumored, is close to the city hall administration.

The surprise appearance of Mrs. Kub, deemed the most important witness in the police corruption quiz, was due to a sudden decision on the part of the prosecutors who are presenting evidence to the special jury. She was sentenced to four months in the county jail on March 13 by Chief Justice John P. McGoorty of the Criminal court for refusing to testify before the grand jury and amplify previous testimony. Since then, however, her recalcitrancy has ebbed, and she indicated a willingness to give testimony in return for freedom.

Although no promises were made, Judge McGoorty ordered a special session of the jury yesterday to hear her story. Speed was necessary because of the possibility that Mrs. Kub might be freed from jail today on bond pending an appeal of her contempt sentence. Prosecutors feared that, out of jail, she might change her mind again and refuse to testify.

Mrs. Kub appeared in the grand jury rooms shortly after noon. She emerged several times and accompanied detectives in what were termed "raids" to procure documentary evidence. The evidence consisted of duplicate copies of reports submitted by her to Chief Alcock on her undercover investigations of various police districts.

Put Reports in Record.

Near midnight last night it became known that the jurors, during their long session, were reading her reports to Alcock into the stenographic record and interrogating her on various phases. Utmost secrecy covered her testimony, but it was rumored that Mrs. Kub was, in police parlance, "singing in high C," meaning that she was talking freely and divulging vital information of alleged crookedness in the police department.

The jurors evinced great interest in the duplicate records which she had refused to hand over previously and which, it was believed, would shed considerable light on policemen and police commanders. What the records revealed was not indicated, but the general atmosphere outside the jury chambers hinted the yield was lucrative. It was sufficient, it was reported, to warrant the possible subpoenaing of high officials.

Warned District Commanders.

Apparently, it was said, Mrs. Kub, in her rôle as Alcock's spy, wormed herself into the various districts, ferreted out supposed irregularities or inefficiency, and warned district commanders. In flagrant cases, it was believed, she reported directly to Alcock. During her testimony last night Mrs. Kub is said to have used the phrase: "I told him this," and "I told him that," mentioning the name of a captain.

The grand jurors, led by Foreman J. A. Farmar and Assistant State's Attorney Charles Mueller, specifically quizzed the ex-spy on her appointment to Alcock's pay roll. She is reported to have discussed this matter fully, naming a well known politician.

Mrs. Kub's appearances before the

27 Denominations on Committee Roll.

New York, March 20.—(AP)—The "careful and restrained" use of contraceptive measures to regulate the size of families was indorsed today by an organization made up of representatives of 27 American Protestant churches, having a total membership of approximately 23,000,000.

THE REV. DR. H. C. ROBBINS.

The indorsement was given in a majority report on birth control submitted after several years of study by the committee on marriage and the home of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America. It was issued with the approval of the council's administrative committee.

Consider Mother's Welfare.

The committee unanimously agreed that because of economic considerations and, in many cases, the welfare of the prospective mother, "there can no question as to the necessity for some sort of effective control of the size of the family and the spacing of children."

The committee also agreed unanimously that, whatever the final decision of the church may be, "the church should not seek to impose its point of view as to the use of contraceptives upon the public by legislation or any other form of coercion, and especially should not seek to prohibit physicians from imparting such information to those who in the judgment of the medical profession are entitled to receive it."

Minority Opposed.

A minority, however, refused to sanction the use of contraceptive measures and in its report says:

"The method of abstinence is therefore to be used to meet conditions and situations in which, otherwise, contraceptives would be necessary. This does not mean that sex relations between married people as an expression of mutual affection are wrong, but that they are to be denied when child bearing is hazardous to the wellbeing of mother or child or household."

The committee agreed, however, that "it should be expected that guidance will find expression through the researches and experience of physicians and men of science as well as through the corporate conscience of the church."

Warns Against Nostrums.

The majority report warns the public against "advertised nostrums, which are beginning to appear in thinly disguised forms in reputable periodicals," and against "so-called 'bootlegged' devices at drugstores."

"It is essential," it states, "to consult the family physician or go to established clinics or health centers for information or assistance."

The committee consists of 28 members, among whom are several distinguished clergymen and a number of influential laymen, including George W. Wickersham, Mrs. John D. Rockefeller Jr. and a number of other prominent women are members. Twenty-two of the 28 signed the majority report, three signed the minority report and three expressed no judgment either way.

Chairman with Minority.

The committee's chairman, the Rev. Dr. Howard Chandler Robbins, professor at General Theological seminary and for many years dean of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, signed the minority report, together with Mrs. Robert E. Speer, president of the national board of the Young Women's Christian association, and Mrs. Orin R. Judd, president of the Council of Women for Home Missions.

Preceding the majority and minority reports is a statement on which the entire committee agreed.

It comments on the fact that "physicians have long known that under certain physical conditions of the mother pregnancy is hazardous to mother and child."

"Recurring Anxiety" Cited.

"Although there are few women who do not desire children," it continues, "the fear of untimely pregnancy rests as a recurring anxiety upon most married women for two decades after their marriage."

It dwells at some length on the economic considerations, noting that "very large families tend to produce poverty, to endanger the health and

The problems of overpopulation, it points out, are also involved in the consideration of birth control.

"As to the necessity, therefore, for some form of effective control of the size of the family and the spacing of children, and consequently of control of conception, there can be no question," it concludes. "It is recognized by all churches and physicians."

The majority report states that "the majority of the committee holds that the careful and restrained use of contraceptives by married people is valid and moral."

"They take this position," the majority report continues, "because they believe that it is important to provide for the proper spacing of children, the control of the size of the family, and the protection of mothers and children, and because intercourse between mates, when an expression of their spiritual union and affection, is right in itself. They are of the opinion that abstinence within marriage, except for the few, cannot be relied upon to meet these problems and under ordinary conditions is not desirable in itself.

"But they cannot leave this statement without further comment. They feel obliged to point out that present knowledge of birth control is incomplete, and that an element of uncertainty, although it is small, still remains. More serious is the fact that all methods are as yet more or less subject to personal factors for their effectiveness. Married couples should keep these facts in mind and welcome children, should they come."

First Group Action.

The pronouncement on birth control by the council of churches is believed to be the first declaration on the subject by an interdenominational body.

Dr. Worth M. Tippy, secretary of the committee, also said a further study on the attitude of the church toward divorce will be made.

"Although statements on birth control have been made by some of the denominational groups — notably by the Lambeth conference of last summer, which included representatives of all Anglican and Episcopal churches —this statement by the federal council is believed to be the first declaration on the subject by an interdenominational body made up of representatives of many different churches," he said.

No Lutherans Among Signers.

Declaring that "no Lutheran appears among the signers of the statement nor among the members of the committee on marriage and the home," the national Lutheran council made public today a comment on the report by the Rev. F. H. Knubel, president of the United Lutheran Church in America.

"It is of prime significance," Dr. Knubel said, "that the present agitation for birth control occurs at a period which is notorious for looseness in sexual morality. This fact creates suspicion as to the motives for the agitation and should warn trueminded men and women against the surrender of themselves as tools for unholy purposes."

Pronouncement Opposed.

The pronouncement by the federal council was deprecated in a statement by the Rt. Rev. John J. Dunn, Catholic vicar general, bishop auxiliary of New York.

"The essential difference between the Catholic teaching . . . and that contained in the statement of the federal council," he said, "is that, according to the former, contraception is intrinsically wrong, wrong in itself, and therefore, can be justified by no set of circumstances whatever."

Panel Accepted Suddenly.

The defense now has only six peremptory challenges left and the state seven. The closing of the second panel, with which attorneys had struggled more than two days, came suddenly. Attorney Tyrrell Krum for the defense took up the examination of Edgeworth.

Q.—Will you give us a fair trial? A.—Yes.

Q.—Absolutely? A.—Yes.

"We accept the panel and ask that they be sworn," said Krum.

Herbert Thompson, 1368 52d street, an employé of the Merchants' Credit Guide, 19 South La Salle street, was next examined and has been accepted by both state and defense.

Harry L. Waller, a paint salesman, was excused because of objection to the death penalty.

Henry W. Kniffle, 2425 Lane place, sheet metal salesman, was excused by the defense. The defense also dismissed Robert D. Tratt, who runs a golf supply shop at 23 East Jackson boulevard. The defendant, Brothers, played golf a good deal last summer, and evidently did not like the looks of Tratt.

Edward Larson, 611 East 75th street, a carpenter, was questioned by both sides and remained in the box.

Prosecutor Makes Objection.

Isadore Klein, 3722 Wilson avenue, proprietor of vending machines, was accepted by the defense and dismissed by the state. In reading the list of witnesses to him, Krum referred to one address as that of the "so called board of strategy" in this case.

Assistant State's Attorney C. Wayland Brooks objected to this.

"Strike it out," said Judge Sabath.

Another question on the theory of reasonable doubt was objected to by Brooks.

"Proceed. We are getting along nicely," said the judge.

Hans Svest, a buyer of musical instruments, born in Germany, was accepted by the state, but dismissed by Krum.

Krum began to refer to the defendant as "this boy." State's attorneys' references to him were as "this fellow."

Henry Hauselman, 2457 Pensacola avenue, a printer, who has grown children, was passed temporarily by both sides, although he volunteered the information that he is a friend of Policeman Anthony Ruthy, who was at Michigan avenue and Randolph street when Lingle was killed, and who pursued the slayer.

Krum brought in through his questions that Ruthy had identified Frank Foster in this case, and indicated that Ruthy would be a witness for the defense.

Philip Hagerman, 906 North Karlov avenue, a street car motorman, was the last man called to the box. Attorneys wanted time in which to consider these last four men, and adjournment was taken until Monday morning.

Capone Draws Crowd Away.

The spectators' benches in the courtroom were nearly deserted at the early morning session because of a rival attraction down the hall—the appearance of Al Capone in the Felony court. When he had left, however, the crowd returned and remained all day.

Kelsie Stone, Forest Park; John Speiser, 1563 South 67th place; Peter Wiegman, 6625 South Laflin street, and Schlosser remained as candidates for second jury panel at the opening of court. Speiser, a painter and decorator, who formerly worked for the board of education, had been in the box for two days and regarded himself as a fixture. He was surprised yesterday morning when the state excused him by peremptory challenge.

Wiegman, a young clerk in the First National bank, was examined by Attorney Tyrrell Krum for the defense along new lines as follows:

Q.—Have you had much contact with the underworld? A.—No, sir.

Q.—Do you know what a stool pigeon is? A.—Yes, I do.

Assistant State's Attorney Brooks objected to this line of questions and was sustained.

Q. [By Brooks]—Do you think you could be a fair and impartial juror in this case? A.—I don't think I have had enough experience to judge the evidence. I understand some prominent men are among the witnesses, and that might influence me.

Q.—You don't think you could separate the wheat from the chaff in the testimony? A.—No, sir.

Jury Candidate Excused.

Wiegman was excused for cause. Then Tatel was questioned by Krum.

Q.—If it is shown here that an indictment for the murder of Lingle was returned against another man than Brothers, will you take that into consideration? A.—I will.

This question was a reference to the Frank Foster case. Krum says he will try to get Foster as well as Frank Bell into court. Bell, who is under sentence of death for the murder of Chris Patras, a restaurant manager, has stated that he drove the car in which Lingle's slayers rode, and that these men were Indiana gangsters. This story has not been accepted as true by the state.

W. C. Schleicker, 4551 South Halsted street, was questioned by both sides, and then was excused by agreement after a conference in chambers with Judge Sabath.

John O'Sullivan, 7301 South La Salle street, a freight checker, who is the father of nine children, was excused because of "very strong opinion."

Stanley Kizior, a machinist, born in Poland, was excused by state peremptory challenge.

ADJUST GARY CAR FARES.

The Indiana public service commission yesterday authorized an increase in Gary street car fares from 8 cents to 10 cents, with free transfers. There had previously been a 2 cent charge for transfers.

POLICE TRACING RACKET CLEWS IN ROONEY MURDER

Slain Labor Boss Tried to Muscle In, They Say.

The inquest into the murder of William J. Rooney, labor leader, who was shot to death on Friday morning near his home at 1517 North Austin boulevard, was continued yesterday until April 3 at the request of the police, who asked more time to continue their investigation. Chief of Detectives John Norton said he had found evidence that Rooney had tried to force his way into a number of rackets and might have been killed for his participation in any of them.

Chief Norton also said that Rooney had been sought for questioning on recent bombings of mercantile companies. An anonymous informant said Rooney was connected in some way with the bombing of the Merchandise Mart, which resulted in an order being sent out to bring Rooney in. He was out of the city at the time.

See Clew in Indictment.

Rooney was not included in the recent indictment of ten members of the Sheet Metal Workers' union, of which he was the head, and this omission was pointed to as a possible slew to his death because of the discontent caused in the union's ranks. The indictments charge conspiracy to restrain trade by means of a levy on contractors. Edward Rooney, brother of the labor leader, is among those indicted.

A possible political motive for the murder also was under investigation. Rooney was one of the directors of the Cook County Wage Earners' league, a purported nonpartisan organization which supports Mayor Thompson. In the present campaign Rooney shifted his allegiance to A. J. Cermak and brought many union men with him. A clash between union men in opposing ranks marked a Thompson loop meeting Thursday noon.

At the inquest police reported that the license plates on the killers' car had been stolen from Mrs. Margaret Kuber, 5547 North Washtenaw avenue. One set of plates was stolen from her last October and a duplicate set, secured later, also was taken.

Widow Is Questioned.

Police questioned Rooney's widow at the family's summer home near Antioch. She was unable to give any information to aid in the solution of his murder. She said that she knew of no enemies who might have prompted the attack.

In the maze of theories police were agreed only on one fact—that Rooney knew his slayers, because they called him by name as he waited for his car in front of his home before he was riddled with shotgun slugs. Rooney's car was delayed because a garage chauffeur had difficulty in starting it.

THOMPSON'S TRIAL IN DRAVES MURDER IS SET FOR APRIL 14

Crown Point, Ind., March 20.—[Special.]—David Thompson, host at the Gary liquor revel during which Arlene Draves was slain last Nov. 29, will be placed on trial April 14 for the rape and murder of the girl.

Prosecutor Robert G. Estill of Lake county, whose staff sent Virgil Kirkland to prison for life after a trial on the same charge at Valparaiso a week ago, announced today that Thompson would be the next of five defendants in the case to be tried.

Thompson, a former Gary city fireman, is 28 years old, married, and the father of one child. With two fellow defendants, Henry Shirk and Paul Barton, he is held in the Lake county jail here.

Another defendant, Leon Stanford, whom Defense Attorney Robert H. Moore hoped to have tried first, is in the Porter county jail at Valparaiso with Kirkland, who is awaiting imposition of sentence next Monday. Mr. Moore, who secured a change of venue for Stanford, indicated he would ask the same for Thompson.

POLICEMAN KILLS KIDNAP BANDIT IN AUTO GUN BATTLE

A bandit who kidnaped Detective Howard Doyle in the latter's automobile, and then attempted to rob him, was shot and killed by the policeman yesterday in a desperate struggle in the car at Oglesby avenue and 68th street. The dead robber was identified as Edward Rose, 517 West 64th street.

Doyle, off duty, was sitting in his car in 68th street, near Stony Island avenue, waiting for a young woman companion. Rose stepped on the running board, revealed a revolver, and then sat alongside the policeman. He ordered Doyle to drive east. Near Oglesby avenue, the gunman ordered Doyle to hand over his money, but the policeman protested, saying he would have to stop his car first.

The ruse was successful. Doyle halted, and fumbled in his pocket ostensibly for money. Instead he grasped his revolver. At the same moment he seized the weapon of the bandit, forcing it downward. Rose pressed the trigger, but the bullet plowed into the floor of the car, and Doyle fired five shots. All took effect.

SEEK TRIAL OF 4 EX-OFFICIALS OF VILLA PARK

A petition calling on State's Attorney Chauncey W. Reed of Du Page county to prosecute four former officials of Villa Park under indictment on charges of conspiracy to defraud the village of approximately $15,000, was being circulated yesterday in the village by a committee of taxpayers. James W. Burns, author of the petition, charges the prosecutor has been lax in his duties in not putting the defendants on trial in more than three years.

The indictments were returned on Jan. 21, 1928, against William F. Bothold, former president of the village board, and W. E. Fredrick, Albert Hrach and Charles Tonzin, former trustees. The four officials conspired to the board of local improvements. They were alleged to have voted themselves about $25,000 out of a $2,000,000 special assessment bond issue, ostensibly to compensate them for supervising the work of sewer and lighting improvements for which the money had been voted.

DREISER SLAPS SINCLAIR LEWIS AND THAT ENDS IT

"It was an outrageous, scandalous affair," said Lewis, the only American ever awarded the Nobel prize for literature.

DOROTHY THOMAS.
From whose book 3,000 words are alleged to have been stolen.

Dresier's comment was twice as long—it contained twelve words.

"Rash and unwarranted insults were rewarded with two slaps upon the face."

He declined even monosyllabic further discussion.

The men, probably the two best known of American writers, met in a room off the dining room of the Metropolitan club where they, with 25 other men of letters, were attending a dinner given by Ray Long, editor of the Cosmopolitan magazine, in honor of Boris Pilnyak, Russian communist writer.

Lewis' Fighting Words.

At the dinner Lewis had said:

"I feel disinclined to speak in the presence of a man who has stolen 1,000 words from my wife's [Dorothy Thompson's] book on Russia, and before two sage critics who have lamented the action of the Nobel committee in selecting me as America's representative writer."

There was a moment's strained silence as Lewis sat down, but nothing happened. Soon afterward the company adjourned to another room for coffee and cigars.

Two Quick Slaps.

Suddenly, apparently to the surprise of the others, the open palm of Dreiser's hand swung out, striking Lewis sharply on the cheek. Then he struck again.

"I didn't strike back," Lewis said, "because unfortunately some one standing behind me grabbed my arm."

Other guests jumped between the two and the disturbance was over. Both remained at the party and were among the last to leave.

"Can't two men have a private squabble," Lewis said, "without all this fuss being made about it?"

"I don't care to be quoted about the incident," he added. "But what I said about 3,000 words being stolen from my wife's book still stands. No, I don't intend to sue any one. The incident is closed."

Lewis again called attention to the 3,000 words he charged Dreiser had "stolen" from Dorothy Thompson's [Mrs. Lewis'] book. He pointed out that Mrs. Lewis' story was published six months before Dreiser's book came out. Dreiser had explained that the similarity of text was due to the fact that both Mrs. Lewis and he took their material from the same source.

HANGS HIMSELF IN HOME.

Thomas Murphy, 27 years old, of 7827 Honore street, hanged himself yesterday. His brother, Jerry, who found the body suspended by sash cord from a hinge on the bathroom door of their home, said Thomas had been ill and out of work.

WHO WAS THE VICTIM?

Police last night were investigating the mystery of an automobile, bearing a Michigan license, which had been riddled with bullets. The car was parked at Sheffield and Cornelia avenues.

A NIGHT LETTER from Ring Lardner

Tucson, Ariz., March 20.—[Special.]—After quite an argument between the city council and a committee of citizens and the owner of the local motion picture theater, the last named has been permitted to show "The Birth of a Nation" in Tucson for one week as advertised. The committee of citizens was afraid the picture might stir up racial feeling and the council members were inclined to agree, but changed their minds when the proprietor of the theater gave them a preview. Personally, I think I will save my spending money for Charlie Chaplin in "The Pawnshop" or perhaps the first installment of "The Perils of Pauline."

CAPONE BROTHERS BOTH WIN DELAY OF THEIR TRIALS

Al Up for Vagrancy; Ralph for Liquor.

Al Capone and his brother, Ralph, made separate court appearances yesterday for arraignment on vagrancy and prohibition conspiracy charges, respectively. The vagrancy trial of Al, public enemy No. 1, was continued to April 3 by Judge Frank M. Padden of the Felony court. The conspiracy case against Ralph was set for trial on May 11 by Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson.

Al Capone's lawyer, Michael Ahern, objected to the filing of an amended complaint by Assistant State's Attorney James A. Brown, on the ground that it was insufficient.

"It charges," said Ahern, "that the defendant is habitually neglectful of employment, that he has failed to provide lawfully for his family, that he loiters about houses of ill fame, that he has been convicted of a crime against the state of Illinois. The crime is not specified."

Judge Questionse Policeman.

Judge Padden then questioned Policeman Roy Van Herik, who signed the complaint on which Judge John H. Lyle issued the vagrancy warrant against Capone.

Q.—Do you know of any crime of which the defendant has been convicted by the state? A.—No, not this state.

Q.—Do you know whether he has any lawful means of support? A.—Not of my own knowledge.

"It is evident," said Judge Padden, "that the complainant doesn't know anything about the defendant. This man is well known throughout the United States. Surely there is some one on the Chicago police force who knows enough to sign the complaint. I want you to find a policeman who is qualified to sign it."

Ralph Capone Arraigned.

Ralph Capone was arraigned on an indictment charging him and seventeen others with conspiracy to violate the dry laws at the Cotton club and the Montmartre, Cicero night resort. Three of those indicted have not been apprehended and four others failed to appear, because of the claim that they had not received notice.

Capone and the other defendants who did appear pleaded not guilty.

Mystery in Shooting

Five bullets were fired early this morning into a parked automobile bearing the 1931 Michigan license number 517,256 as it stood in front of the "Sheffield Hut" at 3458 Sheffield avenue. When Sergt. John McSween and a detective bureau squad arrived they were informed by residents of the neighborhood that the shooting came from a passing automobile.

Apparently no one was in the car when the shots were fired, and the police assumed that an attempt at murder had failed.

A little later a woman who said she was Mrs. Virginia Lee, 3606 North Francisco avenue, appeared to claim the automobile. She said that her husband, William Lee, had called her to report that there had been a shooting and had instructed her to get it and take it home. Because she could not tell where her husband, whom she described as a paint salesman, had gone, the police kept her in custody.

SPRING USHERS OUT CHICAGO'S DRIEST WINTER

6th Warmest on Record at Weather Bureau.

Spring begins officially this morning, ushering out the driest and the sixth warmest winter on record at the government weather bureau. The vernal equinox will occur at 8:07 a. m., when the sun crosses the equator for its annual six months' swing in the northern hemisphere.

Although Forecaster C. A. Donnel puts no credence in the superstition that stormy weather and rain must occur at equinox, probable rain or snow is the forecast for today. He calls it a meteorological coincidence.

Least Amount of Snowfall.

The government weather bureau limits winter to the calendar months of December, January, and February, and excluding the 16.4 inch snow of March 7 and 8, the second largest on record here, the past winter was the lightest in point of snowfall. There was a total of only 7.4 inches, as compared with the 60 year average of 26.8 for the winter months.

The rainfall also was the lightest on record, there being a total of only 1.60 inches as against the normal of 6.98. The winter of 1919-'20 was almost as shy of rain, with a total of 1.94 inches. The rain this winter also was the lightest of record for Illinois, and farmers suffered not only from crop damage but from water shortage.

The mean temperature for the winter was 6.1 degrees above the normal mean of 26.3, and the lowest temperature was 6 above zero on Jan. 21. The mercury dropped to 1 above on Nov. 28, but that was before winter started. The only other winter seasons of record when the mercury did not go to zero or below were 1881-'82, when it was 1 above on Jan. 17, and 1905-'06, when it reached a minimum of 6 above on Feb. 2.

Record by Months.

The mean temperature of December was 29.7, slightly above the normal, the average daily excess being 0.9. The total precipitation, .27 inches, was 1.77 inches below normal. January was markedly warm and dry, the third mildest and third driest on record. The daily mean temperature was above normal on all except five days and the total precipitation, .57 inches, was 1.33 below normal. February also was warm and dry, the mean temperature being 9.3 above normal and the total precipitation, .76 inches, 1.38 less than normal.

Lake Michigan was open virtually all the winter and there were few casualties and only one important storm, that of March 7 when the wind velocity reached 40 miles an hour on the lake front.

Condition of Boy Paralysis Victim Is More Hopeful

The condition of Charles Caughey, 7 years old, who has been fighting lung and throat paralysis since March 6, was reported slightly more hopeful last night at St. Francis hospital in Evanston. Charles has been in coma for most of the time since Monday. Yesterday he roused sufficiently to take nourishment, and to nod his head in response to questions. In his hand all day long he clutched a handkerchief sent through the mails by a well wisher.

CERMAK LEADS POLL 2 TO 1 IN 3 G. O. P. WARDS

Mayor Shows Big Loss from 1927 Percentage.

Pre-Campaign Poll

Candidate.	Previous vote.	Yesterday's vote.	Total to date.	Per cent to date.
Cermak [D]	21,280	786	22,066	63.74
Thomp'n [R.]	11,875	398	12,273	35.45
Stout [A.]	277	3	280	.81
Totals	33,432	1,187	34,619	100.00

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

A. J. Cermak, Democratic candidate for mayor, obtained two straw votes to one for Mayor Thompson in yesterday's poll. This was taken in the so-called central Republican wards—Twenty-eighth, Thirty-fifth, and Thirty-sixth—of the west side. The votes were collected at motion picture theaters, and totaled 1,187. They were distributed among the three candidates on THE TRIBUNE straw ballot, which was printed before the election commissioners erased all names except two, as follows:

Candidate.	Politics.	Votes.	Per cent.
Cermak	[Dem.]	786	66.22
Thompson	[Rep.]	398	33.53
Stout	[A. Nat'l]	3	.25
Totals		1,187	100.00

In the last presidential election these three wards gave an aggregate of 61,896 votes, and President Hoover obtained 55.25 per cent of them. This is comparable with the 33.53 per cent of the straw votes obtained by Thompson.

66 Per Cent for Cermak.

In 1927 Thompson received more than 60 per cent of the votes of these wards. In the straw vote yesterday Cermak received 66.22 per cent.

In a previous poll, on street corners in these three wards, Thompson obtained 36.26 per cent of the votes, as compared to 33.53 per cent in the theater poll. Cermak, in the street corner poll, got 56.18 per cent.

A probable explanation of the variance between the two polls is the difference in the character of them. Previous experience in taking straw votes has given the belief that between the percentages of the two polls lies the true strength of each candidate. Cermak probably is not as strong as the theater poll indicates, nor as weak as the street corner poll shows, and Thompson, while he probably is not so weak as the theater poll shows, is not as strong as the street corner poll would indicate.

Mr. Bilkey is the son of Mrs. Charles Bilkey of Wisconsin and the late Mr. Bilkey.

CERMAK TELLS HIS PLANS FOR REBUILDING CITY

Employment, Crime, and Taxes Called Issues.

BY PARKE BROWN.

The first thorough discussion of the issues of the mayoralty campaign by either candidate gave A. J. Cermak, Democratic nominee, the center of the municipal political stage yesterday.

In an extended address before the City club, Cermak talked at length about the plans he will put into effect if he is elected. He gave first importance to the task of surrounding himself with the best men whose services are obtainable. When this is done, he said, he says he will tackle aggressively what he sees as the three greatest problems of the city—unemployment, crime and taxation.

Thompson Continues Attack.

While this analysis was being presented, his Republican opponent, Mayor Thompson, continued to campaign as he has ever since the primary campaign opened last January. His speeches during the day were attacks upon those who oppose him.

Cermak told his City club audience that his first great service to Chicago if he is elected will be the resulting change of administration. This brought an approving laugh from a few.

"This," he said, "will be notice to the world that we have the capacity of cleansing ourselves of the pollution that infests our body politic.

Will Resign County Post.

"Having accomplished that, I shall resign from the presidency of the county board (which carries with it the presidency of the forest preserve district), and devote myself entirely to the rebuilding of Chicago's standing among the great cities of the world."

He said that he would order a complete scientific survey of the city's affairs immediately and then give his attention to searching for good men to take part in his administration.

"At the head of every department," he said, "will be placed a man whose character, training, and ability will challenge the most searching scrutiny. They will constitute the responsible advisers and co-workers of the mayor and the city council, and I shall demand of them all unrelenting toil until graft, corruption, inefficiency, and waste are ruthlessly uprooted from every part of the city's government.

Makes Pledge About Schools.

"I pledge myself to appoint to the board of education men and women of high character and of demonstrated devotion to civic welfare; to defend the public school system from political interference; to leave the board of education and the superintendent of schools free to conduct the schools solely for the welfare of the children of Chicago.

"I also pledge myself to give all possible support to measures designed to obtain adequate revenues for the school so that Chicago may rise to the standard of other large cities in pupil class membership, in teachers' salaries, and in increased seating facilities, and to use my influence to secure the proper and efficient operation of the Otis law in its application to the administration of the public schools."

Wants Housing Commission.

He said that he would ask council authority for the creation of commissions on housing and on recreation.

Taking up the problem of unemployment, he said the situation locally had been aggravated by the refusal of the voters to approve bond issues for the present city administration, by the refusal of federal and state appropriations for the World's Fair, and the transfer of many big conventions to other cities.

"The city's bureau of employment," he continued, "was wrecked by the present administration and no serious effort has been made by it to deal with the widespread distress throughout the city with the exception of a foolish attempt to restore prosperity by juggling with trading stamps."

Unemployment, he said, is the city's greatest problem, which he proposed to meet with renewed activity in public improvements, the building of a subway, an injection of new life into the World's Fair, and the restoration of Chicago's old standing as the favorite convention city of the country.

Can Break Crime Rule.

"The strangle hold of the crooks can be broken," he said forcibly after citing the present administration's failure to show progress in the fight against crime. "So much of crime as is due to prohibition, vice, or gambling can be effectively choked, not by molesting the petty offenders, but by uprooting and destroying the organized syndicates."

He said that the detective work of the police force has been wrecked by political favoritism, which also has ruined discipline throughout the department.

"Politics and policing do not mix," he said. "I pledge the separation of the law enforcing machinery of the city from every form of political entanglement. The police belong to the people and not to a party or faction.

"I promise unrelenting war on the gangs of criminals who have made life and property unsafe in this city. It is my ambition to make Chicago the safest city in the world."

Plans for New Chief.

He said his selection of a chief of police and a civil service commission and the creation of personnel department will be guided by that ambition.

He then discussed the problem of mounting taxation and his proposal to check it by the elimination of waste and graft and by the consolidation of local governing bodies.

"Gentlemen," he said in closing, "Chicago is entitled to the change that its citizens are praying for. The whole world is waiting to see what will happen here on April 7."

Warns Against Overconfidence.

At a meeting of the Democratic ward committeemen in the Hotel Sherman, Clayton F. Smith, chairman of the managing committee, warned the organization against overconfidence.

"We are in the position of an army," he said, "that has broken the enemy's line and driven him from his advanced positions without actually sweeping him from the field. Under these conditions we must dig in and prepare to hold the ground we have won against a possible counter attack. Then we can sweep forward to victory."

The German-American Liberty league, a nonpartisan league consisting of 49 societies, which took an important part in the election of Senator James Hamilton Lewis, went on record last night through its executive board for Cermak. The board, including Ernst J. Kruetgen, Oscar F. Mayer, Ernst Buehler, Leopold Neumann, William Rothmann, Ernst Hummel, Joseph Sieben, and Louis J. Link, adopted resolutions urging German-Americans to forget party lines and vote for Cermak.

MRS. W. S. HEFFERAN ASKS SCHOOL PATRONS TO WORK FOR CERMAK

A letter will enter the mails today bearing the signature of Mrs. William S. Hefferan, member of the board of education, urging her friends and patrons of the public schools to support A. J. Cermak for mayor.

"You are interested in the welfare of Chicago's public school," says Mrs. Hefferan in her letter. "I therefore urge you most earnestly to lend your aid in electing Mr. Cermak mayor of our city.

"He is an able and conscientious executive, familiar with municipal and governmental affairs, and I am confident politics will not find its way into the public schools system under his administration of the city's affairs.

"Mr. Cermak has made a fine record as president of the county board. He is known as an energetic laborer for public good in public office. Chicago needs a man of his caliber and ability as it never has before. And particularly do the public schools of Chicago need to be safeguarded by a man of his type."

POLLS OFFICIALS ARE SENTENCED FOR CONTEMPT

Four election officials in the 28th precinct of the 42d ward were sentenced to jail by County Judge Jarecki yesterday on charges growing out of the primary election in April of 1930. They are Frank Hurley, Republican judge; Bertram J. Reeves, Democratic judge; Oscar J. Snell, Democratic clerk; and Alfred Montgomery, Republican clerk.

During the hearing it was brought out that instead of placing the names of voters in the poll books as the ballots were cast, the officials copied the names later from the registration list. The judge ruled that there was no evidence of fraud but found the defendants in contempt of court on grounds of negligence.

All of the men had been in jail while awaiting trial and were given credit for this time by the judge. Snell and Montgomery, who received four month sentences, were set free. Both had been in jail for more than that time. Hurley, who was in jail for six days, must serve 114 days of a four month sentence, and Reeves must serve 19 days of his two month sentence.

FOUR DEATHS IN AUTO ACCIDENTS MAKE TOLL 249

Four deaths yesterday increased the Cook county motor toll for the year to 249. The victims:

Morris Raitzer, 32 years old, 3329 West Congress street. Died at the county hospital of injuries received March 16 when he was struck by an auto while crossing Jackson boulevard at California avenue. The driver was Albert Nelson, 1537 South Avers avenue.

Anton Pokornowski, 56 years old, 2836 North Lawndale avenue. Died at the county hospital of injuries received March 4 when he was struck by a hit and run motorist at Central Park avenue and Wolfram street.

Albert R. Nickerson, 50 years old, 437 West 63d street, a painter. Fatally injured by the automobile of a hit and run driver while crossing St. Louis avenue at 69th street. He was found unconscious in the street.

Frank Lilly, 42 years old, 914 North Kedzie avenue. Fatally injured when he was struck by an automobile driven by Frank Weiss, 1537 South Avers avenue, at Grand and Kedzie avenues. Weiss took the injured man to the Lutheran Memorial hospital, where he died a few minutes later.

The body of a 7 year old boy who was fatally injured Thursday night when struck by an automobile at 44th street and Ashland avenue was identified yesterday as that of Edward Tamborski, 4739 South Hermitage avenue.

WOMAN SLAYER GETS LIFE TERM.

San Antonio, Tex., March 20.—(AP)—Mrs. Clara Uhr, given a death sentence recently for the ax slaying of her husband and granted a new trial subsequently, today pleaded guilty when arraigned the second time and was given life imprisonment.

FLAMES CAUSE $75,000 LOSS IN W. SIDE GARAGE

Fire which started in the rear of the Central Park garage, 1101 South Central Park avenue early this morning, for which a 4-11 alarm was sounded, destroyed about 25 passenger automobiles and fifteen trucks. The damage was estimated at $75,000. The flames were confined to the section of the garage on Fillmore street.

Adjoining the garage on the east is a three-story flat building the occupants of which were aroused by Policeman John Koprak of the Fillmore station who carried out the 4 months old baby of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Wardle, whose flat became filled with smoke. The garage is owned by Nathan Komaiko, 3257 Grenshaw street.

HOOVER DECLINES TO FISH FROM DECK OF WARSHIP

Catches Up on Sleep on Caribbean Cruise.

BY JOHN HERRICK.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

U. S. S. ARIZONA, March 20.—President Hoover is going to Porto Rico and the Virgin islands in the same spirit of scientific investigation in which, as a civil engineer, he inspected mining property. Before advising how the development of the island possessions ought to proceed, the President declares he wants to look the ground over for himself.

At the first press conference aboard the battleship Arizona this afternoon, he waved aside the suggestion that the speech he is scheduled to make at San Juan, Porto Rico, will contain any statement of policies. The President explained that his speech will be confined to a reply to the island's greetings.

Wears Blue Suit, White Shoes.

"Before laying down a policy," he said, "one must get a first hand view of the situation and be able to visualize conditions."

He received a score of newspaper men, who are accompanying him, in the captain's quarters. His white canvas shoes added a nautical touch to his blue summer business suit. He joked with the correspondents, challenging them to get up early and play medicine ball. Mr. Hoover was amused at the thought that as commander in chief of the navy, if he wanted to limit the correspondent's dispatches, he could raise the already high rate for messages.

His chief concern, he admitted, has been in catching up on needed sleep and advised his interrogators to do likewise. In fact, Mr. Hoover may not even play medicine ball each morning.

"There are no rules on this trip," the President added.

"Can't Fish from a Warship."

To an inquiry whether he intended to prolong his trip for a day or so to do some fishing, he smiled, shook his head and answered:

"It would be rather inappropriate to use so big a boat to catch small fish, would it not?"

He repeated he has no intention of stopping anywhere else but the islands.

"I'm going to stick close to American soil," he commented.

The Arizona tonight passed the halfway mark to Ponce, Porto Rico, where the President's party will disembark Monday morning. A squall rocked the warship early this morning and the President, after looking at the rain through a window, decided to remain in the captain's cabin. Only after the storm had passed did he venture on deck.

Crew "Dresses Up."

The crew this afternoon scurried about putting on final touches to the battleship, which were postponed in order to get to sea on time yesterday. Pots of paint, cans of brass polish, and the well known "holy stone" and mud were used and tonight the warship is commencing to shine like an automobile show window.

The crew is continuing its policy of showing the visitors a good time. Officers conducted them on a tour of the turrets and demonstrated how big 14 inch guns could be aimed and fired at a target 20 miles away with the same accuracy as a marksman shoots a rifle.

FAMILY ACCUSED AS SQUATTERS IN COUNTRY CHURCH

Charges that Clarence Spiering and his family moved into the Hickory Corners Methodist church, three miles east of Antioch, as squatters will be heard this afternoon before Justice of the Peace William H. Regan at Antioch. Spiering is defendant in a civil suit filed by Emmet King, chairman of the board of trustees of the church.

Spiering was arrested three weeks ago when he took possession of the church after his house, a short distance away, burned. He was held to the Lake county grand jury for the October term on a charge of malicious mischief.

The church site was provided in 1848 by the will of Benjamin Ames with the stipulation it could be used as long as church services were held. Spiering, through his attorney, Charles Jack, said last night that services had not been held for years. He also asserted that part of the old Ames tract is the property of his mother.

MORE CHARGES FILED AGAINST MAYOR WALKER

Accusations Presented by Service Institute.

New York, March 20.—[Special.]—Further charges of inefficiency against Mayor James J. Walker and a request for an investigation were sent to Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt today by William H. Allen, director of the Institute for Public Service. Mr. Allen did not disclose the nature or the number of specifications beyond saying that they were sent to supplement rather than to duplicate the charges already laid before the governor by the city affairs committee.

"Because we regard this present situation the most crucial in thirty years," said Mr. Allen, "we feel that every citizen and every agency that has concrete provable evidence of governmental inefficiency owes it to the governor, the legislature, and the public to contribute his testimony at this time.

Hopes for New Era.

"If there is an investigation now there will be a new era of constructive and constant citizen attention to city and county government."

The charges were forwarded as the actual work of the investigation of the district attorney, opened with a verbal clash, at the conclusion of which Commissioner Samuel Seabury and John Kirkland Clark, special counsel, ushered Siegfried F. Hartman, an associate of Samuel Untermyer, who is counsel for Thomas C. T. Crain, from the offices of the inquiry.

Mr. Hartman, who said he represented Mr. Crain, appeared at the offices of the investigation with Albert B. Unger, chief assistant district attorney, who had been "invited" to appear for examination.

Untermyer's Aid Refused.

Despite the fact that Commissioner Seabury had refused Mr. Untermyer's offer of cooperation, which was based upon the condition that Mr. Crain be represented at all secret hearings and receive copies of the testimony, both men were shown into Mr. Seabury's office.

Mr. Unger was sworn.

Then Mr. Hartman demanded the right to be present and also requested copies of the testimony. He cited sections of the public officers' law, which, he said, supported his claim.

Commissioner Seabury, in turn, cited other sections of the same law. After Mr. Hartman had entered what he later described as a "firm protest," he was escorted from the office by Mr. Clark.

Meanwhile Tammany Hall's board of strategy was reported to be at work upon a detailed answer to the charges to city affairs committee filed with Gov. Roosevelt against Mayor Walker.

Police Raiders Seize 2,000 Books as Obscene

Oscar Schultz, 30 years old, was arrested and 2,000 books and pamphlets described as obscene were seized last night in a raid by Police Sergeants Harold Fogarty and Thomas Kelly in a bookshop at 1128 South Michigan avenue. The police were accompanied by the Rev. Philip Yarrow, superintendent of the Illinois Vigilance association. In a similar raid earlier in the day at 1055 West Madison street several thousand pieces of allegedly indecent writings were confiscated.

WOMAN FOUND SHOT TO DEATH.

Mrs. Genevieve Schaefer, 28 years old, was found dead late yesterday in her home at 6042 Harper avenue, shot through the head. Woodlawn police said that she had committed suicide.

Work, His Motto

San Francisco, Cal., March 20.—(AP)—Eighty-seven years old and with an outlook on the future as "bright as a dollar," Capt. Robert Dollar, dean of Pacific coast shipping men, observed his birthday anniversay today by practicing his oft expressed advice.

"Hard work and a hopeful heart are two important aids to success," Capt. Dollar said.

First Snow in Far North Ends Forest Fire Danger

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

REGINA, Sask., March 20.—Northern Saskatchewan's first snowstorm in three months today nipped threatening forest fires and relieved anxiety in 50,000 square miles of bush country. The north had experienced a snowless winter and timber is like tinder.

ELECT DEMOCRAT TO SAVE CHICAGO, IS PLEA OF WISE

Dr. Stephen S. Wise, rabbi of the Free synagogue of New York and an outstanding critic of the Democratic [Tammany] administration of that city, believes the election of a Democratic mayor would be the most wholesome political action Chicago could take at the present time.

Won't Talk About Walker.

Being vice chairman of the city affairs committee of New York which, on Tuesday, filed charges of corruption with Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, demanding the removal of Mayor James J. Walker, Rabbi Wise was asked how New York civic conditions compared with those in Chicago.

"I won't talk about Walker but I will tell you what I think of Mayor Thompson," he said.

"There is much to be said about the New York case, but inasmuch as the matter is now in quasi judicial review by the governor, I cannot comment.

"I wish, however, that a sense of the niceties of hospitality did not prevent me from telling Chicago what I think about the present administration of this city. Whether Chicago will permit itself to be disgraced again by the administration under which it has suffered shame in the sight of the world and hurt to itself for a number of years, is a question which Chicago voters must answer.

Wants Sincere Voters.

"If they vote with their consciences and with a sincere sense of duty, I know what their answer will be. If they vote as blind, misguided, fanatical partisans, then of course the worst will happen to Chicago again.

"Perhaps my citizenship in New York hardly confers upon me the right to comment too vigorously upon what is happening in Chicago, but as I think of the administration of certain American cities, Chicago and New York included, I can only say, 'How long, O Lord, how long?'"

5. There is lack of enough work to keep all prisoners busy. An appropriation of $150,000 would enable the prison administration to build a textile factory that would furnish the state with all its cloth requirements.

Guard Selection Under Fire.

4. Prison guards, selected under civil service, are often incompetent and sometimes crooked, and it would be better to let the warden select his own men without regard to set regulations.

5. Narcotics frequently are smuggled into the prison and sold to the convicts at $1 a "bang," or dose. Whisky bottles are sometimes found and the convicts constantly attempt to make alcoholic liquors of fruits and vegetables.

6. The shooting of three convicts to death as they were trying to escape on Feb. 22 was justifiable, and the guards should not be charged with brutality because of that action.

7. Solitary confinement usually lasts from five to fifteen days, and solitary prisoners chained to the bars are examined daily to see that their constitutions will stand any strain incident to the punishment.

Warden Describes Himself.

Warden Hill began by stating that he was 52 years old, that he had been in charge of the two prisons since Aug. 12, 1929, and that he came from Galesburg. He was formerly a postal clerk, a postal inspector, and a salesman of automobiles in Europe. Before being appointed warden he was engaged only in managing his property at Galesburg. He said he had no experience with police or prisoners until the summer of 1929. His military experience was gained in the Spanish war.

Asked about what caused the late riots, in which three convicts were killed and four others wounded, the warden said:

"I must go back to the time before I came here. I had heard then of the unrest. When I got here I went to the Stateville dining hall and told the assembled men what my policies would be and promised then to help them with the parole board all I could.

Rumors of Riots Begin.

"That conversation, I believe, was an important factor in keeping down riots for a year and a half. There were rumors of riots in the fall of 1929 and in the spring of 1930, and I took all the precautions I could. I got Capt. Stege of the Chicago detective bureau to promise help if it were needed and I added as many extra guards as possible and trained them in the use of arms.

"There was a small riot about a year ago which was easily put down, and another about eight weeks ago, when the men complained they had been fed cereal instead of bacon for breakfast three days in a row. We called in the ringleader, a prisoner only twenty-eight days here, and he apologized. We did not even punish him."

Speaking of the Saturday riot at Joliet, the warden declared that 70 per cent of the convicts voluntarily went back to their cells. He next described the later riot at Stateville, asserting that it all was started and principally carried out by a group of felons who kindled the fires in the furniture factory. He complimented some of the prisoners who had saved the motor room by locking it against their revolting fellow prisoners.

"I don't want to criticize the parole board," he said, in answer to questions of Representatives Little and Igoe, "but, as I understand it, the basic cause of the trouble is the treatment of the ten year to life men. These are prevented from getting paroles as soon as other prisoners who were sentenced for the same crimes but under the changed law that gives them one year to life terms.

"Twelve times a year we have turmoil here. Cases are presented to a subcommittee of the parole board, which makes no decision, but passes a recommendation on to the full board. The men are always anxious until their tickets are back. Nine out of ten of those who have hopes built up for parole get a jolt.

Suggests Judges Fix Maximum.

He gave next the considered opinion that it would be better to have the judges who sentence men fix a maximum term, as they are more familiar with the men and their possible return to good citizenship than the parole board, which he said made iron clad rules that took no consideration of individuals.

In speaking of the overcrowding of the prisons, Warden Hill said that the total convict population of Illinois had doubled since 1920, that there had been an increase of 1,200 at Joliet and Stateville since Jan. 1, 1929, and of 512 in the twin prisons since March of last year. Forty-five prisoners, sent to the prisons yesterday with commitment papers to start their sentences, were returned to county jails because there was no space for them.

Urges More Pay for Guards.

Guards, said the warden, are paid $115 a month at the start, get $125 after three months and rise to a maximum salary of $150 a month. He suggested that the minimum pay should be $155, on the ground that this would attract a better class of men to the work. Whenever disloyalty of any kind is discovered the guilty guards are discharged, he said.

It is obvious, he asserted, that some of the guards must have smuggled newspapers into the prison, as a ban was placed on all outside information long before the riot at the old penitentiary last Saturday. Investigations so far had failed, he added, to show how narcotics and liquor were brought in.

"Prisoners," the warden averred, "would rather be in a tough prison, where discipline is maintained strictly, but where the hope of early return to normal society is held, than to live in one more comfortable and loosely run, where their hope of getting out is delayed."

The legislators then quizzed him on the death of Joseph Coakley, who was found dead while undergoing solitary confinement, and on the shooting to death of three men as they were trying to escape on Washington's birthday. Both of these incidents occurred at the old prison. Warden Hill said he knew nothing about Coakley except that the coroner's jury said he died a natural death. He suggested that other prison officials were directly familiar with Coakley's case.

Defends Escape Shooting.

Concerning the escape shooting, he said that a plot had been discovered several weeks before that, when a bundle with saws in it was tossed over the wall. Five men, known to the prison authorities, were involved in it. These men were watched, but instead of throwing them into irons a detail of guards with orders to shoot was established outside.

This has been the subject of criticism, but the warden defended it. Fifty or more men might have been involved, he said, and it was decided to stop them with rifle fire if they tried it.

"Wasn't it your duty to transfer these men and break up the plot?" he was asked.

"No," the warden replied. "It would be an all time job to try to separate all the men who might try to escape. Every man should be given his chance to escape. It is up to us to stop them."

Representative Thon asked if three lives could not have been saved by capturing instead of killing the men. To this Warden Hill responded that ordinarily they would be shot only if that were necessary. Two of the men refused to halt at command, he said. Representative Igoe asked if one of the men had not been shot as he clung, helpless, to a roof. The warden was familiar with that only by hearsay, he said.

Col. Whipp Is Questioned.

Col. Frank D. Whipp, state superintendent of prisons, followed Warden Hill on the stand and in general supported his views. Today the committee will hear the Rev. George L. Whitmeyer, chaplain who resigned under pressure and made charges of brutality, and the Rev. Eligius Weir, Catholic chaplain at Stateville, whose expressed opinions are different. The Rev. Mr. Whitmeyer was characterized as a liar by Warden Hill.

The prisoners continued last night locked in their cells. At the plea of the legislative committee members, however, the prison officials agreed to make strong efforts to feed them more than water and bread. Cheese and bologna were added to the diet last night. All privileges, including visits, receipt of mail, and radio and picture entertainment, remain forbidden.

Parole Board's Hands Tied, Carlstrom Says; Explains the "10 Year to Life" Situation

Only executive clemency can aid the group of ten year to life convicts in the state prisons at Joliet and Stateville whose antagonism to the state board of pardons and paroles has been blamed for the recent riots. This was indicated by Attorney General Oscar Carlstrom yesterday.

Mr. Carlstrom reviewed the operation of the state robbery laws, under which most of the complaints against the parole board have arisen, and cited the legal situation which he said makes it impossible for the ten year to life prisoners to obtain clemency from the parole board until they have served their minimum sentence.

Reviews Change in Laws.

"Originally the penalty for robbery with a gun was imprisonment for any term of years or life," said the attorney general. "Owing to the outbreak of crime and holdups which came after the close of the war the state legislature in 1919 amended the law to make it more strict and set the minimum penalty for robbery with a gun at imprisonment for ten years, with the maximum at life.

"After this law had been in effect for several years there was much agitation against it because the state's attorneys were having great difficulty in finding juries that would convict under such a severe minimum penalty. That was why so many charges of robbery with a gun were changed to less serious charges in order to obtain convictions. In 1927 the law was amended to reduce the minimum penalty again to one year.

Problem for Parole Board.

"Between 700 and 800 robbers were convicted and sentenced under the ten year to life law. The question came before the parole board as to whether it could parole these men before the expiration of their minimum sentence.

On that question the attorney general, basing his action on the settled opinions of the Illinois Supreme court, gave an opinion that these convicts must serve their minimum terms before becoming eligible for parole.

"It is clearly the law that the parole board has not the power to reduce the minimum sentence of any court, and there was no other opinion that could be given. In the opinion we suggested the means by which the governor could act, if thought advisable, by granting conditional pardons."

Cites a Case in Point.

Mr. Carlstrom cited a case in which the Supreme court had ruled that the ten year to life convicts must serve their minimum sentence. It involved one of these prisoners who had been granted a parole before he had served his minimum term. Because of this the prison warden refused to liberate him.

The prisoner obtained a writ of habeas corpus in a Cook county court and was freed on the writ. The attorney general at once went before the Supreme court for a writ of mandamus to expunge the order of the Cook County court. The writ of mandamus was granted and the order expunged.

MRS. KUB BARES POLICE SECRETS BEFORE JURORS

Grilled for Hours at Surprise Session.

jury were intermittent, being interrupted by her outside trips. One of the trips was to her home where she procured the telltale files. Where the other visits were made was not revealed. During her absences, two other witnesses, Ned Ragland, Negro, reputed to be Mrs. Kub's husband, and George Miller, said to have been her chauffeur at one time, were called.

Brings Back Records.

Ragland was seized when he visited the Criminal court building. He was taken before the grand jury, questioned, and sent out with policemen to a south side home, the home, it was said, of a relative. Ragland reappeared two hours later carrying a stack of papers. Whether they were a part of Mrs. Kub's files was not indicated. Miller was quizzed briefly and, with the Negro, eventually released.

After Miller and Ragland had testified, Mrs. Kub was recalled to the jury chambers, and remained there until 6:30 when a recess to 8 p. m. was taken. From 8 o'clock to midnight she was locked in the room, explaining her duplicate reports.

When the jury adjourned, Mrs. Kub stood outside the door, and remarked: "Now I want to go home." Foreman Farmar talked with her. He is reported to have said:

"We would like to let you go home, Mrs. Kub, but we can't now. All we can do is to report to the court Monday what you have done to help us."

Shielded by Grand Jurors.

Mrs. Kub was shielded from interviewers and photographers by the grand jurors, who formed a cordon about her, and escorted her to the county jail. This was considered unusual, and evidenced, it was said, her importance to the grand jury. From one source, it was unofficially reported that Mrs. Kub "sang plenty."

Mrs. Kub broke into the police investigation in January over the case of Jack Herdegen, police sergeant who was dismissed from the force by the police trial board on March 10. Mrs. Kub was named as Herdegen's woman friend and job protector by Miss Bernice Shaw, jilted sweetheart of the sergeant. Miss Shaw alleged Herdegen obtained his promotion through $1,500 obtained from Jack Zuta, slain vicemonger. However, the basis of his discharge was testimony that he had lived with Miss Shaw while married to another woman.

So far as the grand jury is concerned, Mrs. Kub is considered one of its two most important or potentially important witnesses. The other is Homer K. Galpin, supporter of Mayor Thompson and Republican boss of the 27th ward.

Efforts for nearly two years to bring him before a grand jury were successfully negotiated last week, but the result was nil. Galpin was wanted to explain contributions to the America First campaign chest of Mayor Thompson. He will be recalled in April to be questioned by Frank J. Loesch, who originally tried to subpoena him as head of the special grand jury quiz in 1928.

SCORES WOUNDED AS GERMAN REDS BATTLE FASCISTS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, March 20.—Gang warfare by communists and the Fascisti raged throughout Germany today, with the more serious clashes occurring in Berlin, Magdeburg and Erfurt. Scores were wounded in the fighting.

To the accompaniment of the wild shrieks of "Revenge! Revenge!" 1,000 Berlin communists assembled at the Nollendorf platz and the Wittenberg platz to protest against the murder of communist Deputy Ernest Henning of Hamburg by three Fascisti. An open air meeting was prohibited, but the Reds tried to form a procession as a demonstration against the Fascisti. The police clubbed the communists into submission. A score of police and communists were injured.

At Magdeburg, 60 communists ambushed 25 Fascisti and opened fire. When the police arrived six of the Fascisti were found seriously wounded. Thirty were arrested. At Erfurt the police seized big stores of communist ammunition.

GANDHI SERVES NEW ULTIMATUM ON GREAT BRITAIN

Demands London Give Up Safeguards on India.

BY WILLIAM SHIRER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

NEW DELHI, March 20.—If Great Britain is prepared to grant self-government to India only on the basis of the safeguards worked out at the London round table conference, as W. Wedgewood Benn, secretary of state for India, and Lord Chancellor Sankey indicated in recent speeches in the British parliament, then Mahatma Gandhi, leader of the fight for Indian independence, and his national congress party see no use in proceeding to London for further discussions. This was the gist of a private communication given to Viceroy Lord Irwin by Gandhi today.

This seriously complicates the situation, since Lord Irwin has already convoked for tomorrow a meeting of all parties, including the Indian princes, to work out a plan for conducting the proposed conference.

Gandhi May Not Attend.

It was reported tonight that Gandhi might not attend the meteing. The holy man wants to know first whether the government considers "indispensable" the round table conference safeguards, which give the governor general control of the army, foreign affairs, finance, and matters with respect to minorities.

If the government does not consider these safeguards indispensable, then Gandhi wants the government to make it clear, before he participates in further discussions, that he is free to bring up the whole question anew and that no reservations are to be discussed except those "in the interest of India," as stipulated in his truce agreement with Lord Irwin. Gandhi considers that this excludes safeguards in the interest of Great Britain.

Yanks "Give Him a Big Hand."

Loud cheering and vociferous hand-clapping greeted Gandhi tonight as he strode out, clothed as usual in a loin cloth, to lead the evening prayer. The holy man was somewhat perturbed, it being after all a prayer meeting. So were hundreds of Hindus, who are very religious people and who do not cheer or clap their hands at prayer time.

But ninety American tourists thought it was a momentous event and on getting a glimpse of the modern saint, expressed their feelings in a good old American way. They cheered and applauded excitedly and gathered around the little old man for autographs.

It was dark, and besides there was prayer to lead, so Gandhi could not oblige the autograph hunters. But, quickly seizing the situation, he stopped a second to let the Yanks gather around. He addressed them in these few words: "I am very glad to see you all. I happen to be a very busy man now or I would give you more time, but I hope you will stay for prayer."

They did stay, but first George McKenney of Atlanta, Ga., on behalf of the delegation, thanked Gandhi for his attention.

"We are all for you, and hope for success for the Indian people," he drawled. "And now folks, let us give three cheers for Gandhi."

And three lusty cheers they gave while the turbaned Hindus looked on in amazement.

STORY OF GIRL'S THREAT TO DIE HALTS HEARING

The hearing on the petition of Louis Manske, 4754 North Kewanee avenue, a grocer, to gain the custody of his nine year old daughter, Betty, was brought to an abrupt close yesterday when a witness informed Circuit Judge Trude that the girl had threatened to kill herself if compelled to live with her father.

Manske's wife died a few years ago shortly after she had won a divorce. Since then the girl had been in the custody of her aunt, Mrs. Thomas Peterson, 4031 Milwaukee avenue. The father had just presented four character witnesses to show that he was fit to care for the child when Mrs. Peterson protested that the girl had said she would take poison if removed from the aunt's home.

ALLEGED QUACK ARRESTED AFTER BOY PATIENT DIES

Treatments He Gave Lad Futile, Doctor Says.

As a sequel to the death of 8 year old Lester Henk in Des Plaines three weeks ago, C. Frank Wittenberger, of Des Plaines, a self-styled chiropractor, was arrested yesterday by inspectors for the state department of education and registration on charges of practicing medicine without a license.

Dr. A. M. Purves of Des Plaines, who signed the complaint against Wittenberger, said Wittenberger had manipulated the boy's spine after having diagnosed his ailment as "sublaxation of the spine." Dr. Purves, who later was called in on the case, in signing the death certificate, gave the cause of death as ascending degeneration of the spinal cord and acute inflammation of the intestines.

Previous Record Revealed.

It was said that Wittenberger, while attending the Henks boy, was at liberty under $10,000 bonds under which he had been held to the grand jury on two charges of practicing medicine without a license, which had been filed against him in Berwyn in January.

Investigation also showed that he had been fined $200 in Des Plaines in January on similar charges, and investigators for the state department of registration said they had other information which involved Wittenberger in the case of another patient who died.

Released on $4,000 Bond.

The newest charges against Wittenberger were filed before Police Magistrate William R. Hayes of Des Plaines, who released the accused man on a $4,000 bond, after a hearing in the case had been set for Tuesday. Dr. Purves said he did not hold Wittenberger responsible for the Henks boy's death, but that the treatments Wittenberger gave the boy "did not help him any."

The registration department also made known yesterday that action had been instituted against another practitioner, Perly Johnson of Waukegan, who, it was said, had incorporated a clinic and undertaken the practice of various forms of medicine without a license. The state department filed information against Johnson with State's Attorney A. V. Smith of Lake county, who said he would take immediate action.

Predict Chicago Divorce Rush to Reno Under 6 Weeks' Law

An exodus of Chicago matrimonial mismates to Nevada, and Reno in particular, to take advantage of the new law which slashes divorce residence requirements from ninety days to six weeks, was anticipated yesterday by Cook county judges and lawyers. The Nevada legislature hurried through the new law to maintain the state's $3,000,000 a year divorce business against the encroachments of Idaho and Arkansas, both of which recently adopted ninety day laws. The measure was signed on Thursday by Gov. F. B. Balzar.

Divorce traffic in Reno has been sluggish during the last year, due to the competition of the two states and the general depression. In 1927 the Nevada legislature reduced its six months' residence requirement to 90 days in order to meet the competition of its rival divorce states. The present legislature, in addition to cutting the requirement to six weeks, has legalized gambling to lure bored divorce seekers.

Nevada Meets Competition.

In Chicago the new Nevada laws are regarded as additional invitations to domestic litigants to listen to the clickety-clack of Reno bound Pullman wheels rather than await the law's delays in Illinois, where a year's residence is necessary. The change also puts Paris and Havana at a disadvantage not only in time, but also in cost. Mexico, which offers the easiest method of separation through the mere hiring of a Mexican lawyer for $500, is also underbid in the cost competition by Nevada.

The average cost of a Reno decree is $300. The Nevada Bar association fixes the minimum attorney fee at $250, to which is added $25 for court costs and $25 for the defendant's attorney.

Against this Chicago lawyers have a minimum fee of $200, which with court costs and fees for the defendant's attorney approximates the Reno average. For procuring Paris decrees the American attorneys charge upward from $500, while the French assistants get about $160. Mexico, despite its ease of divorce, has lost favor because decrees have been challenged and set aside by American courts.

A Travesty, Judge Says.

"The Nevada law is a travesty on justice," Superior Judge Rudolph Desori said. "It is a threat against the sanctity of the home. Citizens of Illinois are enabled to avoid the state's law by a six weeks' vacation in Nevada."

Attorney Nicholas Socrates of the law firm of Socrates & Davis, known as an authority on divorce law, said: "The prospect for Chicago attorneys in the divorce business is rueful. The new Nevada law is bound to take away business. If the law does not bring the trade the state anticipates I am sure the legislators will found a correspondence school of divorce. I think they should give a flower to each woman and a pen wiper to each man who secures a decree as further inducement."

MISSING SMITH CAUSES NEW STIR IN IOWA TOWN

Perry, Ia., March 20.—(AP)—A rendezvous between Mrs. John M. Smith, wife of the missing Perry insecticide manufacturer, with one or more men in a coupe at a highway junction 15 miles south of here, was frustrated tonight by two of his deputies, Sheriff C. A. Knee said.

The deputies had trailed Mrs. Smith from Perry when she left home in the family car at 7 p. m. after Sheriff Knee learned she had received a telephone call. Mrs. Smith dropped in behind the coupe in which the men were riding and both cars sped toward Des Moines. After a three mile ride Mrs. Smith's car overturned. The deputies continued to chase the other car, but were outdistanced. They then returned to where Mrs. Smith's car had upset. The woman was found unhurt. At Perry Mrs. Smith was taken to her home and a deputy sheriff stationed with her.

Sheriff Knee continued his check of the long distance call. He expressed the belief the call was from Smith and that he had attempted to arrange a meeting between his wife and the men.

Smith disappeared Feb. 3, the night a company truck he had been driving was found burning on the roadside. A charred body was found on it and erroneously identified as Smith's. The mistake was not discovered until the body was exhumed March 12.

Mrs. Smith had a note published Monday asking her husband to come back and face charges if he had "done anything wrong."

MOSCOW KITCHEN FACTORIES FREE KITCHEN DRUDGES

1 'Plant' Serves 40,000 Dinners a Day.

BY HENRY WALES.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MOSCOW, Feb. 19.—[By mail.]—Municipal kitchen No. 3 has just been opened in Moscow, in the efforts of the government "to emancipate women from the drudgery of cooking" and also to eliminate the class distinction of servant girls and permit these young women to enroll themselves in factories.

The new kitchen factory, as it is called, cost $600,000 and has $400,000 worth of equipment, including a dozen enormous soup vats, mechanical potato peelers, electric bread cutting machines, dishwashing apparatus and other appliances.

2-Course Dinner, 20 Cents.

Kitchen No. 3 produces 40,000 dinners a day, of which 15,000 are consumed in the big restaurant attached. The other 25,000 rations are distributed by auto trucks to various factories, government offices, schools and other organizations throughout the city in receptacles to keep the food warm.

A two-course dinner from this kitchen costs 40 kopecks, or 20 cents. When there is a meat shortage vegetarian meals of three courses are served at the same price, but the customers seem to prefer the two-course dinner with meat.

Every meal is balanced to include 750 calories exclusive of bread. By 1933 it is estimated there will be more than 500 kitchen factories, large and small, functioning in Moscow, freeing a million women from the task of preparing meals.

Servant Problem Acute.

It is eventually proposed to have meals delivered to all families ordering them by the month at their domiciles. Auto trucks will collect the receptacles in which the food is served every day when they deliver the next meal.

Meanwhile the servant problem has become extremely acute owing to the difficulty in obtaining help, as most of the young women prefer factory work, with the movie passes, cigaret rations and the general freedom which goes with it.

Servant girls now generally sleep in the kitchen, on the floor, or even on the range, which is seldom used in the community apartments. They stay on their jobs only long enough to apply for jobs in a factory. Ten dollars a month and keep is an average servant's pay.

Depression in Begging Business.

But even $10 a month is a lot better than being without a job. For instance, it is easy to observe that street begging is not a commendable racket in Moscow in winter. It's too cold. The first thing a beggar must do is take off his hat and place it on the sidewalk and then kneel in front of it.

If he stood up and held out an old cigar box or a little tin bucket, passers-by would naturally think he was trying to sell those articles and probably would haggle painfully with him over the price.

You can't necessarily tell a beggar from any one else in this town by his raiment. Even the beggars manage to wrap themselves up plenty warm in rags and tatters, and lots of honest, hard working business men are no better clad, especially in winter.

Specialize in Churches.

So a street beggar must de-hat himself and get his ears and dome all cold and kneel on the icy pavement, which will surely give him housemaid's knee, and then his bare hands must be crossed piously across his chest, and they get cold, too.

Beggars in winter time usually specialize on church begging, where they can stand in a nice, warm hallway, between the triple sets of doors leading in, and meet the best people who go daily to their devotions. There are always anywhere from half a dozen to a score of these mendicants of both sexes, and they put the hand on every one walking out who forgets to sugar them.

Female beggars have a unique racket. It's a house to house stunt, highly remunerative but mighty chilly and involving the climbing of stairs. They go from door to door, and every time "the lady of the house" answers they throw open their long cloaks and reveal themselves stark naked beneath them, except for the inevitable felt boots.

Modest If Man Answers.

"I have no money, and I have sold all my clothing to buy food for my babies," they whimper, and hard-hearted is she who refuses to kick in a few kopecks.

But these beggars are modest and just pass on if a man comes to the door.

Outside the main telegraph office in the Tverskaia three lads, each about 15 years old, have a begging racket. They place their hats on the paving, kneel down and rock violently back and forth, touching their foreheads to the sidewalk on each revolution and uttering a shrill singsong supplication, reminding of a small child with an acute stomachache. Even when they are changing shifts people stop and drop a copper into the hat.

FREED OF GUN CHARGE.

William Nelson, 24 years old, who accidentally wounded his roommate, Francis Mullen, also 24, in their apartment at 4716 Sheridan road several weeks ago, was freed yesterday in Town Hall court when arraigned for assault with a revolver.

Visits Grounds

Count Folke Bernadotte, nephew of the king of Sweden and husband of Estelle Manville, asbestos heiress, spoke yesterday at a luncheon in the administration building of the 1933 World's Fair after a visit to the fair grounds in behalf of his government. Count Bernadotte stated that the fair would help to draw the nations of the world together in international amity.

Accompanying the count and also in attendance at the luncheon were Baron C. G. Langenskiold, Count de Fontnouvelle, French consul in Chicago, and the consuls of three foreign countries, Elmer Forsberg of Finland, Olaf Bernts of Norway, and Acting Consul Elkbladt of Sweden. Charles S. Peterson, vice president of the fair, was toastmaster. He said that the king of Sweden has been invited to attend the fair.

Motorist Shot by Drys; Seize 107 Gallons of Rum

Christianburg, Va., March 20.—(AP)—Heath Rakes of Montgomery county, Virginia, was shot through the right breast tonight as he fled from a car in which officers said they found 107 gallons of liquor. Deputy Sheriff Harvey P. Cook, who said he fired on Rakes when he believed him to be reaching to his pocket for a gun, was placed under technical arrest. An unidentified man riding with Rakes when officers flagged down the car escaped. Physicians said Rakes had a chance to recover.

UNEMPLOYMENT PEAK HAS PASSED LAMONT STATES

Gradual Improvement Seen Since January.

was listed as having 174,527 jobless able bodied persons in January, as compared with 76,018 in April. Out of New York's population, Brooklyn had 205,000 jobless, the Bronx 97,414 and Manhattan 168,312.

Figures in Several Cities.

Birmingham had 22,930 jobless out of a population of 259,678; Boston, 69,682 out of 781,188; buffalo, 50,724 out of 573,076; Cleveland, 99,233 out of 900,429; Dayton, 17,681 out of 209,982; Denver, 19,922 out of 287,361; Duluth, 8,130 out of 101,463; Houston, 29,163 out of 292,352; Los Angeles, 98,130 out of 1,238,048; Minneapolis, 35,158 out of 464,356; New Orleans, 42,482 out of 457,762; Philadelphia, 212,051 out of 1,950,961; Pittsburgh, 60,026 out of 669,817; St. Louis, 77,560 out of 821,960, and Seattle, 31,236 out of 365,583.

To obtain his estimate of 6,050,000 jobless out of a total population of 122,775,046, Secretary Lamont simply applied the 149 per cent increase found for the cities to the total of 2,429,062 unemployed reported in April by the census bureau for the country. He stated also that an additional 250,000 or 300,000 workers apparently were not working in January as a result of being laid off from their regular jobs.

Obtains Monthly Estimates.

In addition to compiling the jobless in January, Mr. Lamont also estimated the approximate trend of unemployment in the intervening months from April to February. They were approximately as follows:

May, 1930, 2,500,000; June, 2,800,000; July, 3,200,000; August, 3,500,000; September, 3,400,000; October, 3,800,000; November, 4,600,000, and December, 4,900,000.

EX-CHANCELLOR MUELLER DIES IN GERMANY AT 54

Wife and Daughter at Bedside at End.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, March 20.—Dr. Hermann Mueller, former chancellor, died at 10:45 o'clock tonight at the age of 54. His wife and two daughters were at his bedside.

Dr. Mueller underwent an operation several days ago for gallstones. He had been seriously ill for some time, and during the last few days had developed bronchial trouble coupled with an inflammation of the lungs.

A bulletin was issued earlier today in which Dr. Mueller's physicians gave up hope for him.

SERVED TWICE AS CHANCELLOR.

Hermann Mueller, the man who was to become the leader of the German Social Democrats, held several portfolios in different governments and was twice chancellor of Germany. Before the war he was an obscure personage unknown by all except the Socialists who had met him at international conferences all over Europe.

As leader of the Socialists it was Herr Mueller who sprang into the spotlight of contemporary history when he, together with Dr. Johannes Bell, then colonial minister, agreed to go to Versailles in June, 1919, and sign the Versailles treaty on behalf of the new born German republic.

Editor of Socialist Paper.

He was born on May 18, 1876, at Mannheim, a son of Jakob Mueller, industrialist, who had intended young Hermann for a mercantile career. In 1899 he became editor of a small Socialist newspaper in Silesia, and in 1903 began his political career in the municipal government of Goerlitz.

In 1916 he was elected to the reichstag, but his role there was unnoticed for years. On June 21, 1919, however, he was selected by Chancellor Bauer to succeed Count von Brockdorff-Rantzau as minister for foreign affairs, and a week later he and Dr. Bell went to Versailles.

In the period that immediately followed Herr Mueller experienced considerable trouble with the military caste. His contempt for the ex-kaiser was expressed at the Socialist conference at Berne in 1919, when he said: "Herr Hohenzollern is not wanted in Germany, as he belongs in a pathological ward."

Reduced German Army.

After the Kapp putsch was quelled in 1920 Herr Mueller was appointed chancellor of a coalition government of Social Democrats, Centrists and Democrats. In the short period that he held the post he waged a keen war on the reactionaries and it was during his administration that the army was reduced to a reichswehr of 200,000 men.

Herr Mueller's reign was brief, and on June 21, less than three months after he had taken over the reins of government, he and his ministers resigned. On June 5 Red mobs had howled him down in Berlin.

For a long period Herr Mueller withdrew from the front line of politics but remained a great force as leader of Socialists. He concentrated his powers on denouncing the French and demanding the Ruhr for the Germans.

Appointed by Von Hindenburg.

Early in 1928 President Von Hindenburg faced his first cabinet crisis and on June 12, 1928, the Nationalistic right government passed out of office after Chancellor Marx had resigned. Herr Mueller was appointed chancellor.

The new government was hailed with jeers by the reactionaries as a "Red rule government." The reich in general, however, was calm and the general public, as well as the financial circles showed no alarm. The soviet government at once began overtures with the socialist administration, but met with indifference.

In August, 1928, Chancellor Mueller set many minds at rest when he proclaimed that Germany would make no bid for its old colonies, nor would it seek the possession of new ones.

There followed the signing of the Kellogg pact by Dr. Stresemann and the discussions over the Rhineland occupation and, finally, the recent debt parleys.

A crisis was averted last February when the chancellor, unsuccessful in securing a coalition group, defied all the parties, declaring that if they persisted dictatorship might follow. In the end, however, the chancellor triumphed, urged the need to keep the government until the reparations conference was ended.

Ex-Chancellor Dies

GERMANY FORMS CUSTOMS UNION WITH AUSTRIA

Report Agreement Aims at Joining Countries.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, March 20.—A customs union between Germany and Austria will be proclaimed on Monday, according to German officials. The agreement is said to be aimed at providing the basis for a future union between Germany and Austria without violating international treaties, such as Versailles and Saint Germain, which ruled that both countries should never be allowed to unite. At the same time the agreement is aimed to satisfy the economic needs of both countries.

Austria, which according to the international treaties was supposed to find an outlet for the goods of her industrial center, Vienna, in the former Austrian states, finds herself suddenly paralyzed by high tariffs which those countries are erecting against her. Now she is turning more and more to Germany.

Legislation Is Coördinated.

Together these two countries have coördinated their legislation in recent years and now they are coördinating their customs tariff. The situation reminds observers of European history of the fact that when Bismarck started to weld Germany into a single country he brought the German princes together through a customs union.

The Austro-German agreement, it is learned, is to run for three years. It provides for an arbitration court for the settlement of disputes in both countries. Goods are to be exchanged duty free after a transition period.

The paragraphs which indicate that the agreement aims at a future union of Germany and Austria are contained in a chapter which is still being discussed. It is expected that this chapter will provide that customs organizations in both countries will remain independent, but that their incomes will be divided between Austria and Germany on a percentage based on the populations.

Allied Nations Informed.

The German ambassadors in Rome, London, and Paris were instructed to inform the governments of these capitals that an Austro-German tariff agreement is nearing completion and will be signed in the near future.

German officials tonight emphasized the fact that Germany is willing to sign similar agreements with other neighboring countries, and that they believe the Austro-German agreement provides a good model for a series of "regional treaties," which in turn should form a sound basis for a future United States of Europe.

Mabel Normand Estate of $66,000 Goes to Mother

Hollywood, Cal., March 20.—[Special.]—Final distribution of the estate of Mabel Normand was asked in a petition for accounting filed today by her husband, Lew Cody. The total of the estate was $102,228, but inheritance taxes, debts and other expenses shrank it to $66,437. The largest items were real estate in Beverly Hills worth $20,000 and $35,702 worth of jewelry.

LAST OBSTACLE TO OUTER DRIVE BRIDGE REMOVED

U. S. Approves New Line for Harbor.

Action of the war department at Washington yesterday removed the last obstacle hampering progress on the construction of the outer drive link bridge across the mouth of the Chicago river to connect the boulevard systems of Lincoln and south parks.

The last of the red tape was removed when Acting Secretary of War Payne approved the application of the Illinois Central railroad and the south park commissioners for a modification of the existing harbor line in the outer harbor from the Chicago river to Randolph street.

Can Now Let Contracts.

This establishes a new line 445 feet into the lake and practically paralleling the previous line. With the federal approval yesterday the amended lake front ordinance becomes automatically effective and makes it possible for the park commissioners to proceed with the selling of bonds and the letting of contracts for the construction of the bridge.

This action will be taken immediately, President Kelly of the south park board announced yesterday on the receipt of word from Washington. He said that the Lincoln and south park commissioners plan to meet jointly next week for the purpose of making preliminary preparation for actual construction work, which they hope to start in two months.

Construction of the bridge at the mouth of the river involves the expenditure of approximately $10,000,000. The work, Mr. Kelly stated, will require nearly two years. Approaches will then be built connecting with the Randolph street viaduct, a $3,500,000 project.

Gives Up Riparian Rights.

The war department's action gives the park commissioners a right of way for the viaduct over the I. C. tracks leading to the bridge. The road also surrendered its riparian rights in the new harbor region to the park board.

In their petition to the war department the park commissioners gave assurance that when it becomes necessary to fill in the slip now occupied by the floating club house of the Columbia Yacht club, they will take care of the club in a reasonable way equivalent to its present status.

Socialists Gain Control of Stockholm City Council

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, March 20.—(AP)—The Socialists gained control of the city council in municipal elections held yesterday, taking nine seats from other parties. They now have 43 seats, compared with 40 for other parties. The Socialist vote increased from 65,000 in 1927 to 100,500 in yesterday's election.

NORTH RHODESIA, RULED BY BRITAIN, SEEKS FREEDOM

Moves for Amalgamation with South Rhodesia.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

CAPE TOWN, March 20.—Northern Rhodesia's European settlers today took new steps to bring about amalgamation with self-governing southern Rhodesia as a solution of their internal problems. Politics in the north is a comparatively new sport. It is true that during the period of the British South Africa company's rule, which ended in 1924, the settlers bickered with the administration from time to time.

Twice in the course of that régime amalgamation was suggested by the chartered company as a means towards administrative economy. But Southern Rhodesia, struggling towards self-government, refused to burden itself with responsibility for a backward state, while political opinion in the north can hardly be said to have existed at all in those days.

South Rhodesia Governs Self.

When, however, the imperial government took over the government in 1924, various factors combined to mold public opinion. Southern Rhodesia then received a status approximating dominion power, save that its native legislation is to some extent supervised by Downing street.

Southern Rhodesia, in spite of its small European population, has proved fully capable of managing its own affairs. Economic disasters have been encountered. Tobacco has slumped almost off the map; gold revenue has declined slightly; prices of almost all the raw material which the country produces have fallen heavily. In the teeth of these troubles political and financial stability has been maintained. When the world depression lifts Southern Rhodesia will be found well prepared to take advantage of better times.

While Southern Rhodesia has been learning to be a miniature nation, Northern Rhodesia has found itself wrapped uncomfortably tight in the swaddling bonds of a colonial office rule. The governor in Livingstone is advised by a legislative council in which, although the settlers are represented by seven unofficial members, there is a large official majority.

White Settlers Complain.

This majority, the white settlers complain, is used almost automatically to vote down the representations of the European electorate as urged by their members. The present governor, Sir James Maxwell, has proved particularly dictatorial in his methods, the Europeans charge. During his term of office friction has notably increased.

But the local steam roller is not the worst ill from which the country suffers. Even when, after full debate in the council, a policy has been decided upon, interminable delays occur while the authority of Downing street is being secured for the measures desired.

A further event has added importance to these political struggles. The intensive development of the copper belt brought equilibrium to the country's budget some years ago. It also has led to a large increase in the European population. As a result, extended state services are required in all directions. The slow methods of the colonial office have been thrown into conspicuous relief by the period of rapid expansion, with the consequence that public impatience seeks a political outlet.

Seek to Work Up Feeling.

At the moment sustained effort is being made to popularize this feeling through the formation of the Greater Rhodesia society. Southern Rhodesia was long ago converted to belief in amalgamation.

Unofficial discussions between the ministers of southern Rhodesia and the settler members of the council of the north have taken place. All parties in the south have agreed that at the outset the north should be given representation in a joint parliament in excess of its strictly numerical deserts. This promise probably would result in the north being given fifteen members in a house of about 45.

Following upon these conferences, and upon the formation of the society, public meetings have been held at most of the centers in Northern Rhodesia. At all of these enormous majorities favoring amalgamation have been voted and membership in the society has been greatly increased.

U. S. PURCHASES 40 NEW PLANES AND 128 MOTORS

Washington, D. C., March 20.—(AP)—Contracts for 40 new airplanes and 128 additional engines, involving an expenditure of $1,269,652, were approved today by the war department.

The Pratt & Whitney Aircraft company, Hartford, Conn., will receive a contract for 68 wasp type and 60 radio air cooled engines, costing $728,912.

The Thomas-Morse Aircraft corporation, Buffalo, N. Y., will receive a contract for 20 observation planes costing $450,910.

Tailored from fine, zephyr-weight skins that were hand-picked before we allowed them to be put into these coats.

Smartly styled—and the color is an attractive fawn shade. A great coat for anybody who gets out-of-doors.

No matter whether you golf, canoe, motor, hike or ride—this is a value you probably won't be able to duplicate for a long time at this low price.

Built with the famed "Hand-felted welt" edge—a feature that's nationally known and is seldom put into hats at this price. By this point alone, you'll recognize what a value this is.

In addition to a large number of hats with this "Hand-felted welt" edge, you'll find snap brims also. Plenty of styles—wide-brims—narrow brims—high crowns—medium crowns—hats for everyone.

VIKING SURVIVORS FACE NEW PERIL; ICEBOUND ON SHIP

Second Vessel Sinks; 28 in Crew Rescued.

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., March 20.—(AP)—New woes for the rescued and waning hopes for the missing were today's tidings from turbulent White bay, where the sealer Viking exploded and sank Sunday with a probable loss of 28 lives.

Meanwhile, Bernt Balchen, hero of many an aerial exploit, flew into St. John, New Brunswick, from Boston, Mass., this afternoon in a plane in which he and two companions, Marion Cooper and Randy Enslow, hope to search the disaster scene. Weather conditions in the Newfoundland district were reported to be unfavorable and the time of their departure was uncertain.

Caught in a vicious nor'easter, with snow driving all about her, the rescue steamer Sagona carrying 110 survivors from Horse island was caught fast in an ice jam. Her arrival here may be delayed indefinitely.

Second Sealing Ship Sinks.

The sealer Sir William, companion ship of the Viking, ended her rescue efforts at the bottom of the bay. Stuck in a vise-like ice grip, she became waterlogged, burst into flames and sank 15 miles northeast of Horse island. Her crew of 28 escaped in dories to the sealer Eagle.

After bucking the ice fields in the bay, a half dozen rescue vessels virtually abandoned hope of finding the 28 missing men from the Viking, including two Americans, Varick Frissell and A. G. Penrod, who went north to take sound pictures. A third American, Harry Sargent, has been rescued.

The belief grew that 27 perished when the ship exploded and burned. Tracks on the ice led to the fear the other missing man probably drowned.

Radio Message a Mystery.

Friends of Frissell and the others pinned their hopes on an unconfirmed radio message picked up by a Naugatuck, Conn., amateur radio operator. The operator heard vague signals with the signature "Father J. Kerwan, Harbor Briton [N. F.], station VP8J." Today he succeeded in raising what was apparently the same station and was informed:

"I told you yesterday Penrod and two Americans were O. K." A Halifax message said the station is 400 miles cross-country from Horse island.

Father Kerwan, however, later denied he sent out the message attributed to him. In a message received here, he said: "Deny report. Have no such information."

Late today Capt. Abram Kean of the Viking and seven other men were still on bleak Horse island. They were so weak they must be carried off on stretchers, a task which could not be completed last night. Doctors were attending them. Food and supplies have been landed on the island.

Youth Held to Grand Jury as Slayer of His Father

A coroner's jury yesterday held William McKievick Jr., 20 years old, to the grand jury as the slayer of his father in their home at 1207 Belmont avenue. The elder McKievick was stabbed to death Thursday night in a quarrel with his son. The son testified that his father was cruel to his mother and his two brothers. His quarrel with his father, he said, arose when the elder McKievick attempted to take some money from him. The police said young McKievick had been drinking before the stabbing.

No Arrests for Deaths of 7 from Poison Alky

Raton, N. M., March 20.—(AP)—Fred Stringfellow, district attorney, said today no arrests would be made for the death of seven of eight men who used a 20 gallon supply of poison alcohol as a beverage at a stag party here Tuesday night.

Stringfellow said the alcohol had not been obtained at a filling station, as was at first reported to police, but from a drug store. He said he believed the beverage was wood alcohol, and added no blame for the seven fatalities could be attached to any one.

Way Paved to Make McKinley Home National Shrine

Home of the late President William McKinley at Canton, O., made famous by the 1896 campaign. Obstacles to making a national shrine of it were removed yesterday when heirs to the Meyer estate signed an agreement giving the city clear title to Meyer's park.

CHILE RELEASES MEN WHO BEAT UP U. S. BUSINESS MAN

SANTIAGO, Chile, March 20.—(AP)—Police today released the assailants who, a short time earlier, had been arrested, accused of assaulting Vladimir Kaminsky, distribution expert for the General Motors company, on the street. Kaminsky was taken to a hospital with severe cuts about his face and head. He is an American citizen and his wife is a Cleveland girl.

Kaminsky went to the United States embassy to lay his case before Ambassador Culbertson. The police had told him, he said, that his injuries were not serious enough to warrant holding the men. He characterized the police action in releasing his assailants as "ridiculous." "My left eye may be permanently injured," he said.

The General Motors Acceptance corporation is being sued by a Chilean firm of automobile distributors for $2,160,000 in alleged commissions and Larry K. Bethune of Atlanta, Chilean head of the corporation, was held in jail incommunicado for two days until yesterday in connection with the suit. Mr. Culbertson presented Kaminsky's case to the foreign minister for his information and at the same time recalled the Bethune case, for which he asked an official investigation.

IDENTIFY WOMAN HOTEL SUICIDE.

The woman who shot herself to death in the Morrison hotel Wednesday, after registering as Sylvia Logan of Little Rock, Ark., was identified yesterday by her husband, Leland Frederick of Joliet, as Mrs. Gladys Frederick.

KIDNAPER OF BUSCH HEIR SENTENCED TO 15 YEARS IN PRISON

St. Louis, Mo., March 20.—(AP)—Pleading guilty to the kidnaping of 13 year old Adolphus Busch Orthwein from his wealthy father's Huntleigh village home last New Year's eve, Charles Y. Abernathy, Negro, was sentenced to 10 years in the penitentiary today.

Abernathy also was sentenced to 15 years, to run concurrently with the kidnaping sentence, for robbery with a deadly weapon, upon his plea of guilty of robbing the chauffeur of the automobile from which he abducted the lad. The Orthwein boy is a grandson of August A. Busch, head of Anheuser-Busch, Inc., and a great-grandson of the late Adolphus Busch, multimillionaire brewer.

The boy was kidnaped from the automobile of his father, Percy J. Orthwein, as the chauffeur, Roy Yowell, was taking him from his father's home to the home of his grandfather. After robbing the chauffeur of $4.50, Abernathy forced him out of the car and drove away with the boy. The boy was returned to his parents on New Year's day, Abernathy fleeing to Kansas City, where he surrendered later to officers of St. Louis county.

BOOTLEGGER IS FINED.

Joseph S. Esposito of 2524 Wilcox street was fined $50 yesterday by Judge Joseph A. Graber in the Des Plaines street court for operating a speakeasy in his home a half block from the Grant public school.

GUILTY OF WIFE MURDER; DEATH PENALTY ASKED

Terre Haute, Ind., March 20.—(AP)—Lawrence Johnson, confessed ax slayer of his 16 year old wife, was convicted of first degree murder late today by a Vigo Circuit court jury, which recommended the death penalty be imposed. The jury deliberated two hours. Judge John P. Jeffries will pass formal sentence on Johnson March 27.

Judge Jeffries will set a date for the execution of the convicted man in the electric chair at the Indiana state prison at Michigan City.

Johnson's attorneys indicated they will have a motion to file with the court before the date of sentence, but would not reveal its nature. Johnson pleaded insanity.

PLANES, SHIPS SCAN WAVES FOR 3 LOST AIRMEN

Hunt American Flyers Off the Philippines.

MANILA, March 20.—(AP)—Army and navy airplanes and surface craft extended their search today for three American flyers feared dead in the China sea and Pacific ocean. The most optimistic were losing hope Glenn W. Brophy of Los Angeles; F. A. Diekhoff, representative of a New York business house, and William Scott of Manila would be found alive.

Brophy has been missing two days on a flight from Macao, Chinese coast, across 600 miles of China sea to Manila. Hope for his safety was based upon possibility his biplane might have floated twenty-four hours with the aid of air bags, and to the slim chance it had alighted on small islands north of Luzon island.

May Have Landed in Mountains.

There were some, too, who thought Brophy might have landed in mountain wilds of Luzon, north of Manila. Others, however, pointed out Brophy had crashed twice in China since leaving Shanghai, Jan. 23, to mark the trail for air mail and passenger service from Shanghai via Amoy, Canton, and Macao to Manila.

But small as Brophy's chances were considered, naval planes and boats scanned the Luzon coast and China sea while the army searched the Luzon interior.

Diekhoff and Scott were practically given up as lost. Missing since March 9, when they began a two hour flight from Surigao, northern Mindanao island, to Davao, its southeast port, it would be thought almost miraculous if they succeeded in saving themselves on the mountainous eastern shore. A pontoon of their plane found in the ocean seemed to tell their story.

Scan Miles of Waves.

The destroyers John D. Edwards, Smith Thompson, and Whipple were ordered out of Manila to join the hunt for Brophy, and the airplane tender Avocet left Olongapo for Cape Bolinao early this morning. Six naval planes took off from Olongapo at daylight and five from Manila joined in the search a few hours later.

Up to 5:30 o'clock tonight the navy forces had scanned about 27,000 square miles of sea without finding a trace of Brophy.

Macao advices said his plane, the Phoenix, probably would float 48 hours, although it was not a seaplane. It carried 125 gallons of gasoline, which was good for ten hours' flying with a range of 1,000 to 1,200 miles, depending on the wind. Brophy expected to reach Manila in less than five hours after he left Macao Thursday morning. He carried a few chocolate bars, some fruit, a bottle of water and cigarets in addition to 20 red flares which would burn twenty minutes each. He also carried life rafts and life belts.

The Pratas reef wireless station, which Brophy was to circle and drop magazines and a letter of thanks for the weather report, said he had not appeared. Acting Governor Magalhaes of Macao ordered the Portuguese air force there to cooperate in the search.

U. S. Consul at Quebec Badly Scalded in Bath

QUEBEC, March 20.—(AP)—H. Dennison, United States consul here, was severely scalded while taking a bath today. He was taken to the Jeffery Hales hospital in a serious condition.

RADIO SINGER ADOPTS BABY HE DISCOVERED WAS NOT HIS OWN

Kansas City, Mo., March 20.—(AP)—Louise, the infant girl Mrs. F. A. Bartlett took into her home secretly three months ago, pretending to her husband the baby was her own, today legally became Louise Bartlett.

Bartlett, a radio musician, who learned of his wife's deception only Wednesday, was permitted to adopt the infant. Judge E. E. Porterfield signed the order.

He said today he had forgiven his wife and that both had learned to love Louise.

THE FLEW-FLEW BIRD LOOKS AT THE TIMES.

The legend of the flew-flew bird is that he flies backward because he does not care where he is going but is crazy to see where he's been. There is another one who never knows where he's been but is cocksure he knows where he's going. Without much justification the general impression seems to be that the latter is the superior bird and the former quite a dodo.

The second bird, of questionable superiority, apparently has made his viewpoint the starting one in modern examination of modern conditions. He does not know where he's been, but he's confident nevertheless he knows where he is going. The historico-critical background isn't required.

Modern industrial capitalism has fewer years of existence on its record than any of the other organizations of society which it has followed. It is almost contained within a generation in its present form. In this country there was hardly a sign of it until after the war of 1812.

Its defects have been made plain enough in the last year and consideration of them has come to the conclusion that the structure is rotten at the foundation, that the defects are incurable with individualistic democracy, and that society must reconstruct itself. Possibly so, but the reasons seem to be found in impatience.

Modern industrialism is charged with the present high ratio of dependents now unable to subsist on their own, here in a new country as well as in Great Britain and on the European continent. That ratio against a background of nothing at all is not only distressing but it seems to be the particular achievement of a particular system. Before this system was in control, or was more than in the egg, the dependents in Great Britain numbered one in four. One-fourth the population some time in each year was on the poor rates, and that was the expectation. Not only were the aristocratic pretensions and prerogatives absorbing the wealth of the land, such as it was, but the productive organization was insufficient for the comfort of three-fourths of the people, for the decent sustenance of half or the bare living of a quarter.

England, with its comparative freedom from invasion, was in much better social condition than the continent. The French of the same period were literally starving. Modern industrial capitalization is the only great reorganization of society which ever reached down to democratic levels and built its structure upon an assumption of general use of products, general ability to get them or even a common hope that it could be possible and sensible to consider them.

Not only has the modern system done within a generation what no other system of society ever did or intended to do in accepting the mass of human beings as human beings, but it has begun to cure the seemingly incurable habit of war as a normal human activity and prospect. Peace when it is found will not be found in the mechanisms which seek to promote it, the Kellogg treaty, the covenant of the league, the protocol of the courts, etc. They are, if they are worth anything, only expressions of a real force.

Industrial capitalism in its beginnings furnished occupation for the surplus man power which, in the old German states, for instance, used the pike or musket as an economic tool and had no other. The very nature of this capitalism makes it impatient of disturbances which waste its strength, destroy its consumers and close its markets. Temporary and sectional advantages which may come from such disturbances are known to be false. Industrialism does not thrive in a fire or an earthquake and no more so in a man made convulsion. They were old school dynastic influences back of the later war. The industrialism of a nation might yet favor a raiding war to get needed materials, but even that is fading out of the rationalization of production.

If war has been denounced as national policy it is because it is contrary, for the first time in the world's history, to the true economic needs of a nation which has other uses for its men and its machines. That is the work of industrial capitalism. In its short span of world history it has produced more advantages for the people where it is most highly developed than any other influence which ever entered human life.

Periodically, for reasons which are not clearly charted, it bogs itself and is slowed down. Even then it produces only a slight shadow of the miseries which were inherent in the other systems which preceded it and which are accepted as the normal of life in lands which have not attained it. China is the Europe of two hundred years ago.

EVOLUTION IN TENNESSEE.

Attorney Robert M. Murray, a Carroll county representative in the Tennessee legislature, has a bill for the repeal of the state's law against the teaching of anything in contradiction of creation as contained in Genesis. He says he has been assured of considerable support. A good guess is that he can't pass it, although the act has not done the reputation of Tennessee any good. It hasn't, however, done the members of the legislature any harm. It is a case of good politics being the opposite of good government.

The monkey act made Tennessee a delightful exhibit of American democracy in simple direct action. The state has many of the more primitive sectaries which were the first religious expressions of democracy. Their tradition is Bible study, preaching, evangelism, and, in some, expressed ecstasies. They flourish in the rural, remote, or less accessible regions, and skepticism is not in their creed. In England before toleration was won they were repressed and persecuted, except for the period of their own brief dominance, and even after tolerance was granted they were excluded from government. The simpler forms of worship were congenial to the advance of the American colonies, and these forms prevailed on the frontier. They were democratic and not ritualistic. They were enthusiastic and sociable, thus having color for the hard lives of the pioneers. Their service did not require a prepared ministry and they represented the beliefs of a repressed ancestry.

In them the meeting house and the Bible, the pastor and the sermon, local control and independence stood against hierarchy, prelacy, ritual, prayer book, synod, establishment and state control. The average man had won his rights in religion before he won his rights in government.

These removes from England to the American frontier have lingered in their old form in the southern mountain country because the frontier has lingered there. Here was the sincere nucleus of the demand that the story of Genesis be protected from modern secular teachings. It was evidently supported by the urban churches, and it was not successfully resisted by the educational factors in the state. To the politicians in the legislature it was just so much cake if they would submit and so much poison if they resisted. They were honest and upright men if they voted Genesis into the state educational system and infidels and sinners if they did not. Such an easy road to virtue was not to be passed by. Darwin could not carry many Tennessee precincts, and whatever impression of the state might prevail outside of it was not injurious to politics within it.

The judicious may grieve in Tennessee, not so much that the monkey wrench has been thrown in the school system—Mr. Murray says educational bootlegging has taken care of that—but because ridicule doesn't bear many advantages to its object. The monkey law, however, is just such legislation as is difficult of repeal. Whatever resentment would attend the repeal would be political disadvantage. No advantage will be found in clearing the act off the books.

THIS MUST BE GENIUS.

The governor of Nevada has signed two general welfare bills passed by the legislature. One shortens the period of residence for divorce suits to six weeks. The other legalizes gambling. Thus Nevada hopes to keep the lead in its staple industry. It was feeling competition and had no scruples in taking the proper measures to meet it. It will please the customers so far as possible. Illinois legalized horse race betting for the benefit of agriculture. Florida has a winter and a summer code of morals. The one provides highballs in the refectory, the other the ball and chain on the highway, both being in the nature of internal improvements, one for the visiting scofflaw in his season, the other for the native in his.

These adjustments to expediency and profit are not infrequent or unusual to the American genius for government and reform, and in the current record should be noted the unusual dilemma of California. The Golden state has an indulgence from the federal government under the Volstead act to supply the citizens of all other states with a grape concentrate which turns to wine. The federal government has not only granted the indulgence to the strange prohibition beverage with a 20 per cent alcoholic content, but has invested $20,000,000 of farm board money in the business as a loan.

With such sponsorship and encouragement the grape industry of California has been able to weather the tough times and many citizens throughout the country have been persuaded that the eighteenth amendment is at least a little bit repealed. The oddity of the matter is that California, in something or other called the Wright law, has interposed an obstruction between the heady concentrate and its own citizens. It is estimated that fifty thousand tons of grapes could be disposed of in California if it would grant itself the same indulgence it has been given by the federal government. The hesitancy in the legislature must be added to the other many peculiarities of prohibition under prohibition. It is a reversal of the usual form. Kansas, for instance, will permit itself the use of jake ginger, but is unwilling that New York should enjoy the privilege and the paralysis. California apparently is so inconsistent as to reverse this formula of the truly good and maintain that all citizens may be drunk except its own. It will find that Nevada and Florida have the sounder doctrine, which is to give the customer what he wants and the traffic what it will stand.

Editorial of the Day

BATTLESHIPS ARE ESSENTIAL.

[Rock Island Argus.]

Recent war maneuvers held in the vicinity of the Panama canal apparently demonstrate that the battleship is by no means obsolete as a means of national defense. Those who favor the scrapping of battleships and the substitution of airplanes are speaking with undue haste and they are often without technical knowledge of the naval problems involved. It is certain that the flying fleet is very important in case of war. But the battleship, heavily armored, can take a lot of punishment. Likewise, it can inflict a lot. It remains as the chief factor in the fleet.

It may be in course of time that a mobile force, able to strike quickly, will come into being. This would be inclusive of swift armored cruisers, plane carriers, and destroyers. It should not be forgotten that plane carriers and light armored cruisers are vulnerable if exposed to gunfire and bombing. It should be borne in mind, also, by all students of this question that surface craft can be utilized for a number of years, at least, to serve as bases for aircraft which cannot remain indefinitely in the air. The progress of aviation may affect our national defense in course of time, but nothing has happened thus far to indicate that the battleship has lost its preeminence.

TIME FOR IT.

"Come along tonight. We have a triple celebration."

"What is it?"

"It is our silver wedding anniversary. We have paid the last installment on our wedding furniture and we are christening the new furniture that we are purchasing on the hire system, and which will be paid for by the time we reach our golden anniversary."—Ulk, Berlin.

TO THE SINGER.

Poet, sing your song!
What though none heed your lyre?
Let heaven still inspire
Lyrics both sweet and strong.
Poet, sing.

Poet, why not grieve?
Though men may turn away
At the high noon of day,
They will return at eve;
Poet, cheer.

Poet, dream your dream.
Long years may come and go;
Old age may bring its snow;
Yet, though all seem in vain,
Cease not your heavenly strain!
Earth still shall catch the gleam,
Poet, dream.

Poet, lose not heart.
What though men nurse the wrong,
And scorn your loving song?
What though the nations hate,
What though war devastate?
Earth yet shall learn your art.
Poet, sing.

THOMAS CURTIS CLARK.

THIS is simply glorious weather! But today look out for blizzards, ten foot deep snow, and twenty degrees below zero. We have everything all fixed to go up to Bert Roberts' at Antioch. And whenever old 799 gets all oiled and gassed up and her hair in a braid and comes loping around to transport us to Antioch, everything happens—from a snowstorm to a tidal wave. So, look out for anything in the shape of weather today. Or it might be an earthquake; it wouldn't surprise us a bit.

WELL, WE'LL BREAK IN SOMEHOW.

Seems that the only excitement nowadays is inside the penitentiaries. But there's so many of us can't get in; the darned things are overcrowded as it is. It's so dull and stupid nowadays that we wouldn't mind being sent to the penitentiary and being boarded free and going to movies and concerts and having sympathetic souls weep on our weskit, but it's so hard to get in. Nowadays there's such a rush that you have to stand in line and wait your turn. We've been trying to figure out some way. We've thought of everything, from running up and pulling Jim Ham Lewis' whiskers to stealing Big Bill Thompson's Rocky mountain burro. But Jim Ham would plead for us himself in case we pulled his whiskers and say it was all good, clean sport, and the jury would turn us loose. And if we stole Hizzoner's mule the judge would tell us all right now that we had the damn thing to keep it and we'd have to let it sleep in the bathtub, and so, what's the use? But, anyhow, if the fellows rioting down in Joliet knew how dull it is outside and how many of us envy them and want to get in they'd watch their step a little closer.

OBSERVATIONS.

I'm not a born crusader
With banners of reform,
Or gonfalons all streaming
To snatch the world from harm.
I've made no pilgrimages
To that land or to this,
Nor writ in history's pages
Nor sure of reaching bliss.
I have achieved no famous goals,
Showed prowess in the fight,
Compelled my brothers save their souls
By always doing right.
I bear upon my body
No welts from penance rods,
My raiment's somewhat shoddy,
I bank not on the gods.
I'm not a Pollyanna, Don Quixote, Galahad,
Nor afflicted with delusions
That all the world is bad.
No glorious commission
Was sent to me on high
To save from sure perdition
My neighbor, would I try.
The word "compulsion" I detest,
Except in rarer cases,
I do not think this world the best,
But there are far worse places.
Old fashioned views I still possess,
Nor poach upon my neighbor,
For keeping straight I must confess
Provides sufficient labor.

IMPROVEMENT IN CASES OF JAKE.

I HAVE recently seen a group of cases of jake paralysis, some of which I first saw 10 months ago. Some seen this time I did not see 10 months ago, and some seen 10 months ago I did not see this time. But each time I saw the cases with the physicians who were attending them, and from these physicians received reports on the comparative condition of the patients now and then. My observations were made rapidly and superficially. In the main, what is written is based on what the physicians told me. The place was Corinth, Miss. Readers may remember that I wrote of this group of cases several months ago. The reason for this article is the very great improvement in a considerable number of cases of severe jake paralysis during the course of 10 months.

A few cases are now walking around without crutches or cane. Their gait during ordinary walking appears to be almost normal. They can flex the foot and lift the toes. Hand grip is reasonably strong. A few cases that were on crutches last spring are now walking with a single stick. On a good surface they do not use a stick. I saw one such case that could flex his foot and lift his toes fairly well. The degree of improvement ranges from these on the top level to those on various lower levels. Every one that I saw was sure of improvement and hopeful of considerable further gains. In every case there was considerable atrophy of the muscles. This was especially noticeable with the thumb muscles. But all reported that their muscles were "filling out." In most cases the secondary spasmodic drawing of muscles and "leaders" had passed off.

Part of the improvement was due to the intelligent use of the affected legs and arms. The persons affected had served on a machine in order to exercise the muscles of the lower leg and foot. Some had taken up knitting in order to keep the hand muscles in as good shape as possible.

One woman was under the necessity of scrambling up a steep embankment daily. She found this a fine treatment for foot drop. A farmer had to plow or go without food. He rigged up a toe lifter made from an automobile tire. Contrary to expectations, he has improved greatly. Many of the cases are being given a solution of radium chloride. They attribute much of their improvement to that.

STOCK VALUE.

Chicago, March 17.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—What is the value of five shares of stock in a company that has been offered three million dollars? There are only one hundred shares issued.

MRS. M. F.

If your shares are a minority interest and the majority is not willing to accept the offer that you mention, then it is not practicable to fix a definite value on the bare facts that you state. Your letter does not make clear whether by "value" you mean market price or something else.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

UNDUE INFLUENCE.

Gary, Ind., March 17.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—One of my aunts, who had made a will, was influenced shortly before her death by her sister, another aunt, to supersede the will by placing her estate in a joint account with her sister. After death the aunt who caused this change of way of distributing estate mailed checks to niece and nephew, stating deceased aunt wanted them to have the amounts covered by the checks, and signed the checks herself. Nearest relative to deceased aunt being two aunts and a niece and nephew. All this occurred in Illinois and subject to Illinois law. 1. Are niece and nephew of the deceased aunt legally forced to accept what the aunt gives them from her sister's estate as full settlement of any legal claims they may have to share of estate? 2. Are the niece and nephew not entitled to a certain specific part of the estate in accordance with Illinois law under the circumstances?

C. W. C.

1. Yes, unless they can prove that the joint account arrangement was attributable to undue influence or lack of mental capacity.

2. No, in the sense that a person having proper mental capacity can disinherit his relatives.

A LARGE ORDER.

Chicago, March 11.—[Friend of the People.]—What are the boundaries of the fire limits within which frame buildings can be erected? B. W.

It is not possible, within the limits of a letter, to give the boundaries of the fire limits within which frame buildings cannot be erected. The best plan is to consult the fire limits map in the department of buildings, room 702, city hall, or consult the fire limits map under the back cover of the Chicago building code, which may be obtained from room 1003, city hall, for 50 cents.

CHRISTIAN P. PASCHEN,
Commissioner of Buildings.

ATTORNEY'S FEES.

Chicago, March 17.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Would you kindly advise me if an attorney is entitled to more than the twenty dollars attorney's fees, as stated in a lease in a case of confessing judgment? My lease calls for twenty dollars, but my attorney has demanded more. Is he going beyond his legal rights? H. A. G.

We assume that means that he is asking you to pay him fees in addition to the fees that the lease authorizes you to recover from the other party. Clearly, it would be legitimate for your attorney to name any terms that he may choose in advance. If he undertook the employment under an express or implied agreement to be satisfied with the $20, then it would not be legitimate for him to ask for more.

AUTO LICENSE.

Chicago, March 17.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—A lives in Chicago but drives his car out to Winnetka every morning, where he is employed. Would it be unlawful for him to purchase Winnetka license, or must he have Chicago license for his car? C. B.

The wheel tax should be paid where he resides.

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

MARCH 21, 1915.

ROME.—An announcement regarded as of great importance is that the war office tomorrow will call to the colors all the complementary officers of six classes running from the year 1882 to 1887 inclusive. This is taken to mean that a comprehensive plan for a national reserve to protect the frontiers while the active army pushes an offensive against Austria has been worked out.

LONDON.—Three Turkish forts, Kilid Bahr, Namazieh, and Chanak, were practically dismantled during the fighting of March 18, when the Anglo-French fleet in the Dardanelles lost three battleships and had two others badly damaged. This information was gained from allied aviators who reconnoitered over the straits today and made the reports to Rear Admiral de Robeck.

NEW YORK.—A New York paper prints a story that Zeppelins have again attacked Paris. A German airship passed over the city, dropping bombs in its progress. The extent of the damages has not yet been discovered.

PARIS.—A German night attack against La Boiselle, northeast of Albert, was repulsed with heavy losses, according to official dispatches. The allies have begun a vigorous offensive movement in the Pont-a-Mousson region, with the German fortress of Metz as their objective, a Geneva dispatch says.

BERLIN.—Gains over the British troops in Belgium and the repulse of several French attacks near Verdun and in Alsace are reported in today's war office statement.

CHICAGO.—Gardiner G. Willard, for many years a prominent Chicago lawyer and a Harvard graduate, died at his home, 5528 Dorchester avenue. There will be no funeral, no prayers over the body, and no funeral rites of any sort. The body will be sent to the Hahnemann Medical college, where it will be dissected by students studying anatomy. Mr. Willard was a confirmed atheist.

LINCOLN, Mass.—Charles Francis Adams, widely known as a publicist and historian, a great-grandson of President John Adams, and a son of Charles Francis Adams, minister to Great Britain in the civil war period, died at his winter home in Washington, D. C. He had been ill with the grip for a week. He was born in Boston in 1835.

CHICAGO.—Under the name of "Anti-Boodle, Anti-Boss, Anti-Burke Democracy," Altgeld Democrats organized to oppose Mayor Carter H. Harrison and the Burke-Harrison machine. A vigorous campaign is to be made for Judge Elbridge Hanecy as a rebuke to ring rule in the Democratic party. Headquarters were opened at the Tremont house.

LONDON.—Gen. Wogack, the Russian commander at Tientsin, has demanded not only the withdrawal of the British troops from the railway siding in the disputed territory but an apology for the removal of the Russian flag. Gen. Barrow, the British commander, refuses either to withdraw his soldiers or apologize, and in so refusing he has the support of his government. British reinforcements are being sent.

CHICAGO.—James J. Jeffries, the world's pugilist champion, figured in an impromptu encounter in the saloon of Dennis Foley, 79 Halsted street, in which he came nearer losing the decision than he ever had before. He went to the saloon after his show at the Academy of Music, where he met "Bull" Flaherty, who lost $500 when Jeffries defeated Sharkey. Flaherty expressed the opinion the fight was not on the level and landed a blow squarely on Jeffries' face. Jeffries tried to strike back, but was stopped by bystanders.

CHICAGO.—The Rev. Arthur Edwards, editor of the Northwestern Christian Advocate, died at his home, 2818 Indiana avenue. He was 56 years old. The passing of Dr. Edwards makes three great old time leaders of the Methodist church who began their work in the Detroit conference who have been called away within the last six months. The other two were Bishop Ninde and Dr. Fiske.

CHICAGO.—The snow storm of Saturday night, the severest of the season in its effect on local travel, continued throughout yesterday. However, there are signs of a speedy breakup and the return of mild weather.

ST. PETERSBURG.—Payments due from peasants for lands allotted to them on the abolition of serfdom are about to be reduced in 25 governments by 40 to 70 per cent. The total reduction aggregates 9,000,000 roubles yearly. It has been decided to erect a church where the assassination of Emperor Alexander occurred. Nicolai Russakoff, who confessed he threw one of the bombs that killed the Czar, is being tortured.

CHICAGO.—Despite the unfavorable weather, a large audience saw the production of "The Danites," Joaquin Miller's well known American drama. The German Dramatic company gave a benefit performance to Miss Bertha Fiebach, the popular soubrette, at McVicker's.

CHICAGO.—Reinhardt Strauss, 68 Illinois street, was victimized out of $25 in one of the low-down, panel-game houses on Clark street kept by Jennie St. Clair. She and others implicated were locked up at the armory.

LONDON.—Great Britain insists upon the withdrawal of the Boers from Laingsnek into the Transvaal and unless the Boers comply hostilities will certainly be resumed. It is reported that the Boers killed and wounded three officers and 100 men at Pretoria.

RAWLINGS, Wyoming Terr.—A serious outbreak among the Ute Indians is expected in the spring. The Indians are buying ammunition at every opportunity and say they will take the warpath as soon as the snow goes off.

SPEAKING OF SPEAKING.

Chicago, March 19.—Why all this fuss about pronunciation, spelling, accent, etc.? It is just like arguing about the defects of a bad egg. Why not recognize once and for all that by embracing the English language we are sentenced eternally to quarrel about its defects?

The language is not the product of inventive genius and brain power. It simply grew like a weed or Topsy. Hence its defects and perpetual arguments. To emancipate it from this affliction it should either be reconstructed or scrapped. Both plans would be sensible, but neither will be done.

The youthful pupil sees one spelling in a newspaper, another in a library book, and still another in many current magazines. As to the pronunciation we encounter in our daily life and the still worse we endure over the radio, it is simply appalling and appears to extend to each of us the employment of his own caprice.

Spelling bees, once so helpful, instructive, and entertaining, have been almost bereft of their pep, despite present day efforts to restore their punch. It is easy to observe the faltering, hesitating uncertainty of the contestants, and with good reason, for even respected authorities conflict.

More than one artificial and international language is ready and offered to us. They are all the product of brains and inventive genius. It is really impossible to make a mistake either in pronunciation or spelling. In fact, they are so sensible that it is safe to predict their failure, for they will be knifed. Apparently we prefer the affliction.

ESPERANTO.

GOLDEN RUSSETS.

Chicago, March 17.—Apropos golden russet apples. In my childhood in Wisconsin no winter was complete without golden russet apples, but since that time, hound fruit stores as I may, I have not been able to discover a single one. Various fruit dealers have told me that they are scarce, but that the crop, if any, is put on the market in February. I certainly agree with A. L. B. that they are the cream of the apple crop.

It has been fifteen years since I have eaten a golden russet apple, but the delicious taste is still readily recalled. I was beginning to think that, like many another memory of childhood, mine with regard to these apples was enhanced by the sensitiveness of a youthful appetite and the aura that surrounds childhood's experiences. It is gratifying to know that another person is in quest of the delicious, exotic, perfumed sweetness that only a golden russet apple possesses.

CLARE E. GRIMMER.

IN THE BLUE RIDGE.

Chicago, March 17.—I do not think the golden russet grows in the prairie section or in any flat lands. I think it is an exclusively mountain apple, as I have never seen it growing except in the mountains.

When I was a girl attending college in Staunton, Va., which is located in the Blue Ridge mountains, one of the prettiest sights was to see a golden russet apple tree hanging with luscious fruit. I think you could find them in any cold mountain section. However, I don't think they are good shippers on account of their fine texture.

MRS. J. E. BARCLAY.

IN MICHIGAN.

IN MISSOURI.

Chicago, March 17.—I, too, remember golden russets years ago in Missouri. They were also a favorite of mine. They were formerly very common in Missouri and southern Iowa, but owing to their dull, rough skin they were poor sellers and in late years they are being replaced by trees bearing larger, smoother apples. I have never seen any of these apples in Illinois and doubt that, outside of a few small privately owned orchards, any are now left, even in those states. W. E. GUNTER.

TOASTED SANDWICHES.

Chicago, March 18.—Mrs. M. G. H.'s letter asks why toasted sandwiches cost an extra 5 cents. If sandwiches, whether toasted or not, were the same price, then every one who ordered sandwiches would demand that they be toasted. It would take an extra minute to do this, not counting the electricity consumed and the investment in the toaster, especially if the restaurant caters to a large sandwich trade.

P. N. MANTZOROS.

RELIEF FOR DROUGHT SUFFERERS.

Oak Park, Ill., March 18.—It seems quite paradoxical that farmers and residents of New York should feel the need of sending fifty-one carloads of food and clothing to the starving people of Arkansas, Kentucky, and Tennessee, right under the shadow of the great states of Illinois and Indiana, some of whose people were severely damaged by the drought of 1930, while these states contributed not a carload. The Red Cross fund was manifestly inadequate, allowing less than $10 per person for a period of more than six months.

It seems to me that the people of these great agricultural states have not felt the need or known the hunger that stalks in the south. Michigan has sent trucks loaded with food while we have slept. Iowa has sent several carloads.

It is not a criticism on our people but a reflection upon the leadership of agricultural interests in this state and in Indiana. If our citizenship were asked to send food there would be more than enough.

It is said, and no doubt it is true, that warm weather will not mean the end of suffering and want. It is not too late to redeem ourselves.

HUGH D. TRIPLETT.

CAPITAL PUNISHMENT.

Chicago, March 18.—I wish to take exception to the editor's view of capital punishment. As he points out, those opposed to legalized murder believe it is brutal, degrading and "unworthy of civilization." But, says Mr. Editor, "capital punishment is the chief thing that the murderer dreads."

I have no quarrel with that view. Capital punishment is the most powerful deterrent that exists. Gangsters themselves believe it is the most effective weapon to insure group security. It is the view of Warden Lewis E. Lawes, present warden at Sing Sing, that it is not necessarily the severity but the certainty of punishment that deters. The criminal fears life imprisonment as well as death. If the murderer knew that the perpetration of his crime would result in a life imprisonment with no parole, he would refrain from his deed. In other words, capital punishment, although the most powerful deterrent, is unnecessary.

The state, by the substitution of life imprisonment without parole, can set the example to the community of preserving the sanctity of human life and still provide an adequate social defense against murder. MILTON GOLDINSKI.

THE GOLD RUSH.

Chicago, March 17.—Mr. Orr's cartoon in today's TRIBUNE entitled "California's New Gold Rush" is very amusing until we consider the inland waterway development in the middle west, which is pushed forward at great expense, in spite of the fact that many eminent financiers and economists have attempted to dispel the popular illusion that barge service is less expensive than rail.

We should bear in mind that under our great pork barrel system of government all sections of the country are entitled to their share of governmental gold, and if we in the middle west elect to sink our portion in the mud of the Mississippi we should not complain just because money in California is spent in such a way that more people benefit from it; in fact, the taxpayers hereabouts should consider themselves lucky that the western states have not agitated for a government barge line on the Royal Gorge. California has a large area, and the government funds spent in that state are but a fraction of the huge sums spent on farm relief, flood control, and subsidized barge lines.

ALAN M. WARTS.

PETTICOATS.

Chicago, March 18.—THE TRIBUNE'S timely editorial, "And Now the Petticoat," should be a warning to the women of America. It seems woman is gradually and surely drifting back to the days of physical torture and mental agony. The physical freedom she has enjoyed in the last decade has not only made a more womanly woman of her, good to look at, but her intellectual achievements have made their mark during this period.

Dr. Jacoba of Ashland college, is studying physical measurements of girls during the last fifteen years, proves that the girl of today is bigger, stronger, taller, and she possesses a physical and mental wholesomeness that makes of her what a woman should be. Does she willingly encase herself in corsets, petticoats, and long skirts, and go back to the days when she was a manacled biped? Unthinkable!

BAND OF ELEVEN ROB BRANCH BANK IN PHILADELPHIA

Lock 14 in Vault, Subdue Policeman and Flee.

Philadelphia, Pa., March 20.—(AP)—Eleven robbers carrying pump guns and revolvers held up the Elmwood avenue branch of the City National Bank and Trust company today, locked fourteen or fifteen persons behind the iron grill gate in the bank vault, and escaped with between $25,000 and $30,000.

The holdup men drew up to the bank in four automobiles carrying New Jersey license tags and took positions inside. They kept the engines running. Some stood guard outside while five or six went in, advancing with shotguns pointed at employés and customers.

Two of the robbers went directly to a policeman, Martin Kildorf, who had been assigned to duty at the bank because it was pay day for employés of the General Electric company branch plant nearby, and to a private watchman, Alfred Rhodes.

Disarm Policeman.

The policeman and watchman were disarmed and Horace Alexander, assistant cashier, was forced to stand with them. Then another bank employé was ordered to open the gate of the vault. The assistant cashier and officers were marched into the vault. Meanwhile other robbers had lined up other bank employés and six or seven customers and they, too, were marched into the vault. The gate was then locked. They were warned to keep quiet and "everything would be all right."

The robbers gathered up all the money that could be found and backed out of the bank.

While the robbers were working inside their companions outside allowed two persons to walk into the bank and they were forced to join the other prisoners behind the vault door.

Six Hold Up Evansville Bank.

Evansville, Ind., March 20.—(AP)—The "pocket" district of southern Indiana was scoured tonight in a search for six bandits who escaped with between $10,000 and $20,000 in a robbery of the North Side State bank here this afternoon. Five of the men, all young and well dressed, entered the bank about 2:20 o'clock and with revolvers cowed ten bank employés and three customers, Herman Folke, cashier, was struck over the head. The gang then herded the employés, including four girls and the customers, back of the cages and forced them to lie down. Folke said he pressed an alarm button before he was beaten.

After scooping up all the money in the cash drawers and cages the bandits started toward the vault, but the buzzing of the telephone switchboard caused the leader to order his companions to leave. An uncompleted telephone call caused the buzzing noise.

Lock Cashier in Vault.

Baileyton, Tenn., March 20.—(AP)—Two masked men robbed the Baileyton branch of the Green County bank of approximately $1,200 today and left H. A. Hughes, the bank's cashier, locked in the vault. A bank employé found him nearly smothered half an hour later.

SEARCHING OF RUINS FAILS TO GIVE CLEW IN MURDER MYSTERY

Nashville, Ind., March 20.—[Special.]—Another search today of the ruins of the Lee Brown farm house, near here, where two bodies were found after a fire and murder episode Dec. 15, failed to reveal any new clews in the mystery.

Fresh fuel was added to the controversy over the sex of one of the bodies when Joshua Bond, county coroner, filed a petition in Circuit court asking that parts of this body which were retained by Dr. Thurman B. Rice of the Indiana university school of medicine, following his pathological examination, be returned to this county.

At first the bodies were believed to be those of Brown and his wife. Later it was contended both bodies were those of males.

WEALTHY BRIDE DIVORCES HER COWBOY HUSBAND

Reno, Nev., March 20.—(AP)—Mrs. Barbara Monell Glaze, wealthy society girl, today was granted a divorce from Kenneth W. Glaze, Colorado cowboy whom she married Feb. 21, 1928, after a brief courtship. She testified her husband was insanely jealous. Mrs. Glaze is heiress to the $15,000,000 estate of Ambrose Monell, former head of the International Nickel company.

PLANNING GROUP OFFERS HELP ON ROAD PROPOSALS

BY HAL FOUST.

The Chicago Plan commission yesterday tendered its coöperation to the state administration in Gov. Emmerson's announced intention to survey the present and future requirements of Chicago's traffic and to take steps to relieve the congestion, providing the present session of legislature enacts enabling legislation.

The plan commission, in an intensive three year study by a staff, headed by fifteen engineers, has found an imperative need for elevated highways, broad pavements with continuous grade separation that will save minutes for thousands of motorists daily and that will be free from the toll of cross traffic accidents and pedestrian fatalities.

Want to Save Time.

To obtain this same information independently, the state highway department, it is pointed out, would require a staff of fifteen engineers working for three years.

"We want to save the highway department time and money," said Eugene S. Taylor, general manager of the plan commission. "We want to save the motoring public from avoidable delays in getting relief from our present inefficient and hazardous traffic facilities.

"The state can make a material contribution to the future prosperity of northern Illinois by starting to work on elevated highways in Chicago immediately. The jobs that would be created during the temporary unemployment situation would be only a small part of the benefits. There are 150,000 automobiles crossing the city limits daily. If each can be saved ten minutes in reaching its destination the benefits reach astounding figures when reduced to simple arithmetic.

Save $18,000,000 Yearly.

"With 150,000 cars carrying an average of two persons each, there would be 60,000 hours per day saved for these visitors in reducing their traveling time ten minutes. In 300 working days per year this amounts to 18,000,000 hours. Figuring their time worth only $1 an hour, the total is $18,000,000 a year, ten per cent interest on an investment of $180,000,000. This is in addition to the saving to the 500,000 Chicago cars that would use the elevated highways.

"One west side elevated highway, to accommodate 90,000 cars daily and estimated to cost $22,000,000, would save automobile owners of Illinois $9,000,000 a year in time alone. It's a gross economic loss to the community to be without such a highway.

"It is proper that the state should be the agent to build this structure with funds derived from the gasoline tax and motor registration fee. It is designed for the benefit of through traffic rather than for service to abutting property. Through fast traffic, as experience has proved, in Chicago's suburbs and on Warren avenue and on Lake Shore drive, does not benefit abutting property.

Benefits Outlying Property.

"The growth of values in business property from such an improvement will be around the outer end of the elevated highway, where roads will converge to get autos onto the structure. Such sites will be readily accessible to surrounding country and to city dwellers. Traffic in the loop has about reached the saturation point.

"The traffic problem will probably never be solved with the growth in automobile population, continuing, but certainly the next step in Chicago is a system of elevated roads. We are fortunate in having railroad embankments stretching fanlike from the central business district. These afford facilities for the most economical design of pavement with continuous grade separation simply by the construction of a retaining wall, the widening of the embankment and laying the pavement parallel to the tracks.

"This fanlike system of elevated highways will be the primary routes of travel, the through traffic roads, like the main lines of a railroad. They should be built and maintained by the state; their benefits extend far beyond the boundaries of any city, district or county. They should be financed by the gasoline tax and state licenses since they are assets to transportation rather than real estate developments.

Boulevards to Be Feeders.

"Our present boulevards will form a feeder system, a system of secondary lines. With through traffic taken from them, the boulevards will be used in neighborhood trips or in getting onto the main line. Since they are neighborhood assets, it is logical the park district taxes should continue to contribute to their cost.

"The side streets are the switch tracks of this motor transportation system. Their purpose is to serve adjacent property. The adjacent property owners will be more willing to bear special assessments for their improvement when the pavement will not be used by through traffic trying to find its way through the congested and hazardous one level city streets.

"Such a system of main lines, secondary lines and switch tracks represents the needs of today's traffic. It should be built at once unless we are willing to continue the slaughter in trying to move through traffic over surface streets and to continue the loss of millions of dollars a year through the extravagance of inadequate transportation facilities. As for the future—well, our registration figures show that during the last few years every Saturday night in Chicago has had a thousand more cars on the city's streets than on the previous Saturday night."

Annapolis, Md., March 20.—(AP)—A state commission to have charge of the manufacture and sale of liquor was proposed today in a bill offered in the house of delegates by Alexander Goodman of Baltimore. "The state of Maryland, not being prohibited by article 18 of the amendments to the constitution of the United States, hereby asserts its rights as a sovereign power, to manufacture and sell liquor," said the bill.

GARDEN CLUBS' FLOWER SHOW TO OPEN TODAY

BY PAUL POTTER.

Spring's official 1931 entry at seven minutes after eight this morning will be marked in Chicago by the opening of the fifth and largest annual flower show, sponsored by 102 garden clubs of Illinois.

Two acres of exhibition space on two floors of the gigantic Merchandise Mart at Kinzie and Wells streets have been transformed into a labyrinth of evergreen and a profusion of floral beauty.

Late last night the last of huge truckloads of selected blossoms, plants and shrubbery from greenhouses and gardens of Chicagoland, as well as far points, had been placed in their final positions by thousands of workers from garden clubs. Canopies of smilax, sheets of balsam boughs, and even tree trunks have framed the pictures of 50 perfectly appointed gardens, long rows of window boxes, potted plants, cut flowers, dish gardens, and table decorations.

Shows Love of Beauty.

"The flower show of the Garden Club of Illinois is a spontaneous expression of the widespread and deeply felt interest in nature, gardens, and outdoor beauty which prevails in the Chicago region," declared Mrs. W. L. Karcher of Freeport, president, last night.

This Chicago show, she pointed out, is the only exhibition of its size in the world which displays largely the creation of amateur efforts. Forty-two of the gardens were planned and executed, even to forcing of flowers into blooms in homes and greenhouses, by amateur garden women of the state.

Many Out of Town Visitors.

The flower show, which continues tomorrow and all next week, will also be the mecca for special trainloads of visitors from the middle west. Delegations from Milwaukee and other north shore cities will arrive today, while others from Danville, Decatur, La Salle, Ottawa, Peoria, Rockford, Springfield, Joliet, Elgin, De Kalb, Gary and Aurora will arrive today and tomorrow. A special train on the Baltimore and Ohio railroad from Indianapolis will also arrive tomorrow morning with 75 garden enthusiasts.

Specially designed gardens have been built by the Lincoln park, west parks and south parks commissioners, and by the forest preserve commissioners, as well as others by commercial or utility concerns. Two special gardens have been built from the collection of rare plants from prominent estates on the north shore.

Juniors Have Exhibits.

One novel feature for a flower show is to be seen in the three great halls that house this show, the exhibits of junior garden clubs, to show feeding tables for birds, flower markers, posters, bouquets of forced shrubs, tenchery bouquets, miniature garden models, and several playhouse exhibits, showing how corners of gardens may be utilized for children.

Niemoth, Chicago Gangster, Loses Baltimore Appeal

Baltimore, Md., March 20.—[Special.]—Willie Niemoth, Chicago gangster, convicted here eight months ago in connection with the $45,000 pay roll robbery of Henry Sonneborn company, today lost his fight before the Maryland Court of Appeals when his ten year sentence was confirmed by the state's highest tribunal. Niemoth is now in the Maryland penitentiary. James [Fur] Sammons of Chicago also was indicted in the Sonneborn case.

DRY AGENTS ARREST TWO.

PUT FINAL TOUCHES ON CLUB GARDEN

One of the forty-two flower gardens completed in the Merchandise Mart yesterday for the flower show opening there today was this corner garden of the Garden club of Oak Park and River Forest. Shown here are Mrs. Owen L. Rea, Mrs. Albert C. Roos, Miss Anne Rankin and Mrs. Henry L. Clute. The statue is the work of Emory P. Seidel, River Forest sculptor.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

STUTTGART, Germany, March 20.—In an effort to establish their claims to part of the millions left by the late Miss Ella V. von E. Wendel of New York, all citizens named Wendel of Wuertemberg assembled in Leonberg today. They agreed to cooperate in comparing their family Bibles and records to establish that Ella Wendel descended from one of two male Wendels who emigrated from Leonberg 150 years ago. Burgomaster Wendel of Weibligen, who was born in Leonberg, was appointed to represent the family interests. The estate is estimated at between $100,000,000 and $200,000,000.

POLICE RADIO FOR NORTH SIDE IS PUT IN OPERATION

A complete coverage of Chicago and suburbs by radio was obtained by the police department at 1 o'clock this morning, when the third and final unit of the police radio system was officially placed in operation. The newest addition is the transmitter at the Town Hall station.

Police messages have been broadcast for nearly a year to cruising squad cars through the transmitter at the Warren avenue station and later through the one at the Wabash station. Squads on the west and south sides received messages clearly, but not always those on the north side.

The new unit will overcome difficulties now experienced on the north side, according to William P. Hilliard, radio supervisor. Later the three transmitting units will be synchronized on one frequency.

Twins Recovered from Poison Suicide Attempt

Stephen and Thomas Hall, the 20 year old twin brothers who entered a suicide pact and swallowed poison a week ago in an effort to end their lives after they had learned that they were doomed to slow death from progressive paralysis, have recovered fully from the poison. They were removed yesterday to their home at 2731 Congress street.

CIVIC AND BAR LEADERS DINE D. E. LILIENTHAL

David E. Lilienthal, Chicago attorney, who, at 32 years of age, is the youngest member of the Wisconsin railroad commission, having been appointed last month by Gov. Philip La Follette, was honored at a testimonial dinner given by members of the Chicago bar and civic leaders at the Union League club last night.

The pioneering of Wisconsin in the matter of utility regulation, the freedom from political expediency which, it was said, led Gov. La Follette to go outside the state for his appointment, and the qualifications of Mr. Lilienthal in utility matters, were lauded by the speakers.

"For more than twenty-five years Wisconsin has had a tradition of informed and progressive administration of its system of public utility regulation," said former Judge William L. Ransom, chairman of the section of public utility law of the American Bar association.

"It has been drastic, but rarely destructive. Much of the work has been expertly and thoroughly done. Gov. Philip La Follette has not discarded that tradition in his appointment of David Lilienthal of Chicago."

"The coming of the twentieth century brought with it a need for new methods of administering the ancient principles of public service," said Mr. Lilienthal. "To meet that need there were lawyers sufficiently public spirited and resourceful for the task."

WOMAN CHARGES HUSBAND IS GONE; SO IS HER MONEY

Mrs. Camilla Zychowski, 25 years old, 1234 South Wabash avenue, reported to the police early this morning that her husband, Bruno, was missing. So were all his belongings, including photographs and $4,000 that Mrs. Zychowski obtained a few weeks ago by selling a candy store in New York.

She said that Bruno, to whom she had been married for two years, persuaded her to sell out and come west to grow up with the country, and that he told her when he left yesterday afternoon that he was on the trail of a big business deal that would require the use of all their capital.

HULL HOUSE POTTERY RIVALS CHARM OF OLD WORLD WARES

Rivaling the charm and ingenuity of the Swedish, Austrian, Danish, French, and Italian accoutrements for the modern table are those made in Chicago at Hull House. In the pottery room of the famous social settlement, children of the neighborhood, Italian and Mexican for the most part, make figurines, candelabra, dinner sets and garden pottery that compare favorably with many of the importations.

Under the direction of Mrs. Myrtle Merritt French, Hull House provides instruction and material free of charge.

SMART TABLES TO BE A FEATURE AT FLOWER SHOW

BY HELEN BARTLETT.

Breakfast, luncheon, and dinner tables, either formal or informal, are exhibited by the various clubs and the harmony of china, linen, and floral decorations are the points on which the entries are judged and prizes awarded. The judging of tabels takes place this morning.

Many Clubs in Competition.

Breakfast tables are entered by the Kenilworth Home and Garden club, La Grange Garden club, Kenilworth Garden club, Pottawatamie Garden club, North Shore Garden club, Lombard Garden club, Crystal Lake Garden club [Peony chapter], Downers Grove Garden club, Wheaton Garden club [Unit 4], Hinsdale Garden club, Ravinia Garden club, Edward Hines Jr. Hospital Garden club, Windsor Park Garden club, Geneva Garden club, and the Evening Garden club of Wilmette.

Clubs from Glencoe, Evanston, Bannockburn, Riverside, St. Charles, Winnetka, Aurora, Edison Park, Flossmoor, De Kalb, Batavia, Highland Park, Barrington, Western Springs, Deerfield, Lake Forest, and Wilmette have entries in the dinner table division.

The tables presented represent the newest ideas and smartest effects in this department of artistic expression and ingenuity. The old and the new in accessories are utilized in achieving unusual and beautiful arrangements. On some table are accourterments of age and value—priceless linen, china, and glassware loaned for the occasion by club members. On others the most modernistic of the modern offerings in table decoration are used to good effect.

Modern and Old Fashions.

Garden Lovers:

Do Not Fail to See Our Model Garden at the Merchandise Mart Flower Show . . . and Sow Vaughan's Chicago Parks Lawn Seed

THE GARDEN CLUB of Illinois has built in the Merchandise Mart one of the finest garden shows it has ever been our privilege to see. Rarely is so beautiful a spectacle assembled in our city; and it is to be regretted that its life can be only seven days. No lover of flowers and garden beauty should fail to see it.

Spring Is Here, and Lawn Seed Must Be Sown After our exceptionally mild and dry winter, we strongly advise early sowing of lawn seed. The ground is now in excellent condition for it; and a rainy spring is to be expected. Seed sown now will get a fine start.

Above All, No Timothy Timothy, a coarse hay, is the common adulterant of grass seed mixtures and the greatest enemy of lawns. It comes up quickly; its coarse stems do not stand mowing; it robs fine grasses of food and inevitably ruins a lawn.

Vaughan's Chicago Parks Lawn Seed Contains NO TIMOTHY. It is composed of Kentucky Blue Grass, Red Top and White Clover, in a blend which 54 years' experience has proved best for midwestern lawns.
Price, ½ lb., 30c; 1 lb., 60c; 5 lbs., $2.90; 10 lbs., $5.75.

Vaughan's Lawn and Garden Fertilizer This is a rich, quick acting odorless mineral fertilizer of the formula 5-8-6 (5 parts nitrogen to 8 parts phosphoric and 6 potash). 10 lbs., 95c; 25 lbs., $1.95; 100 lbs., $5.00.

The Most Beautiful Seed Catalog Vaughan's Gardening Illustrated, which is free by mail or at our store, is the 1931 gardener's year book containing 175 plates in full color of annuals, perennials, roses, lilies, water lilies, and gladioli. It describes 2,111 separate flower seeds and the tender, finely flavored Table Quality Vegetables, giving the vitamin value and mineral content of each. A post card brings it to you.

SPANISH KING'S ARCH ENEMY ON TRIAL AS TRAITOR

Thousands Doff Hats to Zamora, Revolt Chief.

BY JAY ALLEN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MADRID, March 20.—Alcala Zamora, arch enemy of King Alfonso and "president" of the Spanish "republic," set up during the comic opera revolution of last December, went on trial here today before a supreme court martial. Also on trial with the thrice cabinet minister were five other civilian republic leaders. They are charged with participation in the uprising.

ALCALA ZAMORA.

The persons of the six members of the "still born" provisional republic were guarded most impressively in the short drive from the prison to the palace of justice, but their ideas, once they had reached the judgment room, were allowed the utmost freedom.

The six gentlemen didn't seem so very dangerous as they rode out from their cells for the first time in three months between lines of mounted civil guards carrying rifles and escorted, flanked and counter flanked, by cars and motorcycles filled with armed police. Around the palace were heavy detachments of those grim civil guards in their patent leather hats and ample accouterments of yellow leather. In the basement 200 more of them were quartered and scores holding their rifles carelessly lined the staircase leading to the great hall.

Their Ideas "Dangerous."

But the ideas of these six gentlemen and their companions, who escaped to France, as relayed by three clerks of the tribunal, who read the testimony of the prisoners in their preliminary hearings, might be considered a sort of very high powered explosive that should not be played with in public places.

Outside thousands were lined up, resenting the resentful look of the guards, but they heard nothing. Inside was a select crowd, which knew it all anyway. And censorship doesn't go off until Monday and by that time the trial of the leaders of the Spanish revolution of 1930 will undoubtedly be over.

The generals and admirals comprising the court tried to look interested. The lawyers dozed or gazed at florid allegorical frescoes of virtue and vice, and onlookers tried to hear, while three unhappy clerks raced through lengthy testimony. To the ears it sounded like a Spanish omelet, but in print it must be alarming to some people of this country.

The court heard, if it really was listening, that the six gentlemen in new hair cuts and blue suits, sitting in the chairs of the accused on a dais before an array of military and naval judges and between stalls of lawyers in black robes, had plotted for two months to bring about the funny sort of a revolution, which they insist on calling a revolution. The court was told they had planned a republic which was to get to work immediately and fix everything that was wrong in Spain.

This, in effect, was an equitable distribution of lands, readjustment of some of the more unfair wage scales, a stop to the encroachment of foreign capital, an Iberic federation with Portugal apparently without consulting the English, to legalize birth control and grant votes for women.

They heard a lot of other hair raising testimony such as how, in the words of the prosecutor, a certain aviator, Ramon Franco, "plotted all over Spain with everybody for a year."

The lawyers for the defense seemed to be angry about the trial being called while the censor still functions. They were not angry enough to spoil a slightly farcical atmosphere, and in the first testimony taken this afternoon labored to have it brought out that Zamora and his friends wanted something very peaceful, but that their mere revolution sped up a bit.

HELSINGFORS, Finland, March 20.—(AP)—A new cabinet was formed in Finland today by Dr. J. E. Sunila, leading personality in the Agrarian party. The new government will attempt to restore internal peace and order. H. J. Rocope, who was foreign minister for many years, handed over his portfolio to Finland's present minister to Moscow, Baron A. S. Yrjo-Koskinen.

Slayer Confesses

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PEIPING, March 20.—Chinese authorities at Yunnanfu, capital of Yunnan province, today secured a confession in the murder there Sunday night of Mrs. Vera White and Mrs. Victoria Miller, American missionaries. A servant, arrested with nine other suspects, admitted having taken a part in the murders, and gave evidence that the plot extended beyond the servants employed at the mission. The identity of the "higherups" was not made known. Reports from Yunnanfu indicate that the murders were associated with some sort of anti-foreign campaign.

Report 1,000 Reds Slain.

KIUKIANG, China, March 20.—(AP)—The Nationalist government claimed today that its forces had routed communist bandits in southwest Kiangsi province, killing 1,000 in the last four days. For two years brigand armies have levied tribute upon this region, despoiling the countryside, applying the torch to cities and massacring inhabitants.

BARE PLAN TO SEND DIRIGIBLE TO DESTRUCTION

Scheme Was to Fake Rivets in Frame.

Cleveland, O., March 20.—(AP)—A sabotage plot to destroy the world's largest dirigible and numerous airplanes was believed to have been uncovered tonight as department of justice agents continued an investigation of the wrecking of a navy bombing plane and an alleged scheme of a worker on the dirigible to freeze rivets in the framework with water instead of hammering them in.

Paul F. Kassay, the suspected worker, was under arrest at Akron, O., where the giant dirigible is under construction. He denied the accusations and said he was the victim of a frameup.

Federal investigators said Kassay was a fanatic and they believed he had been planning to die in a crash of the dirigible, if necessary to accomplish his purpose of destruction. They said he was a communist, but officials of that party disclaimed him.

Trial Trip Due This Summer.

The giant dirigible, named the Akron, is to be ready for its first trial flight early this summer. It is planned to be the world's most formidable fighting ship of the air, and will be operated by the United States navy.

Officials of the Goodyear Zeppelin corporation, which is building the ship, and navy inspectors said no damage had been done and that no fears were felt for the future safety of the craft. Every part put into the construction is given double inspection, but had it gone out with rivets which originally had been secured only by frozen water, disaster would have overtaken it.

Department of justice agents had been working on the case nearly six months before Kassay's arrest. It was the wreck of a bombing plane in San Diego, Cal., Sept. 3, 1930, that started the probe.

Pilot Killed in Crash.

Pilot W. Y. Ypharraguerre was killed in that crash when an upper wing of his plane collapsed from a mysterious cause. His craft was one of 18 delivered to the navy in the spring of 1930 by the Great Lakes Aircraft corporation of Cleveland. Kassay had worked on them as an employe of the builders.

Subsequent investigation of the navy pilot's death showed that at least two of the planes which previously had passed inspection were dangerously defective. Some one had weakened the wings so they eventually would have collapsed.

Suspicion of the agents began to center on Kassay. Meanwhile he had taken a new job in the dirigible construction force. The department of justice agents put one of their operatives to work beside him and recently Kassay is said to have disclosed his plans.

Harold Nathan, acting chief of the bureau of investigation at Washington, said Kassay's plan was to put rivets in the frame, but instead of hammering them into place, to wet the hole with water so that the rivet would freeze. The deception would not be readily apparent, because the ice would not show plainly against a background of duraluminum.

AUTOIST ASKED TO DIM LIGHTS KILLS ATHLETE

Anderson, Ind., March 20.—(AP)—Stanley Tyska, 20, for three years center and star on the St. Mary's Catholic High school basketball team of Anderson, was shot and killed by an unidentified motorist three miles west of Anderson tonight after one of his companions had yelled to the man to dim the headlights of his automobile.

Gypsy Home Bombed on West Madison Street

Russian Writer's Earnings Exceed Soviet Premier's

Boris Pilnyak, in New York, Lion at Tea.

BY ALTA MAY COLEMAN.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—The visitor of the week, in literary circles, was Boris Pilnyak, novelist of the soviet. He arrived last Thursday. He announced, through an interpreter, that he came to the United States because, "I had seen the oldest civilization, the far east, and I wanted to see the youngest.

KONRAD BERCOVICI

"Soviet Russia is intensely interested in America. English is being taught in our high schools; Sinclair Lewis and Upton Sinclair are well known among us."

Another reason might be that Pilnyak's novel, "The Volga Flows Into the Caspian Sea," is in process of translation by Charles Malamuth, and will be published over here very soon.

Pilnyak does not speak any English, though he looks one hundred per cent. Nordic, tall, blue eyed and fair haired, the blonde type of Russian. As a matter of fact, he is remotely of German stock, from colonists who went to Russia in the eighteenth century. His real name is Boris Andreyevich Vogau.

In Russia, Pilnyak says, he belongs to an author's union. There are three branches, proletarian, peasant and intelligentzia; he belongs to the third, which has 6,000 members. Though the salaries of Russian government officials are limited to 275 rubles a month maximum, authors are allowed to receive royalties as in the United States; so youthful communists all have a shot at writing. Over a million copies of one of Pilnyak's novels were sold. So his income is as large as Stalin's. He collects china and miniatures. He has been twice married and has two children.

Floyd Dell asked Pilnyak to describe some of the practical differences between the old and new mental outlook in Russia. Pilnyak gave as an instance that on Dec. 25 last year he found his little daughter going to school, and apparently unware of any special significance of the date. He asked her if she knew it was Christmas. She said, "oh yes," she had heard of those old superstitions! She was born since the revolution, and has never seen a Christmas tree or other celebration of the day. But to himself, he said, he would never be able to regard the date as quite like any other; his childhood had included Christmas.

One of the most popular of translated authors in Russia is O. Henry. Mr. Gumberg, who is piloting Pilnyak around New York, admits that he may be partly responsible for this vogue. When he was in college here he was induced to buy a complete set of O. Henry on installments; and going back to Russia, he took the books with him. During the war there weren't many books available in Russia for translation, so a literary friend set to work on O. Henry.

Konrad Bercovici is another popular author in Russian translation. Some of his books have sold as many as 400,000 copies. Bercovici is an expert on gypsy lore. He says there are nearly 5,000 gypsies in Chicago, but that they have been so demoralized by living there that gypsies from other parts of the United States avoid them.

Mrs. J. B. Priestley arrived last week from England, and went on west to join her husband on his lecture tour. She didn't give any interviews, but it is said that she looks after most of her husband's business affairs for him . . . Vicki Baum, author of "Grand Hotel," was expected this month, but has postponed her visit until May. She has engaged to go directly to Hollywood for a three months engagement.

America Gets Another Novel by Colette

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"Renée, la Vagabonde," by Colette. [Doubleday-Doran.]

"This Man and This Woman," by Carl Grabo. [Century.]

Colette is the darling of the French reading public. She also is the darling of some of the English reading public, among them Arnold Bennett, who calls her the greatest woman writer of France, while Rebecca West, says she is "a personality so strong that for her parallel one has to go outside life to great literature, and cite 'The Wife of Bath.'"

Until recently Colette was denied to the American reading public because there were no good translations of her books. "Cheri," a superb study of a gigolo, appeared in a superb translation by Janet Flanner. Hope sprang thrillingly in the breasts of Colette's admirers.

"Mitsou" followed, a book of much less importance. "Claudine at School," one of the early autobiographical volumes, then came. A few weeks ago "The Gentle Libertine" appeared in translation by R. C. B., who is Rosemary Carr Benet, the wife of Stephen Benet. Its theme slightly shocked many readers, who will, however, regain their composure with "Renée, la Vagabonde."

"Renée" is an intensely autobiographical record—so they all say. As it was published in French in 1910 there has been time for the truth about its origin to get around. It is told in the first person and meticulously sets down the reactions of a woman of thirty-three who has been married unhappily to a cad—who is said to have been Mr. Willy, who was Colette's first husband—to the idea of a second marriage. The heroine is a mime and a dancer, just as Colette was, and also a writer, who has trained herself not only to see her emotions with clarity but to set them down.

"Renée" is a very subtle study of the effect that a certain kind of marital possessiveness in a man can have upon a sensitive woman. Love becomes for her a tyranny, from which, at any price, she must escape, and to which she cannot, even though she yearns for it, return.

In French "La Vagabonde" is a remarkable human document. It is written with a brilliance and a sensitiveness to the idiom of the material which all French critics acclaim. Its idiom is that of the small music hall artists, the wearing one night stands of the troupers. In the translation which Charlotte Remfry-Kidd has made of it that idiom, that atmosphere, is lost.

The book is more puzzling than subtle. There are beautiful and memorable passages in it—vignettes of the performers in the music hall, descriptions of the love making which won the heroine's heart but terrified her mind; glimpses of the physical discomfort of a dressing room, the picture of a journey. But they are memorable because even a bad translation can't ruin them. The translator almost manages to make something commonplace of the spiritual struggle between the heroine and the man who adored her.

Speaking of the spiritual struggle between a man and a woman, Carl Grabo of Chicago has written in "A Man and a Woman" a novel about the adjustments of the sexes in love which has understanding in it. It is a first novel and has most of the faults of first novels. It doesn't entrance. It moves slowly. It doesn't always make one believe in its plot. But it has a definite realty of character sturm und drang, as the Germans say. It is the story of a girl who was a feminist in the sense and in a time when being a feminist meant making speeches and talking a lot about woman's right to her own life. She was shanghaied into marriage by the sheer brute appeal of a man who did exactly to her what Renée was afraid that the man she loved would do to her if she married him. He possessed her so completely that she doubted her own love for him.

It is an interesting psychological situation. Mr. Grabo is more skillful in his choice of material than he is in its working out. The physical background of "A Man and a Woman" is, while not so near to us as the abode of the author—who is a professor at the University of Chicago—interestingly local. It is a farm and a farming community downstate somewhere, and—for a brief time—Chicago.

The Woman Scorned.

"Sylvia," by Louise Platt Hauck [Penn], is a nice romantic tale about a girl who proposed to a man who refused her and then started out in a second hand sedan to get over it. How she succeeded fills 300 pages of pleasant romance.

ENGLISH NOVELIST SOON WILL WED, CONTINUE TO WRITE

BY FRANK SWINNERTON.

LONDON. — [Special Correspondence.]—Miss Almey St. John Adcock, who has been collecting for publication in book form a series of lectures on London delivered by her late father at the Birkbeck institute (the book's title is "London Memories"), will be married very shortly to Shelton Arundel, an examiner in the patent office.

ALMEY ST. JOHN ADCOCK.

She will continue to write novels as before, and so her many admirers will rejoice in her new happiness without qualm. They will anticipate charming and well written successors to "The Judas Tree" and "Poachers' Moon."

Meanwhile "London Memories" will be a notable addition to the new books about London which the spring season is to produce, for St. John Adcock knew the town and all that has been written about it from the earliest days to the present. His work, I gather, is not so much a regular history or a personal description of modern London as a survey of the city as it has been seen through the ages by other eyes; and, as Adcock was a delightful, merry talker, it should be a book of real charm as well as one of much information. We all still mourn St. John Adcock, and the book will have for many the added but pathetic interest of being almost the last literary work upon which its author was engaged.

The favorite name for heroines in new English novels at the moment is Caroline! It is not very long since we had Miss Helen Ashton's "Background for Caroline"; and now in one season we either have or are promised three more Caroline books. They are Miss Winifred Holtby's "Poor Caroline," Princess Elizabeth Bibesco's "Portrait of Caroline," and Miss Sylvia Thompson's "Portrait for Caroline." It will be difficult to distinguish between them all.

Miss Holtby's book is a very efficient piece of work, which is not, however, an entirely successful novel. That is to say, it is very well written, but is rather hard intellectually. It tells the story of a bogus company for the production of uplift films, and describes how a rather crazy woman sponged upon everybody and ruined her young cousin in her effort to become an acknowledged power for good.

The character of this woman is drawn with great shrewdness, as is the character of an altogether rascally adventurer who takes classes in film scenario writing. Both these people talk a lot, and it is with people who talk a lot that Miss Holtby is most successful. Although she rightly disclaims portraits, there can be no doubt that the author has drawn largely upon her actual experience as a journalist in presenting this picture of a world of women and societies for promoting self-importance. She has a quick, impatient eye for humbug, and there is a lot of unmasked humbug in her pages.

Miss Holtby is a Yorkshire woman who has just proudly passed her thirtieth year (she insists that she is "on the right side of thirty"). She has been a nurse in wartime London and a domestic W. A. A. C. ("Women's Army Auxiliary Corps"). She was educated at Somerville college, Oxford, and has lectured on modern history. She has also traveled extensively on behalf of the League of Nations union. In the course of her travels she has visited South Africa, and her book shows familiarity with life there. The result of so much active experience is an amusing, caustic book which will be widely read in London.

Cheney Attacks Older Styles of Architecture

Holds Engineers Hold the Real Beauty Secret.

BY THOMAS E. TALLMADGE.

[Fellow of the American Institute of Architects, author of "The Story of Architecture in America."]

"The New World Architecture," by Sheldon Cheney. [Longmans, Green.]

Mr. Cheney pleads the cause of modernism in architecture. He does this in interesting chapters that tell us of the crimes and mistakes of our fathers, of the growth of modernism, and of its application to special forms of buildings and of its future.

The period is well covered. Although there are no ideas as far as I could see that have not previously been expressed by some one else, the book should be valuable to the student of the new architecture for its illustrations alone.

One wonders in reading it and other books of the kind what it is that infuriates the protagonist of modernism. Why do the authors rage? The new art, new that its time has come, has to fight no battles.

It is received with open arms alike on the street and in the salon.

But, true to the accepted method, Cheney utilizes the opening chapters of his book, particularly in the one styled "The Past and Its Slaves," for an attack on the architects of the last century and of the present who draw on the heritage of the past. They get no credit at all for truthfully reflecting an age which was the son and heir of the Renaissance, nor for consummating in this country in the last forty years the most brilliant period of structural engineering the world ever has known, nor for inventing structural steel and reinforced concrete on which the modernists base their theory of design, the "pure esthetic" that shall spring from a "pure engineering."

Rather, according to him, they are guilty of "servile catering to imperialistic masters" of architectural dishonesty and of "spiritual bankruptcy."

However, he thanks heaven, they now have fallen before the "ruthless logic of the engineers." This "superiority of the engineer" complex permeates all the writings of the modern critics. In this idea Le Corbusier and Hitchcock considerably preceded Cheney. The fact is that "as the constitution follows the flag and the Supreme court the election returns," so the engineers follow the architects. The architect conceives the structure, not the engineer, who in the usual case does as he's told.

Another old saw brought forward in this book is the injunction that the architect look to the automobile and the ocean liner for his inspiration in honesty and logic. Not touching upon the fact that there is no possible analogy in their purposes, the reputable architect probably would be scandalized by discovering exaggerated wheel bases and twelve cylinder hoods over four cylinder engines, to say nothing of smokestacks that are occupied by storerooms and staircases.

After Mr. Cheney sings his hymn of hate, he becomes more enjoyable and more reliable, even though occasionally he does remember how much he hates the eclectics and growls a bit.

All of the modernists are conveniently listed (they all shine in contrast to the rascals of the old regime) and Louis Sullivan and Frank Lloyd Wright both get well deserved encomiums.

Architecture is a language (I am not quoting Mr. Cheney). We are seeing the birth of a new culture. As it develops it is speaking with the language of the new architecture.

This is notably true of the skyscraper, eloquent now in its new guise and utterly inarticulate in the styles of the past. Other structures essentially modern in purpose, such as airdromes, moving picture theaters, factories, and shops are finding better expression in the new architecture.

Undoubtedly as the new culture develops and as new ideals spread to other buildings, to the churches and the homes, a new architecture honestly and beautifully will recount the story, but not till then.

VOLUNTEER MARTYR MAKES THIS NOVEL STORY OF A PSYCHOSIS

"Rachel Moon," by Lorna Rea [Harpers], is the second novel by the author of "The Six Mrs. Greenes," which caused a tremendous stir last year. The charm of that tale was not only in the author's perspicacity about life but in her deft technique in weaving together the stories of six women.

"Rachel Moon" is very definitely the story of one woman and one alone, and its concentration of theme disappoints a reader who was intrigued with the author's skill in putting together the picture puzzle of her first book.

"Rachel Moon" is an intense, at times a too intense, story of a girl who herself was too intense, whose life was a sacrifice at the same time almost sadistic in its thoroughness and silly in its goading. Rachel Moon was a girl who felt things too deeply, who never achieved adulthood, whose emotions were always those of the adolescent without balance. When her mother became an invalid—and one which neither spoke, nor, so far as science could tell, even knew what was going on about her—she went into an all absorbing passion of devotion.

She made her own life miserable, her father's a torture, her sister's a misery, and she even sacrificed her own happiness with a boy whom she really loved to her passionate martyr complex.

As a study of an abnormal sense of devotion there is something—a good deal—to be said for "Rachel Moon," but it is the sort of novel that ought rather to have been a case history in some psyciatrist's log than a piece of fiction. After a bit you aren't interested in either the heroine or in most of the other characters. They just plain bore you.

The boy with whom Rachel falls in love amuses you and attracts you for a while, but when he just flops off with her sister because the sister wants him, even he seems made up for the purposes of the story.

Changing World Outmodes Even Rum Pirate Yarns

Five years ago "Corsair" by Walton Green [Doubleday-Doran], which ran in Liberty magazine, would have had more thrill for its readers. Today, daily first page true story booze battles on land and sea have dulled fiction sensation lovers. Mr. Green's first book is a rapid fire yarn of hijacking on high seas and equally lurid living on Long Island. The author was a major in the A. E. F. and chief prohibition inspector under Gen. Andrews, so perhaps some of "Corsair" is based on facts.

Sporting Parson Helps.

"As Hounds Ran" [Huntington Press] is a handsome anthology of poetry and prose about fox hunting, with forewords by John Masefield and Edgar Astley Milne (not the father of Christopher Robin, but the gentleman known throughout England as "the sporting parson"). The illustrations are from old prints and engravings and new drawings by Lionel Edwards and Cecil Alden. The edition consists of 990 copies.

How Austria's Mailed Fist Aided America

"Pilgrims of '48" Tells Unfamiliar Story.

BY EDITH F. WYATT.

"Pilgrims of '48," by Josephine Goldmark. [Yale University Press.]

One of our most important heritages in this country has come down to us from the great Austrian and German migrations from Central Europe to America in the mid-nineteenth century.

"Pilgrims of '48" gives us the history of two distinguished Jewish groups among these pilgrims, the Wehle and the Brandeis families of Prague. Closely related with their story is the preceding international tale of Joseph Goldmark, the father of the writer, a leader of the Austrian revolution of '48.

Strange to say, though that revolution has increased in significance with the years, this volume is, according to the statement of no less scholarly an authority than Dr. Joseph Redlich of Harvard, the first, the only modern description of that momentous occasion in our own tongue.

As faculty members in the famous medical school of the university and in the remarkable secret societies of the young Doctors Goldmark and Fischhorn were leaders.

In these secret societies the young scientists learned to know well the keen and complicated miseries of Austria.

Early in '48, when the starving workingmen of Vienna rose and rioted in the streets, it was to the realistic knowledge and informed sympathy of the medical school of the university that the populace turned for leadership.

In one of the greatest scenes of the history of civilization the united ranks of the medical faculty of the university marched through the packed streets to the Hofburg to urge their demands on the ministry.

At last the ministry learned that the people of Vienna must be heard; must receive concessions. At half past eight o'clock that night Metternich resigned. The city went wild with joy.

In these bright hued and scholarly pages from family letters, private papers, government records the story of the sweep of that marvelous year, through to that crushing catastrophe of reaction of which Trevelyan says that:

That failure sent to us from the central empires many cultured and sincere lovers of liberty who were later to form an integral factor in every ensuing struggle for democratic freedom in this country.

From a household of many servants, from the rich shadowed courtyards and architecture of ancient Prague, the Wehle kinsmen and kinswomen, looking back and forth from the German-English dictionaries in their hands to the changing scene about them, journeyed over the ocean, over the canal routes of America to the bare reaches of Indiana prairie towns.

There they worked, worked, worked; and also set up their cheval glasses and their grand pianos and unfolded their fine linens; and without interruption continued to think and talk about liberty.

Sagging Mouth Corners Destroy Facial Beauty

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Speaking about lines in the face, which do you think are the ugliest? I don't mean the most ageing. I mean the most disfiguring to beauty. Of course, none of them are what you'd call beauty assets. But then, some lines aren't so bad as the crinkly little ones around a merry eye, say.

The lines that do the most damage to an otherwise nice looking girl are those around the mouth corners—the corner droopers, we'll call them for convenience sake. And because they give you the droops, if you have to look at them on yourself or on some one else. These are UGLY lines and you can't call them anything else.

The identations that run from nostril to mouth corners aren't attractive; still they're not so uglifying as the droops. Beside, the former are not always of one's own making. The mouth corner ones are—and they're not made of anything nice, either, which explains why they are the least pleasing of all face lines.

The nostril to mouth corner parenthesis lines are sometimes the mark of ill health. Some children have a decided tendency to this characteristic—usually undernourished and sickly children. But they can be removed with a little more fatty tissue added to the under-skin structure. As health improves the under tissue fills out and the parenthesis lines vanish, unless they have been there a long time, in which event much more stringent efforts to erase them have to be adopted, and special massage work and tissue nourishing creams applied.

Those other lines we're voting for erasure today, the mouth corner ones, sometimes can be removed with one magic gesture. It consists in simply lifting the mouth corners up and keeping them up. If they're young, that works. If they're deep-etched, not only will the mouth corners have to be lifted and kept lifted, but you'll have to put them through a few months' period of patting or tapping, finishing the tap or pat with an upward little stroke, the fingers being greased with a nourishing cream.

BEAUTY ANSWERS

I.V.: IF YOUR MOUTH IS LARGE instead of carrying the lipstick to the corners stop about half way on each side and gently blend the rouge the rest of the way. This keeps the greater part of the coloring to the center of the mouth and, to some extent, diminishes the size.

J. L.: GOITER IS AN ENLARGEment of the thyroid gland. X-ray treatments are successful in many cases. It would be well to consult your physician and let him determine the treatment necessary.

Preponderance of Advice Staggers Young Mothers

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

The "Youngest Bookshelf," a list of books to be read to children and by them, will be sent by Mrs. Bevans on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

It isn't just child management that worries so many young mothers. That would be quite simple for them, if it were all the managing they had to do. But they so often have to combat the opposition of a husband, a sister and brother-in-law, or a grandmother. For instance, here is one of many pleas:

"Is there anything one might tell an overly anxious grandmother, who thinks the child is exposed too much to fresh air and sun? And that the child should not be allow to cry, but should be held and rocked, and that doctors don't know it all, for they have not had children? In other words, how to cope with a preponderance of advice?"

The great obligation is to bring up your child as you think he should be brought up. But often it requires tons of tact to put it over.

Grandmothers, when they were young, were usually so busy bringing up their own children that they did not have much time to enjoy them. But with grandchildren they have all the pleasure and not much of the burden. In addition, many grandmothers cling to the old ideas of baby care and have lots of time to fuss about everything.

We have statistical evidence that children are healthier now than they were ten, twenty or thirty years ago, and it is due to our greater knowledge. More sun, less clothing, less bundling, more scientific feeding, all have played their part. As a test, ask a grandmother who opposes modern methods about summer complaint, which in the old days made the second summer a nightmare.

The new way is better and perhaps with tact and firmness—easy to say. I know!—those who think in the old way can be convinced. It is at least worth trying.

Many grandmothers have already changed and some of those who write me are more modern than their daughters! One of these says "Thank you for your hopefulness to grandmothers, as well as mothers." You see, people can change.

Be as considerate as you can of your relatives, but remember that your great obligation is to your child.

Food Talk.

A young woman writes: "I obtain good results when I use recipes that serve four or six people. But when I divide these same recipes into halves or thirds as I must do when I cook for my husband and myself, I am not so successful. This is especially true of my biscuits, muffins, and cake. Won't you tell me why my small quantity cooking should be inferior?"

Some housewives whom I know do not go to the trouble to divide eggs. They reason that the addition of the half egg will not make much difference. But a half egg is about 1¼ tablespoons of liquid and this is sufficient to make the batter considerably thinner. The texture is sure to be influenced and the product can not turn out as it would without this extra egg. Fractions of cups are not always accurately marked on all measuring cups. I have discovered that these graduations are sometimes off more than a tablespoonful. This accounts for some of the difference in the batter and the baked product of small portions. So be sure that the graduations on your cup are correct. If they aren't measure with spoons.

One may measure ingredients for small recipes accurately and yet fail because of incorrect mixing and baking. Any one knows that a bowl in which you beat two eggs thoroughly is not the bowl for beating one egg or a half egg thoroughly. And the same thing applies to baking pans.

When we divide a muffin recipe that makes twelve medium sized muffins in half we can not spread this half quantity out into eight muffins and expect to get the same result. We can only hope to have comparable results when we put the batter into six normal sized muffin tins. If you must use a muffin tin for eight muffins fill six rings with batter and two rings with a little water. In other words, when you are baking provide exactly the same or as near the same mixing and baking conditions for small as for larger quantities.

CREAM OF CAULIFLOWER SOUP.

½ tsp. salt
1 qt. boiling water
1 bouillon cube
3 tbsp. flour
2 tbsp. cold water
1 cup milk
1 tbsp. butter
Pepper

Wash the cauliflower, trim and separate into flowerets. Cook flowerets and tender green leaves in an open kettle in boiling salted water until tender. Cooking requires from 5 to 7 minutes. Drain off the liquid and to it add enough boiling water to make one pint. Add bouillon cube and heat slowly to dissolve. Blend flour and water to a smooth paste. Add to bouillon liquid, stirring to keep smooth. Boil briskly 2 or 3 minutes. Add milk, butter, and finally chopped cauliflower, of which there should be 1½ cups. Add a dash of pepper and more salt if desired. Reheat and serve at once.

Yield: Three and three-fourths cups or 4 servings. One serving: Total, 105 calories; protein, 16 calories; fat, 51 calories; carbohydrates, 38 calories.

RICE CREOLE.

Add boiling water to 1 cup of washed rice and let stand 10 minutes. Then drain thoroughly. Into a frying pan containing 3 tablespoons of butter put 1 minced onion, 1 leek, and 1 green pepper, cut in pieces. Cook slowly 5 minutes. Add ¼ chopped mushrooms and continue cooking for 3 minutes. Then add 1 cup hot chicken or lamb broth and 1½ cups canned tomatoes. If the broth is not available, dissolve 1 bouillon cube in 1 cup of boiling water. Add the rice, turn the mixture into a casserole, put in the oven and bake until rice is tender and liquid has been absorbed. Ten minutes before removing from the oven sprinkle ¼ cup of grated or sieved cheese over top.

Yield: Four servings.

The Separate Tunic Is Exceedingly Good

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—To be the last word in Paris fashions you must have a two piece frock, preferably with the top contrasting in color with your skirt. This fashion, which has been increasing in popularity for daytime wear ever since the holidays, has invaded the evening mode, too, and the smartest women in Paris and at the chic resorts are wearing evening frocks with separate tunic affairs (should we call them blouses?) that may match the skirt in color and material or that may contrast with it on both counts.

There's no need to point out to you the practical advantages of such a style, which means that you can make one smart frock out of two outmoded ones.

Lenief S. A. made the separate tunic frock sketched today for Vera Korene, an actress noted for her elegance, to wear in her Paris success, "Matricule 33." It's of ivory crêpe satin, which, you know, is smarter now than white. The skirt is tight around the hips and voluminously circular below. Three horizontal folds lift it into a slightly Egyptian line in front. The simple cutaway tunic has a surplice closing draped over toward the right hip, where it's fastened with a pearl and diamond buckle.

A FRIEND IN NEED

Elderly Woman Needs Clothes.

"I am an elderly woman, alone in the world. I have always worked for my living and feel that I could do light housework now, but a nervous affliction makes it almost impossible for me to get anything to do. I need clothing but I cannot affard to buy it. Can you get some for me through your column? I wear size 52. S. H."

This woman's condition is really pitiful, but a fighting spirit and her pride will not let her admit defeat. Can you help to make her more comfortable and improve her chance of getting some kind of work by donating presentable clothing in her size?

THE SIXTH JOURNEY

BY ALICE GRANT ROSMAN

SYNOPSIS.

John Falconer, a successful architect, returning home to England from Cape Town, meets Hilary Revel, author of travel books, on shipboard. During the journey home their acquaintance grows into a friendship neither wishes to end.

John tells Hilary of his daughter, Judith, born of a café singer while he was a soldier. His wife, John says, had magnanimously adopted the child. Hilary suspects such magnanimity. John's sister Gertrude became Judith's legal guardian when his wife died.

Hilary had taken her war-invalided brother Hugh away from home ten years ago to give her younger sister Christine and brother Stephen a better chance. Now that Hugh was dead, Hilary was returning home. Hilary is not met when the boat docks, and John takes her to her door. Hilary's stepfather, the only sympathetic member of her family, tells her that Hugh left her his possessions in trust, to be settled on her at her marriage or to buy her an annuity at the age of 40 if still single.

The next day after their return John takes Hilary to luncheon. He tells her he loves her and asks her to marry him and Hilary accepts.

Judith leads a lonely life in her aunt's home. She has a private teacher, Miss Mead, while her cousins are away at school. Her cousin Prue is her only friend in her aunt's home. Her father she knows as Uncle John. She senses she is different in some way from other children. When Aunt Gertrude hears of her brother's engagement she sends Judith to the country. Then she invites Hilary and John to dinner. John is uneasy about Judith not being in school. He thinks it unfair to drag Hilary continually into the question of the child, and Hilary feels that he has had enough interference in caring for Judith. John writes Gertrude for the truth. She replies that she cannot, as a decent widow, send a waif of dubious parentage among other children.

Judith, at the farm of her former nurse Tracy's brother, is badly treated by the old servant. She has had no mail since her arrival. Judy meets Clive Harpenden, the little invalid of the home where she delivers cream for Tracy. Judy determines to write secretly to Prue.

SECRET TREASURES.

Judith had her half-crown and she must write to Prue tonight. She must also buy something for her hands. Miss Mead, she knew, put cream on hers at night to keep them soft and white, and then wore gloves so that the sheets should not be soiled. Judith had a pair of cotton gloves—her fabrics, Miss Mead called them—as well as her kid ones for best. She would have to hide them in the morning, and the cream, too. Tracy must not find out.

She bought the wool first and then with a beating heart entered the little shop which sold toilet accessories and patent medicines. She did not know what cream to ask for so took what was offered, and also seized with relief a cake of soap smelling of violets. Two shillings had gone and this was extravagant, but she could not wait to consider that. With the note paper and envelopes she was unlucky, for the woman wouldn't sell her less than a packet and this was sixpence. Miserably she remembered that she had now no money for a stamp. It couldn't be helped. Perhaps the postman would deliver it and Prue would pay. It always made Aunt Gertrude angry when she received a letter without a stamp, but Prue was different, thought Judy wistfully, and she would explain. As soon as her father came home she would pay Prue back. She would like to do heaps of lovely things for Prue some day.

Hiding behind a hedge, the little girl stowed her treasures away where for ten days the half-crown had rested. They were very bulky, but the tucks in the shoulders of her cotton frock made it rather full, luckily, and she did not think the bulge would be seen.

Nevertheless she had no real peace of mind until bedtime, and whenever last, sitting near the window, but not too near, lest she should be seen, she wrote her letter to Prue.

Tracy came near her she was in terror that she would lose them yet. When at length she climbed stiffly to her room she locked the door behind her and for the first time felt safe.

The soap was unwrapped with loving care, the cream and gloves laid ready for use after she was in bed. Filling the hand basin, Judy undressed and washed her burning body all over with cold water and the violet soap until she felt almost her old self again. Then with the utmost cunning she stowed the soap away in the toe of one of her best shoes. She was afraid Tracy might burst in in the night, discover it and carry it off, and even the pleasant scent of the room was a menace.

Last, sitting near the window, but not too near, lest she should be seen, she wrote her letter to Prue.

Dear Prue: I hope you're quite well. Did you know I was sent away to the farm? I don't know why I was sent, but I don't think it was my fault. Miss Mead said she would write to me and ask you to, but I haven't had any letters, although this morning I thought there was one. Darling Prue, will you write to me? I am sorry I have no stamp for this letter, but I had to pay sixpence for the paper and envelopes—she wouldn't sell me just one piece—and I hadn't any more money. I will pay it back to you when my father comes home, and that's why I am writing to you, because I am worried rather. You see he is sure to come some time and how will I know, Prue, if I don't get any letters, and perhaps he wouldn't find me. I am dreadfully worried about this. I am sorry I am so far away and can't see you on Saturdays any more, so you will write to me, won't you? You don't think they'd take my letters, do you, Prue? Your loving JUDY.

They had found their little place in the country all in a moment and without seeking it, by the merest chance. It was in Buckinghamshire, the Chiltern hills. Falconer's firm knew all about it, having had to go over it thoroughly when the present owner bought it twelve months ago. Now he was off to China and wished to sell it again.

Falconer had hired a car and driven Hilary out there at once and they were both charmed with it, though she had found him difficult in the extreme about several quite good flats in town. It was the expert in him, she supposed, always something of a trial to the inexpert. The house was little more than a hundred years old, and lacking in all the architectural monstrosities that burgeoned so fiercely in succeeding decades. It was not large, but the rooms were spacious and proportioned with grace. Paneling of an earlier period in two rooms and a really lovely old staircase had been installed by the present owner, who was willing to part with Greenwood at a loss rather than miss a sale.

It seemed to both of them a singularly charming and at the same time manageable place, within such easy reach of town either by train or car that they decided to let the question of a flat drop for the moment and concentrate upon the house. Falconer was longing for a home and for her, and Hilary saw no reason to deny him and prolong the engagement, since she had no doubts. To have about her at last things of her own choosing under her own roof-tree was the most alluring prospect in the world.

"After all, if we find it dreary in the winter we can easily migrate to a service flat in town," said Falconer, "or even at other times for a spell. We are without ties."

She nodded. Neither had mentioned Judith again, and she supposed rather regretfully that he was leaving matters where they stood. This did not altogether fit in with John as she knew him, for he might, as he had once said, have no sentimental feeling for the little girl, but he had certainly shown a definite antipathy to his sister's household, and to leave her there in the circumstances argued an indifference quite foreign to her conception of him. He looked worried at times, and she thought he might be having trouble with Mrs. Livingstone, but he told her nothing about it. His partner's continued illness was harassing, of course, and there was a possibility he might have to go north in consequence of it. He hated being parted from her even for a day.

The house was to be vacant almost immediately and Falconer had arranged to take on the staff and had bought one or two fine antique pieces which Hilary fancied and which the owner wanted to sell. Every moment John could get away from his office they spent together, choosing curtains and fittings, carpets and furniture, the nucleus of their home to be.

The wedding was to take place in July, quietly in spite of the outcry this decision occasioned from Christine and her mother, who would have been even more horrified to know that the bride and bridegroom meant to spend their honeymoon playing with their new house.

"Of course you will go abroad," Christine said to them sternly, but the two criminals merely smiled a secret smile and refused information.

"I am so tired of abroad," Hilary said to John afterwards. "By the way, my poor old publisher pretends to be wrapped in grief because there are going to be no more Revel guides, so I've promised if you ever get a commission to build a palace in some remote country as yet un-Revised I may relent, but not otherwise."

She was a perfect comrade, Falconer thought, remembering Sylvia, who had hated the sea and never dreamt of accompanying him on business expeditions. However much Hilary hated abroad, she would go there with him if he must.

By Mae Tinée.

Good morning!

"Not a creature was stirring—not even a mouse..." when I entered the State-Lake theater. ("But we have no mice in our theater!" the management probably will protest.) Be it so.

The place was packed—with hushed people, not mice—and, on the screen, Count Dracula was bloodthirstily sipping life's elixir from lily-white throats, while dogs howled in the offing, a gentleman in a padded cell shrieked for spiders to eat, and eminent scientists asked one another in hushed tones:

"Can there REALLY BE vampires?"

The picture, "Dracula," is a blend from the book by Bram Stoker and the play adapted from that book. The story is based on a central European legend re: dead that rise from their coffins at sunset and, in the form of bats, draw red sustenance from the throats of the living to sustain their unnatural existence. Count Dracula thus lived 400 years after his death.

The subject is grewsome enough, isn't it? The picture's fairly eerie, too—though not, I thought, as scary as was the play. The movie's framework is too obvious; its attempts to frighten too evident; its dialogue too creaky. Sets, scenery, fogs, etc., are spooky enough.

The action starts in a Transylvania graveyard and wends its way to England. There the bloodsucking count meets his match in a famous scientist, after a series of happenings that possibly will render you as spellbound as was the audience of which I became a member.

Bela Lugosi, as photographed in the title rôle, is a weird looking creature. He stalks and pounces and fades into nothingness in truly appalling fashion. Edward Van Sloan does a better job, however, as Dr. Helsing—which rôle he played on the stage. Dwight Frye is excellent as the vampfre's creature. Helen Chandler is frail and fair, but not, it seemed to me, frightened enough for a young lady in her quandary. Other rôles are well played.

The direction appeared not all it should have been, considering the fact that Tod Browning megaphoned—and I wonder why? But——

"ANNA CHRISTIE."

Produced by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.
Directed by Jaques Feyder.
Presented at the Punch and Judy theater.

THE CAST.

Anna	Greta Garbo
Matt	Theodore Schall
Marthy	Salka Steuermann
Chris	Hans Junkermann

KIND: German adaptation of the play, and the English speaking movie, in which Greta Garbo also starred. Supporting players are German.

QUALITY: Excellent.

SOUND, PHOTOGRAPHY, SETS, SCENERY: Good.

DIRECTION: Able.

REMARKS: Germans will be keen for this version of "Anna Christie." Others will find it interesting for reasons of comparison. On the program is a fascinating colored "short" featuring the Rasch ballet, that both grownups and children will adore.

See you tomorrow.

Letter to Son Said to Settle Columbus' Fate

He's Officially Decided to Have Been Genoese.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, March 20.—A letter written by Christopher Columbus, discoverer of America, to his son, Diego, early in December, 1504, has settled all doubts as to whether the great navigator was a citizen of Genoa and an Italian, according to the findings of a commission appointed to settle this point by Senator Broccardi, podesta of Genoa.

Columbus was irrefutably a Genoese, the commission declares. Its findings, which embrace photographed documents from archives not only in Italy but in Spain and other countries, after several months of careful research shortly will be published in a large volume.

Annoyed by scholarly doubts cast on the nativity of Columbus, Senator Broccardi some time ago decided to establish once for all his city's chief claims to historical fame in being the birthplace of the discoverer of America.

His commission for about a year examined the archives of Spain, going over the documents in the national historical archives, the Simancas archives, King Alfonso's private library, the National library, the Royal Academy of History of Madrid, the general archives of the Indies in Seville, and the Columbia library in Madrid.

The investigators photographed all their findings. Chief among these was the letter above mentioned, which comes from the archives of the duke of Seragus, and preserved in the general archives of the Indies in Seville. This autograph letter of Columbus to his son was written just a few days before the autograph letter of Columbus to Nicola Odenigo, Genoan ambassador to Spain, dated Dec. 27, 1504, which was already in the possession of the municipality of Genoa.

The authenticity of this latter letter had been contested by some academic quidnuncs and it was upon this letter that Genoa based its claims to the place in which Columbus first saw the light of day. Now it is revealed that the other letter written to Diego Columbus and found by Senator Broccardi's commission in Seville corresponds beyond all question to the handwriting of that already owned by Genoa.

"SEVEN VAMPS OF ARCHITECTURE" ADORN BANK OF ENGLAND

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 20.—The first meeting of the Bank of England since the group of modernistic statues on the façade of the new building stirred up public criticism, developed yesterday an enraged protest from the stockholders against the artistic conception of high finance.

Two giantesses stand on either side of the door holding up a cornucopia of wealth, and on either side two muscular males are carrying keys representing the sculptor's imagination of the guardians of wealth. The new Lady of Threadneedle Street is garbed in wind-blown togs.

"The bank authorities always have shown great care in the matter of figures, but have not lived up to their reputation and John Gordon Hargreaves chided, "We have all heard of the late John Ruskin's seven lamps of architecture. I would call these the seven vamps."

Infanta Beatriz, Spain, Reported Engaged to Orleans Prince's Son

MADRID, March 20.—(AP)—Well informed circles today said announcement would be made soon of the engagement of the Infanta Beatriz, oldest daughter of the king and queen of Spain, to Antonio Alvaro de Orleans, second son of Prince Alfonso d'Orleans and Princess Beatrice.

Beatriz is 21 years old and Antonio is 20. They are second cousins. They have been seen together frequently. Friends declare it is a real love match. The youth, like his father, is an aviation enthusiast and flies his own plane.

May Select Jury to Control Plays in New York Theaters

New York, March 20.—[Special.]—A revival of the play jury plan as a way of purifying the stage was proposed today to District Attorney Crain and Police Commissioner Mulrooney by a committee representing the various branches of the profession.

The jury, as suggested, would consist of four representatives of the public, chosen from a panel of 200 selected by public organizations and three representatives of the theatrical profession drawn from a conference board to be formed to protect the interests of the stage people.

Virtually all the leading producers, managers, and playwrights, as well as Actors' Equity association, have agreed to be bound by the verdicts of the jury, Mr. Crain and Commissioner Mulrooney were told.

The proposal was laid before the district attorney and police commissioner by a committee of theatrical people composed of Marc Connelly, the playwright; Frank Gillmore, president of Actors' Equity; Dr. Henry Moscowitz, honorary secretary of the League of New York Theaters, and Lawrence Langer of the Theater guild.

Mr. Crain withheld any comment on the plan until it is presented to him in detail. The committee told him that all the details of the proposed play jury system had not been completely worked out, but that it was certain of the coöperation of all branches of the theater.

Lent Day by Day

DEAN FREDERICK C. GRANT
Western Theological Seminary, Evanston.

Christianity really is a very simple religion when it is reduced to the terms of experience.

Who has not aspired to get real hold of himself, his inner life, to understand it, and to make progress in it? If only we could experience religion as a release, a fresh power, a renewal and transformation of life—even as the saints have done.

But the lesson is, that the law [as St. Paul called it], the pedestrian and humdrum duties of every day, the homely virtues, are not to be despised. "The law was necessary, because of transgressions."

It is only as we really progress on the level that we can hope to draw near to the ascent that leads to the heights. It is by slow and sometimes monotonous pathway of daily duty, of overcoming faults, small and great, of repenting and confessing and asking God's forgiveness, and going on, that the way finally opens that winds to the top of the mount.

Emotion in religion is a fine thing, if our feet are on the ground. This is a principle on which we Americans need to lay hold. Otherwise it is only a passing mood, a mild psychic intoxication, that passes away and leaves us no better than before.

Schools Called Costly Failure by Educator

Columbia Prof. Urges U. S. Overhaul System.

Prof. Thomas H. Briggs of Columbia university yesterday denounced high school and college education in the United States as a costly failure. He spoke before delegates meeting in the closing session of the North Central association convention at the Stevens hotel.

A complete reorganization of the educational structure is the only remedy, Prof. Briggs said. He recommended the appointment of a national commission of picked educators to purge the school catalogues of unnecessary studies. He stated that the reorganization would be expensive, probably costing several millions, but that "we cannot afford to jeopardize the future of our social democracy."

"Whatever our ideals," Prof. Briggs said, "we never can make education appropriate until we have clarified our philosophy. There are a dozen basic principles on which there must be agreement, principles which, if applied, would revolutionize our practice and insure far greater dividends than education has yet paid."

Most study lists are obsolete, Prof. Briggs charged. He said most specialized courses contain "dead wood," subjects that are not referred to after graduation. "Of every hundred men that have received the doctor's degree, eighty never use the technique again after their dissertations are completed. And, of the remaining 20, 13 never produce a study that has the slightest effect upon practice," he declared.

"The words that are recited in classrooms," he continued, "regurgitated on examinations, and impressively proclaimed from professional platforms might as well be vodoo incantations so far as their effects on a large number of practices in secondary education are concerned.

"The commission that I recommend should be composed of the highest type representatives of social and educational philosophy, psychology, sociology and administration, of publicists, economists and real experts from contributory fields of learning. These representatives should be employed to devote their whole undivided time to the problem.

"Their first challenge would be to survey the facts that are known. On the basis of these facts they would define the problems and lay out the program for solution. This would need to be popularized among both the profession and the general public."

Social centers similar to the kinderhort in Vienna to be operated as a part of the public school system were advocated for Chicago last night by Miss Ethel Verry, superintendent of the Chicago Orphan asylum. Miss Verry addressed the midwestern regional conference of the Child Welfare League of America, which opened a two day session at the Knickerbocker hotel.

"These centers should be established near each school and their program should supplement the home," Miss Verry said. "They would be especially valuable as a daily curative agency for children of parents [illegible] work, offering the privileges of the home. They would also be useful as a recreation center for children whose parents live in apartments."

With hostesses taking to pajamas hosts are now adopting a cross between a sultan's costume and a smoking jacket. It was displayed last night as the only really exciting change in men's styles for many years, and caused much comment at the first annual banquet and fashion show of the Chicago Merchant Tailors' association in the Palmer house.

The new "host suit" which was shown was made by one of New York's best tailors, it was said, and cost $225. Some of the Chicago "host suits" may be as low as $175, however, the tailors thought.

Eight Women Will Christen Air Fleet Today

BY THALIA

A GROUP of 8 society women will have the excitement and thrill of smashing 8 bottles of—well, they won't contain champagne anyway—on 8 great big new tri-motor airplanes out at the Municipal airport this afternoon. The christening ceremony is part of the inaugural program with which the service of the Century Airlines is to begin.

Mrs. George A. Seaverns, Mrs. Richard D. Stevenson, Mrs. De Forest Bullard, Mrs. John J. Mitchell, Margaret Emily Lynde, Ellen Root, Mrs. Grant C. Laing, and Mrs. L. B. Manning, whose husband is vice president of the company and general manager of the airlines, are the women who have been asked to give the ships a colorful send off.

Mrs. Seaverns is having a luncheon party for them at the Blackstone, and then they'll all go out to the airport by motor for the ceremony, which is to be at 2 o'clock.

"No Host" Dinner Latest Idea for the Valley Club.

Bathing season's begun at Lake Geneva! The Gardiner B. Hammonds, who had Robinswood [the erstwhile summer place of the Augustus Curtiss, now owned by Sidney Smith] last summer, have leased Fair Lawn, which belonged to the late Charles H. Wacker, and which is on the south shore of the lake, for the coming season. The Curtisses now reside in Santa Barbara. Mr. and Mrs. Harold Beaton of 2236 Lincoln Park West have again taken the Arthur Schmidt east shore place.

Sterling Morton's New Boat Will Be Called Freedom.

I'm told . . . that Sterling Morton's new boat is a beauty, that it will be about the largest of its kind on the lakes, that it is to be named Freedom, and that Mr. Morton has sold the Volante . . . that the reason fashionable ladies and lassies can wear their hair in that fetching long curled style is not because they go to the hair dresser's every day, but because of a new kind of curler that enables them to achieve a charming coiffure in less than an hour's time . . . that some one who wishes his name withheld has given Olivet institute an organ designed for both church and concert use, and that it is to be formally dedicated tomorrow afternoon at 4:30 o'clock.

From 'way off places . . . the Robert McCormick Adamses find Bermuda's weather just now rainy and cool—almost too cool for good swimming—but they've been enjoying long bicycle trips and much tennis . . . the Henry Kitchell Websters and the Walter Strongs terminated a visit with the John T. McCutcheons at Treasure Island a few days ago, and took off by plane for Miami, to motor from there to Chicago . . . the McCutcheons gave a large beach party for their house guests the day they left the island, the chef d'oeuvre of the repast being Nassau native fish chowder.

Arts Club Supper; News of Travel, and Flower Show.

Miscellaneous . . . The Arts club buffet supper and the musical by George Copeland and Mischa Mischakoff are tomorrow evening . . . Mrs. Charles I. Pierce has landed in New York City after her European trip. . . . Mrs. Hubbard Carpenter is at Long Beach, Cal. . . . Mrs. Arthur Curtiss is to give a luncheon at the flower show at the Merchandise Mart on Monday . . . the Lake Forest Music club, of which Mrs. William H. Foster is president and Mrs. Julie Mathers Mann vice president, is to have a program tomorrow afternoon at Mrs. Foster's residence . . . Mrs. Howard White has designed a modernistic sky garden for the flower show and is giving a talk on "Gardens in the Sky" at the show on Wednesday afternoon and at the Art institute on Tuesday, March 31 . . . Mrs. Nelson T. Leviges and her children, Sanford Hopkins and Nelson Jr., are to go to visit Mr. Levinges' parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Agerson Levinge, in Mississippi next week.

Stage talk . . . Eleanor Hayden, who plays the part of Jean Trent in "The Ninth Guest," the current mystery thriller at the Adelphi, is a niece of the Andrew McNallys of Evanston. . . . Local "talent" in "Stepping Stars," to open on Monday evening at the Blackstone, includes Helen Pope, Harley Grant, and Donald Briggs, all of whom have been affiliated with various amateur dramatics and the Goodmans.

Art Institute Alumni Show Worth Seeing

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

THE Art Institute Alumni association opened last night with a glittering program which held most of the delights of an Arabian Night's tale, the annual exhibition of work by members, in the Diana Court salon and the Increase Robinson Studio gallery. The two galleries are one for this affair and most attractive they are, for the hanging committee apparently worked hand in glove with the jury of admission [or vice versa], with the result a stimulating and colorful group of paintings beautifully hung.

Notes of brilliant color splash the walls. Marshall D. Smith opens with a vivid little canvas from New Orleans. Joseph Birren across from him hangs a California landscape with pink and white trees in blossom. Oliver Dennett Grover offers a gorgeous tiny blue mountain lake on the lap of pine girt peaks whose flanks slope gently to snowy summits. Marie Blanke has a gay street with a familiar popcorn stand offering hospitality to the stray nickel. Victor Poole submits a glimpse of a fishing harbor, shacks and boats, and John Norton offers a truly lovely nude.

Rudolph Ingerle is represented by "Kentucky Haze," a picturesque landscape, and Camille Andrene has a dusky still life of cyclamen. Frances Badger has a neat and clever flow of undulating blue hills under a white clouded sky. Josephine Reichman shows her lovely still life that leaves in the memory a haunting fragrancy of green and yellow. Elmer J. Forsberg, president of the association, offers a sturdy portrait of a man. "Beneath My Feet," by Ivan Le Lorraine Albright, nearly sweeps the spectator off his feet from the shock of realizing that this modernist painter has achieved such a lovely painting of tangled flowers and weeds, grasses and bees. It is a beautiful piece of work in arrangement, color, and feeling.

Six important paintings which have been lent to the exhibit by the Art institute point with pride the type of painter the Art institute develops. Arthur B. Davies with "Maya, Mirror of Illusions"; Emil Carlsen with a most delicate and exquisite still life; Abram Poole, "Miss McFadden"; Lawrence Mazzanovich, "April Twentieth"; Anthony Angarola, "Main Traveled Road, Cagnes," and M. MacEwen with a church interior, peasant and great lady, sisters seeking solace.

The exhibition will continue into April and is well worth seeing.

Orchestra Gives Divorce Theme Set to Music

BY EDWARD MOORE.

BY engaging Jose Iturbi, the pianist, as soloist for the Chicago Symphony orchestra yesterday afternoon and tonight, and by making the orchestral part of the program in great part of new compositions, it is to be presumed that Dr. Stock had in mind the laudable ambition of pleasing all of the people part of the time.

The line is fairly sharply drawn. Those whose chief interest lies in novel fabrications of music curb their impatience only with difficulty over a Haydn piano concerto. And those who find delight in such a concerto are likely to listen to contemporary music with pained expressions. So if the two sections found few points of common ground, each had its own points.

At that, the first number was of the old school. Dr. Stock's transcription of Bach's Passacaglia and Fugue in C minor. It is, as it was when first presented, an ideal orchestral paraphrase of a magnificent old work. Then came something decidedly new, the overture to the comic opera, "Neues vom Tage" (News of the Day), by Paul Hindemith.

This is a curious bit of musical drama telling of a couple desirous of divorce, and getting into the newspapers so frequently in their attempts to create grounds that when they finally try to become reconciled they are not permitted to do so, on the grounds that they are no longer private persons, but have become news, and the reader is entitled to his rights.

It is a good modern comic situation, and Hindemith has dressed it up in good modern comic music. Perky is the best word to apply to the overture, also enjoyable.

Then came "Prairie," by Leo Sowerby of Chicago, a composer both prolific and with ideas. Here he has put into music the moods of Carl Sandburg's poem of the same name. Generally speaking, the translation is a great success. It may be that the rhythm of the threshing machine becomes a little pronounced for what is not intended to be program music, but the first mood and the final one are scenes of remarkable beauty. Mr. Sowerby was repeatedly called to the stage.

The final new music was Ernst Krenek's Little Symphony, three short movements made up of hair-raising dissonances here, tunes obvious to the point of naïveté there, a great deal of Krenek's favorable reactions to American jazz elsewhere. One of the strangest things about jazz is that it should be scorned by the right thinking in the land of its birth and received so enthusiastically everywhere else. If Krenek's jazz spoke with a slightly less pronounced middle European accent his Little Symphony would be a first class piece for the attention of Paul Whiteman.

Mr. Iturbi excels in miniature effects of the piano. Wherefore the pretty, tinkling tunes of the Haydn Concerto, his first number, were played exquisitely. With the Liszt Concerto in E flat, conditions were not quite so satisfactory. The melodies, the embroidery of fine notes were beautiful, but the prancing, dashing climaxes lacked some of the lifting exuberance that was needed for a complete show.

Among the items having a share in building up the music of the future, it is necessary to include college choirs, or at least some of them. Some have gone in earnestly for music, with the result that they are incomparably better than the best of a generation ago.

One of the good ones is the Morningside College Methodist choir, which appeared at Kimball hall last night. It consists of youthful voices which have not yet learned how to be anything but pleasant in tone, it is balanced, and it is disciplined.

The director is Paul MacCollin. He led his uniformed group of young artists through a program of sacred music that ranged from Palestrina to R. Nathaniel Dett. Technically and in spirit, it was the kind of performance that proved the joint presence of highly able material and a highly able director.

BY HOWARD BARRY.

Joliet has a new leading citizen today. He has more prestige than the mayor or the oldest settler or the head librarian. His name is Bob Simon, and last night he joined the company of his home town immortals by shooting a basket in the last 25 seconds of play to beat Bishop England, 15 to 14. This win carried De La Salle of Joliet into the quarter finals of the national Catholic basketball tournament at Loyola gymnasium.

That basket was the climax of breath taking play, in which the quintet from Charleston, S. C., had protested an advantage of three points by a clever exhibition of short passing. With their alarmingly slim lead the Bishop England boys kept flipping the ball from one to another as easily and crisply as if they were practicing in their home gymnasium. For two minutes no De La Salle man was able to get his hands on it. Then it was Joliet's ball out of bounds.

Simon Saves the Day.

The De La Salle boys passed it in, swept down the floor, and Bob Simon flashed under the basket. He caught a pass just above his shoe tops, straightened up and sent the ball through the hoop. That brought his team within a point of the easterners, with a little more than a minute to play.

Then came the tip off, a rapid exchange of passes, and again Simon was under the basket. He took the ball on his fingertips and flipped it through the net for the winning point.

Chicago's last representative was knocked out of the running when Gerald Gearty of De La Salle, Minneapolis, swished the ball through the net in the closing seconds to beat St. Mel, 23 to 22. It was the second game in as many rounds that Gearty had broken up. His free throw in an overtime period eliminated Spalding on the opening night.

Tennessee Boys Popular.

It was another big day for the Indiana teams, Catholic high school of Washington, Central of Fort Wayne, Jasper academy of Jasper and Cathedral of Indianapolis coming through in impressive style.

Father Ryan High school of Nashville, Tenn., always a popular team in the Loyola tournament, showed up well in overthrowing Cotter of Winona, Minn., 28 to 19. Cotter had been second only to Campion in high scoring for the first round.

The St. Mel-De La Salle game was a thriller. Rigney and Schubert gave the Chicago Catholic league champions a 3 to 0 lead shortly after the opening whistle, but Eddie Roy of De La Salle promptly scored five points, six, three together with a free throw, putting the Minneapolis boys a 6 to 3 advantage.

Then St. Mel opened with a rush which netted five points on baskets by Patterson and Rigney, plus Schubert's free throw, but Ray Buffalo, the big Indian who plays center for De La Salle, tied the score with a long shot.

De La Salle Leads 19-13.

De La Salle's offense suddenly began to click in spectacular fashion and by the time Montague, Buffalo and Roy paused for breath the score looked neat, De La Salle, 19, St. Mel, 13. That was the way they went into the last quarter.

Then it was St. Mel's turn to attack. Rigney and Patterson scored in quick succession and Eddie Cain followed up with a free throw that left the Chicagoans

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

San Francisco, Cal., March 20.—Our Cubs this afternoon got their first touch of 1931 major league competition and like it. They slapped down the Pittsburgh Pirates, 6 to 3, after spotting the Pirates their three runs in the first two innings.

Charley Root went the whole nine innings, just as he expects to do at Wrigley field in Chicago when the Pirates open the National league season on April 14. Charley, the first Cub pitcher to go the full distance this year, allowed seven hits, two in the first, two in the second, one in the fourth, one in the sixth and one with two out in the ninth. Root walked two men, one in the eighth and one in the ninth.

There were two big innings for the Cub contingent—the fourth when Cuyler singled with two out and the bases full to tie the score at 3 to 3, and the other the fifth, which Hornsby opened with a triple, and scored ahead of Hartnett when Gabby, with two out, knocked the first homer made in the new Seals stadium, where eight games have been played. It was Gabby's sixth homer in the last seven games.

The same teams will hook up tomorrow, with Bob Smith pitching for the Cubs. Heine Meine is the probable Pirate selection.

Cubs Off to Poor Start.

The Cubs came out of the first inning with a 1 to 0 disadvantage. It was lucky for them that it wasn't worse, for the Pirates made a double and a triple before the second out was accomplished, whereas Cuyler, Jurges and Hornsby were unable to get the ball out of the infield. The Pirate double was made by L. Waner, Pirate leadoff man, who held on while Jurges was throwing out Thevenow, but walked home when Grantham tripled to right. Traynor relieved the strain by fanning, after which Suhr rolled to Grimm.

In the second the Pirates got two more runs through a combination of their own hitting and loose play by the Cubs. After Jensen had popped to Jurges, Comorosky tripled to right, Phillips tapped to Jurges, and Bill, with an easy play on Comorosky at the plate, threw the ball away. Comorosky scoring and Phillips pulling up at second. Bednar was called out on strikes, but Little Poison Waner again connected, this time for a single to left. Stephenson made a nice throw to the plate to catch Phillips coming in from second, but Hartnett was adjudged tardy in tagging Phillips, though it seemed he had ample time to do so. Thevenow popped to Jurges.

Wilson Scores First Run.

In their half of the second the Cubs got one run in and had runners on third and second when the end came. Wilson walked and went to third on Stephenson's single to right center, Hartnett fanned, but Bell sent a long fly to L. Waner and Wilson scored after the catch.

It took quite a spell to get the scene set for Cuyler's heroics in the fourth. Stephenson lined to Thevenow and Hartnett singled to left. Bell supplied the second out with a bouncer to Grantham, Hartnett stopping at second. Grimm walked and so did Root, the latter event filling the bases. Ki stepped up and slapped Bednarl's first pitch for a line single to center, which scored Hartnett and Grimm.

Hornsby Drives One 400 Feet.

The fifth was the big thriller for Chicago partisans. L. Waner, Thevenow, and Grantham failed to get the ball beyond the base lines in the first half, but Hornsby led off the Cub half with a triple off the center field fence, 400 feet from the home plate. Wilson fanned and Hornsby muffed a chance to score by not touching up as Jensen caught Stephenson's foul fly. Rogers, who used to conduct daily scull practice at Catalina, went back to third somewhat abashed by his mental lapse, but his chagrin faded a moment later, for Hartnett socked his aforementioned homer and Rogers walked home ahead of him. The score then was 5 to 3 in favor of the Cubs.

The Cubs added their sixth run in the sixth. Grimm opened with a single to center, moved to second on Root's sacrifice, and scored on Cuyler's double to center.

GAR WOOD.

Wood Sets 2 Mile Records in Speedboat

Miami Beach, Fla., March 20.—(AP)—Gar Wood today claimed the world's speed boat record for both the statute and nautical miles, with average speed over measured distances of 101.154 miles an hour for the statute mile and 102.256 miles per hour for the nautical mile. Both records were set with his 12 cylindered Miss America IX on Indian creek here.

The nautical mile trial, as in the case of the statute mile runs, was clocked on electrical apparatus by Odis A. Porter, official American Automobile association timer and representative of the American Power Boat association, and C. F. Chapman, official of the later organization.

There were six observers of the event. They were: Porter, Chapman, Thomas Shibe, Philadelphia; C. M. McHugh, Cincinnati; Bruno Deckhard, Flushing, L. I., and Steve Hannagan, Miami Beach.

Runs Nautical Mile Twice.

The nautical mile mark, which Wood said he would claim as the international record for speed boats, was set late this afternoon. He had twice been clocked at an average time of more than 100 miles an hour in previous tests over a statute mile.

He made only two runs in the nautical mile course, one northbound in 40.50 seconds at a speed of 102.357 miles an hour, and one southbound in 40.55 seconds at a speed of 102.155 miles an hour. A nautical mile is approximately 1⅛ statute miles. The speed trial in this event was made over waters equally quiet and calm as the time of the statute mile trials at noon.

Breaks Mark by 1.102 M. P. H.

Wood's afternoon speed run over the nautical mile was at a pace 1.102 miles faster than the 101.154 miles an hour speed attributed to him for his average speed over the statute mile.

Only a handful of spectators saw the speed king's afternoon runs as compared with several hundred that braved a blazing sun to witness those at noon.

The annual contest in which the river oarsmen of the two English universities match their skill will be described by announcers, who are called commentators in England.

BRAVES DEFEAT YANKEES, 7-6, ON BERGER'S HOMER

Babe Ruth Connects for Number One.

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 20.—(AP)—Babe Ruth connected with his first home run of the year today, but Wally Berger also got one, and the Boston Braves defeated the New York Yankees for their second victory in seven starts against the American league club. The score was 7 to 6.

The Babe's circuit clout came in the third with two mates on bases and pulled the Yanks up on even terms. Berger connected with his homer in the last half of the ninth with the score tied.

Ben Cantwell worked six innings for the Braves and gave way to Bill McAfee, former University of Michigan hurler, who held the Yanks to one hit in the last three frames. Score:

PORTLAND WHIPS TIGERS.

Los Angeles, Cal., March 20.—(AP)—Sammy Hale, former Tiger and Athletic, put the ball out of the lot with the bases loaded in the eighth inning to give Portland a 5 to 3 victory over the Detroit Tigers in an exhibition game here today.

Vic Sorrell had pitched two hit baseball for five innings and Elon Hogsett had held Portland without a run for two innings when the Pacific coast boys began to find him in the eighth. Three singles and a pass had given them one run when Hale boosted the ball over the wall. Score:

MACKS WHIP REDS, 3-2.

Fort Myers, Fla., March 20.—(AP)—The Philadelphia Athletic overpowered the Cincinnati Reds by the score of 3 to 2 today.

Three juvenile pitchers—Lew Krausse, Bill Dietrich, and Hank McDonald—worked three innings each and disposed of the Reds in easy fashion, allowing only four hits. The Athletics made one of their runs off Larry Benton, Cincinnati ace, and made most of their blows count. Score:

Contestants' Spirit of Battle Makes or Breaks Ring Show

BY ARCH WARD.

The Golden Gloves tournament has demonstrated among other things that Chicago and New York have lost none of their interest in boxing.

There is a lesson in the amateur meets, however, which professional promoters would do well to study. They have to convince the public of the honesty of their enterprises.

AVERY BRUNDAGE.

A group of unknown kids from tenements, factories, bakeries, and farms drew the biggest crowd that ever has seen an indoor boxing show anywhere. Thousands were turned away from the largest arena in the world to see Chicago's Golden Gloves finals.

How do you account for it? Has amateur boxing displaced professional in popular favor?

We may be wrong, but the explanation seems to rest in the integrity of the contestants. There is no money at stake. The 2,000 boys who entered THE TRIBUNE tournament had nothing material to gain except a miniature golden glove and a place on the team which will fight New York March 30 and France May 12. If they didn't love to fight they wouldn't be there.

Spectators at the Golden Gloves bouts see sustained effort. When a boy sinks to the floor from a sock on the chin the fans are reasonably sure he has been knocked out. If his opponent happens to land an unintentionally low blow you don't see him writhe in agony, hoping to convince the officials the bout should be stopped and victory awarded to him. These are comforting sensations for the folks who have been paying big money at professional shows.

For the good of amateur boxing we hope the time never will come when it takes the place of professional fighting. It wouldn't be long before the gamblers would reach the boys. Then events like the Golden Gloves would be impossible.

SOME OFFICIAL TROUBLE.

The Metropolitan A. A. U. is ready to declare war on the New York Golden Gloves tournament officials because they have asked to have out of town judges for the intercity bouts with Chicago.

Two years ago Chicago lost to New York at Madison Square Garden. In the opinion of expert judges of boxing there were at least two bad decisions, both going against the Chicago fighters. Last year Chicago won at the Stadium and New York questioned the fairness of two verdicts.

This year the sports editors of the New York Daily News and THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE agreed that it would be to the mutual advantage of their teams to have neutral judges. This decision was not necessarily a reflection on the caliber or integrity of the officials in either city. It was made to give the boxers a feeling of confidence that they would get a fair break.

The Central A. A. U., which governs amateur boxing in Chicago, indorsed the out of town judge plan. Avery Brundage, president of the A. A. U., liked the idea. William Kenny, chairman of the A. A. U. boxing committee, last spring ordered out of town officials when the junior A. A. U. tournament was held in Chicago. He finds himself at a loss to explain the present stand of the Metropolitan group.

Apparently it is a matter of pride with the New York A. A. U. men. If that is the case, a plan probably could be worked out to let them sit in the front rows and have their names in the program.

Chicago wants out of town judges. Victory or defeat probably depends upon the outcome.

EDUCATIONAL SIGHTSEEING.

They will be given a day in Washington on the return trip at THE TRIBUNE'S expense. The party will leave New York at 2:20 a. m. April 1 and is due in Washington at 7:50 a. m. The morning schedule provides for a tour of public buildings including the Capitol, Congressional library, National museum, Pan-American building Washington monument, and Lincoln memorial. A trip will be made to Arlington cemetery with stops at the Lee mansion and the tomb of the Unknown Soldier.

After luncheon in Washington, there will be a journey to Mount Vernon, the home of George Washington, and to the Masonic lodge in Alexandria where Washington was a member.

Want Thrills? Read Second Chapter About Takatu Land

The boys, both young and old, who read the first installment of "To the Land of the Takatu," the Brazilian adventure story which started last Sunday in THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, are advised to put on their head nets and hold a bottle of mosquito dope in each hand when they read the second installment in tomorrow's TRIBUNE.

Grant Dailey, experienced explorer and South American hunter, and the three Boy Scouts accompanying him into northeastern Brazil, are on a river steamer when the second chapter begins right in the middle of the jungle's attacks of heat and insects.

Readers who did not begin this thrilling story of what happens to three Boy Scouts among the wild animals and Indians of the Brazilian wilderness, will find a synopsis of chapter one in tomorrow's TRIBUNE so that they may pick up the story without difficulty.

The story of "To the Land of the Takatu," written by Bob Becker of THE TRIBUNE'S sport staff, is laid in a far away corner of Brazil, which Mr. Becker visited when he was collecting animals and birds for the Field Museum of Natural History.

In tomorrow's installment the Scouts and Dailey find many amusing and exciting adventures while traveling by boat toward Takatu land, where they camp, hunt, and finally meet with many experiences guaranteed to send shivers down anybody's spine.

Incidentally, the wilderness east of the Rio Branco river, where most of the action of "To the Land of the Takatu" takes place, is not far from the locality which Conan Doyle chose as the locale for his dinosaur and aboriginal man story entitled "The Lost World," that piece of imaginative fiction which told of a Brazilian plateau near the Rio Branco on which dinosaurs still lived.

Although the Scouts in "To the Land of the Takatu" find no fantastic plateaus with prehistoric monsters on them, they encounter plenty of legitimate thrills and difficulties with jaguars, monkeys, savage Indian tribes, and treasure caves, nearly all of which are incidents taken from Bob Becker's personal experiences in that country.

Sidney Strotz Re-elected Chicago Stadium President

Sidney N. Strotz was reelected president of the Chicago Stadium corporation at the annual meeting of the board of directors yesterday. Strotz, who succeeded the late Patrick T. Harmon at the helm of the west side arena, also was reelected treasurer. Harold S. Strotz, brother of Sidney, was reelected chairman of the board, and Arthur Dixon was elected to another term as secretary.

WHITE SOX BEAT GALVESTON NINE, 13 TO 12, IN MUD

Resume Series Against Giants Today.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Galveston, Tex., March 20.—[Special.]—As a final tuneup for the resumption of their affairs with the Giants tomorrow night at Houston the White Sox labored in mud at the local training arena this afternoon. While thus engaged they pinned a 13 to 12 defeat on the home Texas leaguers, but as an exhibition the meeting was almost ridiculous and the Sox themselves were not at all proud of being involved.

As promised by him, after he had seen the premises the day previous, Manager Bush refused to enter any of his higher priced talent. He let them rest. Meanwhile the shock troops risked life and limb, but, happily enough, there were no casualties.

Sox Take 11 Run Lead.

The absence of regulars, while justified, added complications. This was particularly true of Big Lefty Weiland, who, after getting an eleven run lead in two innings, was forced to resign. His showing probably speeded along the time at which he will be given a ticket to Atlanta, Ga.

The exact nature of the show can best be figured from a summary of what happened in the first two innings. In round one the Sox shoved over five runs, four of which were due to homers by Simons and Jeffries. In the next inning, six Chicagoans registered by various methods. Seven of them hit safely, but what made the episode amusing was that the Buccaneers, struggling as best they could on the uncertain terrain, tossed in four errors and a passed ball. Having rid their systems of that much poor baseball, the local boys did a bit better in the last seven innings. They chalked up only two more blunders.

O'Shaughnessy to the Rescue.

When Weiland ran into trouble in the fifth, O'Shaughnessy, the Chicago kid, relieved him and terminated the inning with seven runs home. This left the Texas leaguers only two in arrear, and they tied it in the sixth on a homer and a flock of passes. This forced the Sox to get serious about their work and they began to pile up their winning margin in the seventh. They scored once at this point on Simons' single, a wild pitch, an error, and Kerr's long fly.

The real hitting expert of the layout selected by Bush was Eichrodt, who occupied Jolley's left field berth. The fellow drafted from New Orleans was up six times and in five of these he produced a whack of some kind.

The only fellows even close to him as persistent clouters were Cissel with two doubles and a single and Simons, who contributed a homer and two singles. Everything Simons hit, even when it wasn't safe, was toward the right side of the diamond, so he is going to be more or less of a certain right field hitter.

For the nocturnal clash with the Giants tomorrow night Bush intends to start Hal McKain and follow with Moore and Frasier.

It will be the first night meeting staged between two major teams.

Bad Actor at Post May Mar Agua Stake

AGUA CALIENTE, Mexico, March 20.—(AP)—The shadow of McGonigle, bay gelding of the Green Briar stable, a fractious horse at the post, today clouded the path of the second annual Agua Caliente $100,000 handicap for Sun Beau, favorite to win the classic and become greatest money winner of all time. The race will be run Sunday.

McGonigle is not expected to poke his nose across the finish line first, but his antics at the start are likely to diminish the chances of the thoroughbreds packing large imposts by delaying the race and wearing them down.

May Complain to Stewards.

Trainer J. D. McGinn intends to start McGonigle, and Willis Sharpe Kilmer, owner of Sun Beau, is expected to appear before the racing stewards and find out why the horse should be allowed to run, inasmuch as he has only the smallest chance of placing. A few days ago McGonigle delayed the start of a race ten minutes.

Carrying 129 pounds, Sun Beau will be packing 13 pounds more than his nearest competitor, the seven year old Mike Hall, and 39 pounds more than The Choctaw.

Only 10 Likely to Start.

Should McGonigle not start, a field of only ten will go to the post, barring rain, and wet weather is not likely. Of these Sun Beau holds shortest odds of four to five.

Lady Broadcast, 5 year old chestnut filly, is rated second and Mike Hall third. The west's lone hope is Alexander Pantages, the six year old which placed second to Victorian in the first running of the handicap last year.

Champaign, Ill., March 20.—[Special.]—Decatur won its way into the finals of the Illinois State High school basketball tournament by defeating Harrison Tech, Chicago's entry, 27 to 20, tonight. The red team of Decatur kept the Harrison star, Odron, well covered during the evening and itself hit the ring for many shots, breaking the Chicagoan's defense wide open in the final minutes of play.

Galesburg will be the other finalist, advancing at the expense of Johnston City, 28 to 27.

Johnston City and Harrison will play for third place.

Harrison secured an early lead, 8 to 5, at the end of the first quarter but Decatur uncorked its offense at the start of the second period and went into the lead, never again to be headed. At half time the score stood 12 to 11 for Decatur. The downstate team increased its lead to 20 to 15 at the end of the third period.

Harrison Rallies Late.

Harrison, in the final quarter, drove to the basket to bring its total to within two points of the Decatur five. The central Illinois team rallied, however, and successfully executed a stall to bring Harrison in upon the ball, leaving the floor open for many shots.

Harrison jumped into an early lead of 5 points with baskets by Odron and Rus and a free throw by Ernst. Hill scored the first basket for Decatur on a short shot. Bazant made a free throw on Hill's foul and Shroeder brought the score to four for Decatur with a short basket. Sisulak scored for Chicago and Hill a free throw for Decatur as the first quarter ended 8 to 5 for Harrison.

Tie Score at 8 All.

Schroeder, with a basket, and Hill, with a free throw, tied the score for Decatur, 8 to 8. Hill and Stuckey sent the Big Twelve team into the lead, while Schroeder added a point at the free throw line. Sisulak sent a long shot through the net and Gordon scored a free throw on Rex's personal as the half ended.

Joe Burford, substitute on the Galesburg team, getting his chance in the last minute of play, tossed a long basket that tied the county with Johnston City. Just before the pistol cracked Belden, Galesburg subcenter, was fouled. While a big crowd waited breathlessly Belden converted the free throw into the point that gave Galesburg victory.

HORACE MANN BEATEN

Indianapolis, Ind., March 20.—[Special.]—Horace Mann of Gary was upset by Rushville in the last few seconds of their first round game in the Indiana High school basketball tournament here tonight. The final score was 21 to 20.

Gary, with the giant Elser as their pivot, controlled the ball most of the first quarter to lead 8 to 5. Rushville did not get a field shot until late in the quarter, when Wilkinson and Burton connected in two attempts. Gary maintained its advantage throughout the second period, 12 to 8.

A former state champion, Marion, was eliminated when Elkhart took a big lead early in the game and fought off Marion's rally to win, 26 to 22. Some circus goal shooting plus accuracy at the foul line gave Elkhart a 14 to 8 margin at the half. Marion made six points the last quarter but was unable to overcome Elkhart's high total.

While Rushville was picking up a few points at the foul line Thompson was busy increasing his field goal total and the third quarter ended Horace Mann, 16; Rushville, 11. Wilkinson scored a long one from out in the center and then dropped in a free throw. Elser caged one, but Gregg followed and then Walker, who had gone in as a substitute for Burton with just 20 seconds to go, pushed in a field goal to win for Rushville.

Wiley of Terre Haute defeated Greensburg, 31 to 18, in the last game of the first round. Wiley led at the end of the half, 11 to 10, and they fought on even terms the third quarter until Cottom's brace of field goals gave Wiley a 19 to 16 margin, and from then until the finish Terre Haute had things its own way.

Muncie, one of the outstanding favorites and a former state champion, started the tournament by easily defeating the much smaller Kendallville team, 37 to 16. Muncie was held on even terms in the first quarter, but was in front, 13 to 7, at the half. In the fourth quarter Muncie's offense functioned perfectly, raining down basket after basket on the weakening upstaters. Jack Mann, giant Negro center, was outstanding.

MOON MULLINS—PLENTY OF PROOF

SMITTY—MAKING HIS PILE

Joliet Whips Charleston in Loyola Meet

goans only one point behind. Then Don Allen and Eddie Cain swept down the floor for two baskets and St. Mel had a three point lead with two minutes to go.

But the boys from Minneapolis weren't through. Montague dribbled half the length of the floor and scored. Then as the timekeeper raised his gun to end the game, Gearty took the ball well down the floor and tossed it through the hoop for the winning points.

Loose guarding largely was responsible for the overthrow of De Paul, representing the north section of Chicago's Catholic league. Four times Malec or Bird of Duquesne sneaked down unnoticed to take long passes under the Chicagoans' basket and hoist the ball in for easy goals. Those four shots just about turned the tide of the 17 to 13 game.

After having beaten De Paul in the morning, the Duquesne team proved itself one of the gamest teams in the tournament by coming back in the evening to put on a stirring rally against a fresh team representing Cathedral High school of Indianapolis. But the bid of the Pittsburgh boys fell short by one point, Cathedral winning, 25 to 24.

Campion academy, the team which set a scoring record in the first round, had an attack of stage fright in the opening game of the evening and was hard pressed to beat Neumann of Williamsville, N. Y., 28 to 22. The Wisconsin boys were just breezing along, far out in front, and had piled up a 20 to 8 advantage in the third quarter.

Campion Slows Down.

Suddenly Campion's passing became erratic, and Neumann was quick to take advantage of it. The New Yorkers swept down the floor to score repeatedly and their Wisconsin foes showed every indication of going to pieces.

Then Garvey, who seemed to be keeping his head better than anybody on the Campion team, got two chances from the free throw line and made both of them. An instant later he shot a pass to Ireland, who took the ball under the basket and scored. That broke the spell and Campion held its own until the last gun.

Leach Out of Middleweight Boxing Meet

Matchmaker Jim Mullen yesterday made a switch in his card of four ten round bouts for the opening show of the world's championship middleweight tourney at the Coliseum next Tuesday night. Gary Leach showed up at his gymnasium with a wrenched knee. Leach was to have fought Haakon Hanson of Norway. Mullen signed Hanson with Pete Susky, Scranton coal miner. Susky was to have boxed Clyde Chastain of Oklahome. Chastain was matched with Chief Bob Signas, a middleweight, who is champion of Michigan.

Several leading middleweights have filed challenges to the four winners on the tourney's opening night. Dave Shade, Len Harvey, the Englishman; several Italian fighters, some Jewish boxers, and a dozen Negro boys are anxious to compete for the gold belt the N. B. A. will present to the survivor.

U. S. Edict Cuts 15 Days Off Duck Shooting Season

BY BOB BECKER.

Fewer shooting days for the waterfowl hunters is the edict from Washington as the government issues its regulations governing the taking of ducks and geese during the coming 1931 season. Secretary of Agriculture Hyde has announced that President Hoover has signed the regulations which will shorten the northern waterfowl hunting season by 15 days. The new plan also will cut off the southern hunting season by the same number of days.

In other words, no state is going to have duck and goose shooting in September. In Illinois it means that waterfowl hunters will not be permitted to go into their blinds until about Oct. 9. Last year the season opened Sept. 24.

Sportsmen as a whole will not complain in view of the serious depletion of our waterfowl population. However, the trouble is that we can't bring back the ducks by the millions by making new laws or shortening the open seasons. The trouble with the duck business today is that they have lost their homes, their breeding grounds, in the north and the majority of their rest and feeding grounds in the states.

Shortening the seasons and cutting down on bag limits are going to help a great deal, of course, but changes in laws won't provide great marshy areas in the Canadian provinces nor put water in American sloughs and marshes which have been drained [many times unwisely] for agricultural purposes.

The past season saw the smallest duck crop in 20 years, according to the authorities. In Canada, where many provinces are studying the waterfowl problem, observers state that the shortage is largely due to destruction of Canadian breeding grounds.

Settlement and agricultural development have curtailed the breeding areas. Shrinking of shallow lakes and marshes also has a marked effect on the number of birds produced. A large number of the continent's waterfowl supply comes from the provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan, and Alberta. In recent years drainage and agriculture have taken away thousands of acres of the duck's nesting grounds in those provinces.

Thus the question of whether duck shooting is going to pass out of the picture as an American sport is not necessarily one of American made laws, automatic shotguns and bag limits. The most important thing is to find or provide areas where wild ducks can hatch their young. We can't shoot ducks, at least not very long, unless there is a large annual crop of new birds.

MRS. WHITING'S FUNERAL TO BE HELD ON MONDAY

Funeral services for Mrs. Eleanor Robinson Whiting, Chicago social leader and wife of Lawrence H. Whiting, president of the Boulevard Bridge bank, will be held at 2:30 p. m. Monday at the Whiting home at 1524 Lake Shore drive. Dr. Stephen E. Keeler, rector of St. Chrysostom's church, will conduct the services. Mrs. Whiting died at her home early yesterday of a nervous ailment which had baffled her doctors. She was 43 years old.

In August, 1929, she had suffered severe injuries in a fall at the Whiting country place at Lake Geneva, Wis., and a few months later contracted glaucoma, which necessitated the removal of one eye. These injuries, together with the shock of her mother's death last November, are believed to have hastened her death.

Born Here in 1887.

A descendant of a revolutionary war colonel, Mrs. Whiting was born July 24, 1887, in Chicago, the daughter of John K. Robinson, founder of the Diamond Match company. Educated in eastern schools and in Europe, she returned to Chicago in 1910 as the bride of Frederick D. Countiss, at that time president of the Chicago Stock Exchange.

Two children were born of the marriage — Henrietta Eleanor Countiss, now 18 years old, and Frederick D. Countiss Jr., now 16 years. In 1924 the couple separated and Mrs. Whiting obtained a divorce, charging desertion. Mr. Countiss has since died.

The Whitings were married on April 30, 1925, and had two children, Lawrence Jr., 4 years old, and Barbara Eleanor, 15 months old. Mrs. Whiting also is survived by a brother, John Kelly Robinson Jr. of New York City, and three sisters, Mrs. Alfred McEwen, Tarrytown, N. Y.; Mrs. Paul McEwen, New York City, and Mrs. William A. Evans, Greenwich, Conn.

Hostess to Royalty.

Among the notables entertained at the Whiting residence, which was built by Mrs. Whiting's first husband, were the crown prince and princess of Sweden and Lord and Lady Louis Mountbatten, cousins of the British king.

Mrs. Whiting, during the world war, as a member of the national board of the navy league and chairman of the Chicago district, sponsored scores of social functions for service men. In 1917 the Belgian government decorated her for raising funds to equip the Belgian army with ambulances.

Mrs. Whiting's body will be placed in a vault at Rosehill cemetery and later removed to a mausoleum at Lake Geneva.

KILLING OF RICH ANCONA FARMER STILL A MYSTERY

24 Hour Inquiry Turns Up No Clew.

Streator, Ill., March 20.—[Special.]—After 24 hours of investigation, Livingston county authorities today reported finding no clew to the death of Charles Ramme, 55 years old, wealthy farmer of Ancona, Ill., following the disclosure that he had been beaten to death with an instrument on the exhumation of his body yesterday.

While State's Attorney R. H. Niven and Coroner Elmo Nick said they had several persons under suspicion, they declared no progress had been made in the solution of the mystery.

Ramme was last seen alive by a neighbor on March 8. Three days later his brother, Otto Ramme, found him dead in bed. Ramme lived alone. The doors and windows of the farmhouse were locked on the inside.

It was at first believed that he had died a natural death. A post-mortem examination revealed injuries to the chest and spine.

With the discovery of his body, Miss Mae Arnold, 35 years old, daughter of a nearby farmer, produced a certificate showing that she and Ramme were married three weeks before. She had not gone to live with him, she said, because of the illness of her mother. Ramme a year ago had divorced his first wife, who lives in Streator. The first wife has been confined to her home for a month, following a broken leg. Ramme settled $10,000 on her after their divorce.

Rear Admiral Murdock, Retired, Dies, Aged 80

Manchester, N. H., March 20.—(AP)—Rear Admiral Joseph Ballard Murdock, U. S. N., retired, died today at a local hospital. He was 80 years old. He was born in Hartford, Conn., in 1851 and was graduated from the naval academy in 1870. He commanded the 2d division of the Atlantic fleet from 1910 to 1911, and the Asiatic fleet in 1911-'12. He retired in 1913, but in 1919 was ordered to duty at the Plymouth navy yard, where he served two years. He was a member of the New Hampshire house of representatives from 1921 to 1923.

PEER CONFESSES HE'S A BIGAMIST; STICKS TO BRIDE

[Copyright: 1931: By the New York Times.]

MELBOURNE, March 20. — Loru Langford, who until he recently succeeded to his ancient Irish title on the death of his uncle was working here as an odd job man under the name of Clotworthy Wellington Thomas Edward Rowley, admitted today he had two wives living.

When told that his first wife was living in London and calling herself Lady Langford, he said:

"The matter will have to be faced out. I intend going to London in July to take up my title of Baron Longford."

Before setting out to earn a living in Australia in 1923, Lord Langford was the husband of the daughter of Isaac Shiel of Dublin, who now is working in a London tea shop. He married Gertrude Summer Hayes, a 47 year old musician, in Melbourne last June. He described himself in the certificate as a widower.

HIGH PROOF FRUIT SPIRITS MAY BE USED AS ALCOHOL

New U. S. Ruling to Aid Grape Growers.

Washington, D. C., March 20.—[Special.]—High proof fruit spirits, made in distilleries connected with wineries, may be withdrawn and put to virtually the same uses as industrial alcohol, under regulations issued today by Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon, and Attorney General William D. Mitchell.

The joint rules were compiled by the treasury and justice heads under a special provision of the 1930 tariff act which permits the withdrawal and use of high proof spirits "under the same regulations applicable to the withdrawal and use of alcohol for all nonbeverage purposes."

The regulations issued today stated that "where it is desired to withdraw such spirits for purposes other than fortifications of wines, application shall be made in quadruplicate to the supervisor of permits of the district, supported by a statement, also in quadruplicate, setting forth the contemplated market for the spirits and the proper quantity which will be withdrawn for such purposes." Only spirits of more than 160 proof may be withdrawn, under the regulations.

The supervisor of the district is to make the usual inquiry respecting the fitness of the applicant, necessity for the permit, plant construction, and method of storage. A report on this inquiry must be made to the commissioner of industrial alcohol.

Officials here said the new regulation would be beneficial to the fruit growing industries of California, which suffered because of the prohibition amendment.

[Copyright: 1931: By the New York Times.]

HAVANA, March 20.—A large bomb exploded in the Brigadier Avalos army barracks, in the center of Havana, causing considerable damage, today, and another blew three fingers off the hand of a boy, who probably will die of his injuries.

In the meantime forty boys and men were arrested in connection with other recent bombings in Cuba, and several pounds of dynamite and some communist literature were seized. Heavy guards were placed around all embassies.

The large bomb was thrown into the garrison by one of three men who passed in an automobile. It exploded six minutes afterward. Armando Perez Fernandez, 10 years old, was injured by a bomb which he picked up in a street when running after a ball that had fallen nearby. It had been set over an aqueduct bringing Havana's water supply from Vento springs, sixteen miles southwest of the capital.

RALLIES KEEP CHICAGO STOCKS MOVING AHEAD

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Encouraged by the increased public interest and the bullish tinge of the current trade news, the professional operators put their favorites through their paces on the Chicago exchange yesterday and on the whole achieved satisfactory results.

The show dragged at times, but a series of dramatic little rallies kept the majority of the tape watching audience at their posts until the closing gong ended the affair.

U. S. Radio with the aid of professional prompting played the leading rôle and raised its rating two points net to 33¼, which, incidentally, is the best price it has commanded this year. Borg-Warner enjoyed a round of bidding which put it up over a point to within a fraction of its best 1931 rating.

Divide Honors Equally.

In other sections the honors were about equally divided among all classes of stocks. The radios, however, suffered from indifference and slipped down moderately. Utility shares improved slightly and a smattering of gains were distributed among the miscellaneous issues.

John R. Thompson stock, which has been quiet since the announcement of the entrance of new management group into the company's affairs, came in for moderate amount of trading. Approximately 1,200 turned over and the price yielded around a point to 31¾.

One of the last of the 1930 earnings statements was filed with the exchange yesterday by the Curtis Lighting company. The results set forth in the firm's report reflect the conditions that reduced the profits of many industrials last year. Net income of the company for the fiscal year ended Dec. 31 was $182,082, equivalent to $1.21 a shore on the 150,000 shares of common stock outstanding. This contrasts with net of $343,395 or $2.29 a share in the bumper year of 1929.

Current Assets Are $766,177.

Adverse trade conditions did not prevent the company from strengthening its current financial position, the Dec. 31 balance sheet shows. Current assets on that date were $766,177, against current liabilities of $146,963, which compares with $868,299 and $344,543, respectively, at the end of the preceding year.

Taking advantage of its present strong financial position, Marshall Field & Co. is calling in advance of maturity date $1,750,000 of its 4½ per cent debenture bonds, John McKinlay, president, announced yesterday. The aerial installments, due Jan. 1, 1932, and Jan. 1, 1933, have been called for redemption April 21 next. Interest will accrue until that date. The bonds called are part of the $17,500,000 issue made in 1928 to finance the purchase of retail store buildings and for other corporate purposes. The reduction in fixed charges and preference liabilities strengthens the position of the common stock, President McKinlay points out.

Exchange officials announced yesterday that arrangements for the sale of a seat at $22,000 have been completed. The previous sale was made at $20,000.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 20.—Directors of the Freeport-Texas company today reduced the quarterly dividend to 75 cents a share, placing the stock on a $3 annual basis, against $4 previously. This action, according to E. L. Norton, president, was taken in order to preserve the strong cash position at a time when funds are being used for the company's expansion program.

A quarterly dividend of 50 cents a share was voted on the stock of Manufacturers Trust company, equal to one-half the rate paid previously. A cut in the dividend rate on the class A common stock to 25 cents quarterly was announced by Moores Coney corporation. Previously the rate was 56¼ cents quarterly or $2.25 a year. A. Nash company has declared a quarterly dividend of $2, equal to $8 annually, against $10 a year heretofore.

Habirshaw Cable and Wire corporation has declared a dividend of 25 cents, payable April 1 to stock of record March 20. Three months ago a payment of 10 cents was made, prior to which stock was on a regular 25 cents quarterly basis. Central-Penn National bank of Philadelphia declared an extra dividend of 10 cents and regular quarterly of 60 cents, both payable March 31 to stockholders of record March 26.

Indiana Pipe Line company declared a dividend of 25 cents, payable May 16 to stock of record April 24. In the preceding quarter the company paid the regular quarterly dividend of 25 cents which had been paid previously. Eagle-Picher Lead company has omitted the quarterly dividend of $1.50 on the 6 per cent preferred stock due at this time.

FORESIGHT AIDS ROCK ISLAND TO PAY DIVIDENDS

Finds Surplus Handy in Dull Year.

BY O. A. MATHER.

Foresight in putting away part of the large earnings of previous years of high prosperity stood the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific railroad in good stead last year. It enabled the big carrier to maintain its $7 dividend rate on its common stock, although earings fell somewhat below dividend requirements.

JAMES E. GORMAN.

However, the rate has since been reduced to 5 per cent.

And the fact that the Rock Island found it necessary to dip into its surplus for only about $1,000,000 resulted from anticipating the effects of last year's general depression by reducing operating expenses promptly, according to the annual report issued yesterday by President J. E. Gorman and Chairman Charles Hayden. However, the road increased its investment in road and equipment by $34,611,861, of which $19,430,427 was for new rolling stock.

Follow Hoover Policy.

"Since in the last five we have earned $55.30 for each share of common stock, over and above all fixed charges and preferred dividends, and have disbursed in dividends only $25 a share, including the full dividend for 1930, the board of directors considers itself fully justified in having continued the 7 per cent dividend throughout the year," the officials say. "In accordance with the policy urged upon the nation's industries by President Hoover, we carried out, so far as possible, our program for the usual additions and betterments and the new construction."

The financial statement shows net income of $7,700,228, equivalent after preferred dividends to $5.56 a share on the common stock. Dividends totaled $3,772,245. The surplus account, after dividend payments and adjustments, shows a decline of $3,055,792 to $37,-219,848. Net income for 1929, which was a record breaking period, was $14,-907,320, equivalent to $14.04 a share on the common stock.

Carriers Report Improvement.

Two other western carriers yesterday reported some improvement this month. Henry A. Scandrett, president of the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific, said that revenues are showing a smaller decline from 1930 than did the February results. He explained that what small improvement is evident in traffic volume is not confined to any single class of freight, but is spread over all classifications.

President F. E. Williamson of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy said gross operating revenue for the second week of March were 13 per cent under the same week of 1930, whereas the decline from Jan. 1 to March 14 had been 15 per cent from the corresponding period last year.

In keeping with the advance in some finished steel prices for second quarter delivery announced in the east earlier this week, Chicago steel concerns yesterday sent out similar announcements to customers. The Illinois Steel company, subsidiary of the United States Steel corporation, advanced bars, shapes and plates by $2 a ton, or to a basis of 1.80 cents a pound, effective April 1, and the Inland Steel company followed suit. No change was made in prices of rolled sheets.

Business Slowly Rising.

Improvement in business, largely seasonal, continues at a slow and deliberate pace, with signs of betterment growing more distinct as the first quarter draws near a close, the weekly trade reviews reported yesterday.

"Gains now disclosed are scattered and in most cases only moderate, yet the movement is strengthened by some supporting phases which tend to increase confidence," says the R. G. Dun & Co. summary. "The present commercial advance, while highly irregular and mainly the outcome of seasonal stimulus, rests on a more solid basis than was true of the temporary uplift in the spring of 1930 for various readjustments have been effected since that period."

Notes Expansion.

Bradstreet's notes confirmation from state and national sources of slight expansion in manufacturing activities in February.

"The elapsed portion of March," it continues, "has furnished evidence of a still more marked increase in employment of both indoor and outdoor labor. In the distributive trade what is described as the Easter rush on manufacturers of shoes is reported from several points. Prospects of enlarged building and construction work are found in reports of better buying of men's work clothes."

Porto Rican Tobacco Co. Shows Earnings Slump

New York, March 20.—(AP)—Porto Rican American Tobacco company and subsidiaries, including its proportionate share of Congress Cigar earnings, reported today for 1930 net earnings of $883,796, equal to 85c a share on the class B stock, against $1,843,927, or $4.68 a share on the class B in 1929.

Offer Bill to Restrict Grain Operations in Minnesota

St. Paul, Minn., March 20.—(AP)—Trading in futures on grain exchanges in Minnesota would be restricted, if not abolished altogether, under a bill introduced in the Minnesota state senate today by R. A. Buckler, Crookston, Minn., Farmer-Laborite.

All purchases and sales of grain and agricultural products, whether on margin or otherwise without any intention to receive and pay for the property bought, or delivering the actual property, would be considered gambling and unlawful, under the bill. Violators would be fined not less than $300 nor more than $3,000.

The bill also provides that the "pretended buying and selling" of agricultural products on margins or on optional delivery "when the party selling the same does not intend to have the full amount of property on hand or under his control; to deliver upon such sale, or when the party buying any of such property does not intend actually to receive the full amount if purchased," shall be prohibited.

Would Repeal Marketing Act.

Dallas, Tex., March 20.—(AP)—Immediate repeal of the federal farm marketing act was advocated by Prof. James E. Boyle of Cornell university today in addressing members of the Texas Cotton association. He blamed the marketing act and the government's policy of "meddling in business" for destroying foreign markets for cotton and lowering cotton prices.

The speaker said 5c of the 5c decline in cotton prices since the federal farm board began its "speculative operations" was due to this government agency's policy. As a substitute for the present marketing act, he suggested that "industry coöperation" be initiated.

"This means coöperation of all interests in the same industry," he said, "and includes farmers, dealers, bankers, and others. Such a program for cotton would lead to lower costs of production, improved quality, longer staple, and cheaper distribution."

New Joint Stock Land Bank.

Washington, D. C., March 20.—(AP)—The farm loan board today issued a charter for a new joint stock land bank at Taylorville, Ill., capitalized at $250,000. The bank will serve communities in Illinois and Iowa.

BETHLEHEM STEEL BONUS OPPOSITION WRITES FOR PROXIES

New York, March 20.—(AP)—A new move by the opposition to the bonus system of the Bethlehem Steel corporation was made today when letters seeking proxies for use at the annual meeting in Newark, N. J., were mailed April 14 to the common and preferred stockholders, who number 80,000.

The letter says that the stockholders protective committee feels that the facts of the Bethlehem bonus system "required the concerted action of stockholders" for their protection.

Directors of the Bethlehem Steel corporation "have attempted to secure a vote of immunity," while denying to the stockholders committee the opportunity to be heard, the letter declares.

Scrutiny of the annual Bethlehem reports since 1917 fail to show any mention of bonuses, the letter says, or of anything relating to compensation to officials which is "submerged" in "operating expense."

During the time the bonus system has been in force and up to the end of 1928 bonuses have totaled $31,-878,255, compared with $40,886,996 paid to common stockholders, the letter adds. In the four years, 1925 to 1928 inclusive, during which no common dividends were paid, $6,800,524 in bonuses was paid to the "favored directors and other executives," the letter charges.

The letter concludes by saying that the proxy authorizes the committee to act at the annual meeting only on the bonus question.

START TODAY ON EVANSVILLE RAIL, BARGE FREIGHT

Three railroads will put into effect today a combination rail and barge freight rate through Evansville, Ind., which will be 20 per cent lower than all rail rates, to points on the Ohio and Mississippi rivers, an announcement by the Illinois Freight association said.

The Illinois Central, Chicago and Eastern Illinois, and the Big Four are the carriers involved. The rate will affect shipments from all Illinois, Wisconsin, and Indiana points through Evansville. The rate, which will be identical with the rail-barge rates from Chicago through St. Louis and Cairo, Ill., has been approved by the interstate commerce commission.

A $500,000 terminal and warehouse on the Ohio river at Evansville was completed recently. It is served by the Chicago and Eastern Illinois and by the Mississippi Valley Barge line and the American Barge Line company.

Officials of the Chicago and North Western and the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific lines said they had decided to join the other three carriers in the plan but had not yet posted the new tariff.

LATEST INCOME TAX TOTALS SHOW DROP OF 119 MILLIONS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 20.—[Special.]—The concern felt by the treasury over the shrinkage of income tax receipts was emphasized today when the March quarterly collections which had been tabulated up to and including March 18, totaled but $194,945,837, as compared with $314,200,588 for the same days of last year, a loss of $119,254,721.

This decline, however, is due in part to the fact that, as March 15 fell on Sunday this year, payments were not due until midnight of the following day and the official experts were hopeful therefore that heavy payments to be cleared by the banks and tabulated as of March 19 and in the later days of the month would make a more favorable showing.

The receipts avilable for the single day, March 18, were unexpectedly low, $88,691,515, as compared with $204,534,-500 on the same day last year. Even though the gap is partly made up in the later returns, it now seems probable that the total for the month will be substantially under the earlier estimate of about 435 million dollars and may not exceed 375 millions.

On such a basis of figuring the probability of a deficit at the end of the fiscal year on June 30 of around 700 million dollars is not considered unduly pessimistic by some of the experts, in view of the fact that government expenditures continue far in advance of expenses for 1930 and customs collections, one of the big sources of revenue, continue to lag far behind expectations.

OFF $18,565,995 HERE

Nearly complete income tax figures on first quarter collections made public yesterday by Robert E. Neely, acting collector of internal revenue, showed a decrease of $18,565,995 compared with the total of collections for the same period last year. A total of $34,186,751 had been paid to the collector since Jan. 1, as compared with $52,752,746 from Jan. 1 to March 20 last year. Returns tabulated since Jan. 1 totaled 177,600, as against 219,-400 for the same period last year.

CHILE NITRATE COMBINE NOW IS EFFECTIVE

SANTIAGO, Chile, March 20.—(AP)—Steps for the rejuvenation of the nitrate industry were completed today when a $300,000,000 coöperative combine was formed by the Chilean government and producers.

Crystallizing into fact the hopes of years, the constitution of the Chilean Nitrate corporation was signed by the government and the producers and was approved by President Ibanez of Chile.

He said New York bankers had cooperated greatly in the financing of the combine. It was understood $35,-000,000 worth of bonds would be offered in New York Monday as the public's share in the corporation. The government will hold a half interest, in return for which it abolishes its export tax of $12.50 a ton. The government is guaranteed specific sums equal to the probable taxes for 1931-'33 while the company gets under way.

NATIONAL STEEL EARNINGS EXCEED DIVIDEND NEED

New York, March 20.—(AP)—National Steel corporation earned a substantial margin over its $2 annual dividend during 1930, its first full year of operation, the annual report issued today disclosed.

Net earnings were reported as $4,415,822, equal after deduction of a special charge for additional inventory revaluation, to $3.91 a share on 2,149,-734 shares outstanding Dec. 31.

E. T. Weir, chairman, said that while earnings as shown by the statement were $8,691,138, equal to $4.08 a share on the average shares outstanding during the year, directors decided to reduce the figure by the special provision of $275,316 for inventory revaluation. He said the business has shown a gradual but steady improvement since the first of the year.

Plan $40,000,000 Merger of Lipton's, Other Chains

LONDON, March 20.—(AP)—A plan for the merger of provision store chains with a total capitalization of more than $40,000,000 was sent today to shareholders of Lipton's, Ltd., and Home and Colonial stores. Under the proposal Home and Colonial and its great subsidaries, Maypole Dairy and Meadow Dairy, would acquire all issued capital of Lipton's for an exchange of Home and Colonial. Sir Thomas Lipton, well known sportsman, is head of Lipton's, Ltd.

Armour Leather Concern Has $1,870,000 Loss in '30

The J. K. Mosser Leather company, controlled by Armour & Co., reported yesterday a net loss of $1,870,000 for the year ended Jan. 31. The corporation sold leather at a profit during the first nine months, but drastic declines in the value of hides the last three months much more than wiped out the profit. The report says hides and leather fell to about the lowest point in this century.

Stephenson Warns Against Unemployment Insurance

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 20.—Danger of a transformation in the national character of the people of the United States from "sturdy, self-reliant, independent individualism toward personal dependency" on government or other institutions was pointed out here today by Rome C. Stephenson, president of the American Bankers' association, before the eastern regional conference of the association's savings bank division.

ROME C. STEPHENSON.

He denounced political opportunism that has sought to impose various forms of doles on the treasury and described unemployment insurance as "merely a name under which an industrial dole fund is to be set up by industry, aimed to relieve the individual in part from a personal risk that can be properly and fully met only by measures of personal financial prudence and responsibility."

Sees Critical Situation.

"Savings banking constitutes the nation's greatest financial mechanism for coöperating with our people in our well tried plan of self-reliant Americanism," he said.

Stephenson said the present period had all the appearance of being one of the critical turning points in American history.

He referred to unemployment insurance as a change in the individual's relationship with his employment that would unload him of a certain degree of economic responsibility, "an enforced levy upon the income of invested capital making labor a ward, a retainer, of capital. It would seek, in a measure, to transfer to capital a share of the individual worker's economic responsibilities and risks against which he is normally able and obligated to make provision out of his own earnings for himself under our traditional American conception of life as contrasted with European feudal dependency."

Would Leave Labor Free.

He said the risks of unemployment were not susceptible to scientific actuarial treatment as are life and other forms of insurance. If such a change were to be set up as an industrial cost it would be sounder, he declared, "to increase wages by the amount involved and then seek to inculcate the doctrine of thrift and provision against unemployment through saving these added amounts as a matter of individual, personal responsibility.

"This would leave labor free. It would avoid industrial paternalism. If it resulted in happier, more stable, more efficient workers it would thereby justify itself as a measure of sound industrial accounting and economics."

The small personal loan department in a bank was given a thorough test in 1930 and the safety of this form of extension of credit was clearly established, Warren S. Shepard, vice president of the Worcester Bank and Trust company, Worcester, told the conference. He spoke on "The Small Loan Department in a Year of Depression."

New York, Mach 20.—The new bull movement in stocks began to ease up today. Nothing especially happened to bring about the change and it was evident that the speculative fraternity had decided it was not so firmly convinced after all that a business recovery is either already upon us or just around the corner.

Prospects of higher taxes, continued dividend reductions and the imminence of an unpromising batch of first quarter earnings reports may have had something to do with the sudden cooling off of the midweek burst of enthusiasm.

Whatever the cause it checked the rise throughout the list. Gains still predominated in the closing figures, it is true, but few of them were of any importance and minus signs were showing throughout the tables. United States Steel was off nearly a point from its closing level of yesterday. Consolidated Gas was unchanged, Johns-Manville was down a fraction, United Gas a half, American Tobacco B, American Telephone and Telegraph, and Western Union a point each. American Can was one of the few key issues to carry on, annexing more than a point more. New York Central was up 2 points, and General Electric a half. Fox Film A, leader of the amusement group, just managed to hold its own.

Many Shares Still Able to Register Gains.

Auburn Up 8½ Points.

The half dozen or so important gains included Auburn Auto, which ran up 8½ points to 209½; National Lead, up 4¼; National Surety, 7¼; Westinghouse, 4⅝; U. S. Freight, up 4¼, and McKeesport Tin, 3½.

Opening prices were higher and for a while it looked as though the bulls were going to duplicate yesterday's fine show. They did succeed in putting a number of issues of strategic importance, like U. S. Steel, General Motors, and American Can, up to new tops for the movement, but it developed that the nearer the pivotals got to their February highs the more persistent selling became and the plugging efforts were gradually abandoned.

Those who follow the market situation reported evidence of increasing good character of selling all along the line, in fact. This was declared to have been especially true in the case of U. S. Steel common, where it is contended scale selling of the best kind has been indicated since early yesterday. The industrial bellwether appeared to encounter quite persistent selling pressure throughout the morning just round the 150 level, and in the afternoon period the stock yielded to levels nearly 2 points under the high reached shortly after the opening.

Rails Show Strength.

Selling seemed to be quite aggressive in many of the utilities also, as these shares approached the top prices of the movement.

Possibly the most promising feature of the session was the strength shown by some of the rails which have been under pressure for so many monotonous days. Baltimore and Ohio, Atchison, Southern Railway, and one or two others rallied rather sharply from yesterday's lows and gains, of 1 to 2 points or more were rather plentiful in the group at closing time.

Steel shares were generally soft. Crucible taking a further dip of 2¾ points and Bethlehem and most of the others following the leader down in the afternoon.

Allied Chemical Gains.

Among the individual features was a spurt of some 3 points—later cut in half—in Allied Chemical and Dye on the strength of the corporation's earnings report showing earnings of better than $9 a share. U. S. Industrial Alcohol matched the performance on the other side of the fence by taking a tumble of about 6 points on the prospects of unfavorable dividend action when the board meets next week.

Utilities suffered from profit taking and the motors were unable to make much further progress as a group.

The turnover was figured at about 2,900,000 shares. Call money dropped in the afternoon to 1 per cent, the first time that funds have been available officially at that low level since the beginning of June, 1915. Little attention was paid to the development, however.

CALL MONEY DROPS TO ONE PER CENT; RATE LOWEST IN 15 YEARS

New York, March 20.—(AP)—Call money dropped to 1 per cent on the New York Stock Exchange today, the lowest official rate in over 15 years. The renewal rate was 1½ per cent, but funds were in abundant supply and were freely offered in the outside market at 1 per cent. Shortly after midday the official rate dropped to that figure, the first time money has been at 1 per cent on the New York Stock Exchange since June 3, 1915.

Banking circles explained that this was an aftermath of the accumulation for the government financing and tax payments, although it was rather unusual in view of the fact that the treasury called about $50,000,000 in deposits throughout the country.

Other monetary accommodations were unchanged. Commercial paper was in strong demand, but there was a scarcity of prime names. Time money and bankers acceptances were quiet.

The hog market went through a day of price slashing yesterday. Fresh receipts at 27,000 were augmented by 1,500 carried over from the previous session, giving buyers practically all of the advantage. Light and light butchers suffered most on the break, while extremely heavy "lard" hogs were almost steady in many instances.

Bulk of sales were 10@25c lower, some extremes in 150@225 lb hogs showing 30@40c loss late in the day. Heavy packing sows were scarce and came through fully steady. Large local packers were among the principal buyers, the Armour, Swift and Wilson houses handling a total of about 15,000, including directs. Only 4,000 were left. Few light hogs passed $8.10 after the $8.25 top had been established at the opening. The general average showed a loss of 15c at $7.50.

September Hogs Bring $9.00.

Interest in hog futures centered in September contracts. Light weights on the first half of that month sold at $9.00. Mediums for September were sold $8.75 and offered at $9.25, while bids for September heavy hogs held at $8.75 most of the day.

May lights were offered at $8.50 and bid $8.00. Offers and bids in other contracts were far apart. April mediums were offered at $9.00 and bid $8.90, while May mediums closed with bids at $8.25 and offers at $9.00. On the "to arrive" market, light weights for next Monday's delivery were bid $8.60.

A slight increase in cattle receipts reversed the trend of the market yesterday and part of the recent gain in cheaper grades was lost. Butcher stock comprised a larger share of total offerings and showed most weakness, selling mostly 25c under Thursday's market, with instances of more loss uncovered in late sales. The best steers on the market averaged 1,289 lbs and sold at $9.60, although the trade is carrying a top quotation of $10.85, which was paid earlier in the week for prime heavy steers. Calves were firm.

Lambs Hold Steady.

Little change was noted in the general condition of the lamb market yesterday. Bulk of sales were largely in line with the previous session, although movement of supplies was slow. Most 90@100 lb averages were listed at $8.75@9.10, several loads to shippers and city butchers making the top quotation at $9.25.

Probable receipts of hogs at Chicago for next Monday are estimated from 40,000 to 45,000. L. Vining marked 46,000, W. T. Reneker 50,000, J. M. Waters $2,000, A. G. Welhener and H. L. Johannesen $3,000, H. Patchen $4,000, F. M. Sherwood and G. W. Chandler $5,000, F. Knutzen $6,000, W. S. Nicholson $7,000, E. S. Waterbury 10,000, S. Lund and H. S. Turner 6,000, G. McLain $3,000, and H. Wolfe $5,000.

LARD AVERAGES LOWER

Lard was 2½c lower yesterday on the early delivery and unchanged for the quarter. Liverpool lard was 3d@6d lower. Stock clearances were 2,180,000 lbs of lard and 46,000 lbs of bacon. Bellies were 10@15c lower with a light trade. Prices follow:

WORLD'S WHEAT STOCKS

World's available supply of wheat, as compiled by the Daily Trade Bulletin, increased 3,923,000 bu in February, compared with a decrease of 28,247,000 bu in the previous month and a gain of 28,247,000 bu in February last year. Part of the increase during the month was due to including stocks of around 18,000,000 bu in private elevators at Kansas City, which were not included the previous month. SUGAR.

NEW YORK, March 20.—(AP)—SUGAR—Raw was quiet today and although no sales were reported, the undertone was easier with nearby offered at concession of 2 points. Refined was a little steadiness at the outset to opening and some Wall street buying, but futures were easier, closing at net losses of 2@4 points. Sales were 27,650 tons. Prices follow:

Spot sugar was unchanged at 4.46c for fine granulated and yesterday's announcement of a contemplated advance of 10 points to 4.56c was rescinded, due to the failure of Cuba to call and Hawaiian to take similar action so that the price will continue as is until further announcement.
